One Ex-Vice President, One Ex-President Alive

ing—was delightful. His oft-quoted remark during the post-war reconstruction period, with everybody telling what the country needed, "It needs a good 5-cent cigar," was typical of him.
Pivotal, as it fell on the ear, it was packed with meaning on analysis, a meaning the man in the street could understand.
Marshall wasn't the type of polition to wait until he knew "how the wind blew" before making up his mind. He made it up in advance and regardless of the wind, and revealed it with a frankness which horrified his party's more cautiously inclined.

He never broke himself of this habit. He never tried.
If there must be anti-foreign sentiment here for them like this last one, at such places as Shanghai.
Peking is inland, surrounded there by boxes, the foreigners were almost overwhelmed before relief cut the way through.

Shanghai is only a few miles from the sea, on a big river. In it several warships always lie, their guns ready, helped by a few landing parties, the "settlers" who could stand off enormous odds.
At worst everybody could be taken off. Property here is unimaginable but a manager.
A prolonged boycott would be worse. Foreign Shanghai depends absolutely on Chinese labor, industrial and domestic, common and skilled, manual and clerical. Equals to it depends on the "whinterland" for supplies.
Cut off, it would be paralyzed. Japan experienced a Chinese boycott a few years ago. There was a dispute.
"We can lick you," warned the Japanese. "Try," the Chinese agreed. "We won't fight. Neither will we trade with you."
Nor would they. Japan forced some small transactions on a few communities, but they amounted to nothing. Her trade fallen flat, Japan had to make terms.

Chinese resentment at foreign domination in the "treaty ports," like Shanghai, is natural. On Chinese soil the foreigners have their own cities, under their own governments; their own courts and their own laws, under which Chinese are punished—often unjustly, they consider.
In their own country the Chinese are treated—or ill-treated—as an inferior people. Realizing this, many Chinese, especially in this most recent instance, they are shot down in their own streets by foreign policemen.
"Bolshevik!" cries the Shanghai foreign press. No wonder the Chinese don't like it.

SHOALS BOARD OPPOSES SHORT DEBENTURE LEASE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Opposition to any short-time lease of the power facilities at Muscle Shoals was expressed by the President's Muscle Shoals commission, in a letter transmitted Wednesday to the war department.

The commission, meeting in first regular session, decided that if the war department desired to sell power that may be developed by the project, it has that authority without further warrant from the commissioners.

NEW AIR ROUTE SOUGHT

MOSCOW (AP)—Six airplanes left Wednesday to survey an air route through Siberia and across the Gobi desert to China. If the venture is successful, it is planned to form a Sino-Soviet association for the establishment of permanent aerial communication between Europe and China.

Thousands of persons, including members of the government, saw the departure of the expedition, which is being escorted by many other planes on the first stage of its journey.

The oldest clock in England was built in 1225, note it is considered a real old timer.
