CLAM DIGGER IS HUNTED
ASTORIA, Ore.—A warrant was issued in the justice court here for L. H. Kohl of Oregon City, wanted here on a charge of violating the law passed at the recent session of the legislature fixing the legal "dig" of clams at three dozen for each person.

Kohl was arrested by John Larson, deputy fish warden, and released on his own recognizance to appear in the justice court here. On his failure to appear, the warrant was issued. It is believed that this case is the first instituted under the new clam law.

MISS POPE ON STAND TODAY

Miss Pope stated, "I have an understanding, but their engagement was not announced until July 1, 1924. Their marriage being delayed because of her contract as a school teacher."

After young McCintock's return from Dartmouth college that summer they were together every day. Miss Pope stated, "until he became ill in midwinter."

The youth was taken ill while at her home, Miss Pope testified, and she drove him home and insisted he go to bed.

That night Shepherd drove her home, she said, and told her he had given Billy some pills.

"He said Billy was troubled with his stomach because he did not take care of himself and always was out late."

She told of the trend of the youth's illness, until five days later, she was permitted to be with him 20 minutes and forced to sit six feet away. The next day she was permitted in the next room only a few minutes.

"I was very unhappy about Billy until I told Mr. Shepherd I was willing to marry Billy if it would do any good," said Miss Pope.

whereupon Shepherd informed her both by obtaining a marriage license. Two days later, however, after Billy had become delirious, she did obtain a license.

The young woman admitted that Shepherd had not told her the youth had typhoid until after a medical diagnosis.

Then, she added, Shepherd said: "I have made quite a study of typhoid and germs and am convinced to know Billy has typhoid because the doctors will know how to treat it."

Shepherd told her, she said, Billy thought he might have bot typhoid while in the east to attend the Yale-Dartmouth football game.

Her story can be completed in 30 minutes Tuesday morning, said Judge P. S. Savage, assistant state's attorney, who questioned her. After that Miss Pope must face, according to defense plans, one of the most severe cross-examinations ever directed at a witness.

The defense started Monday by having another important judicial decision go against it, but by an inactivity in the state's direct examination of a witness, was able to make up lost ground, and in a reading, bearing attack upon cross-examination virtually nullified the value of the testimony of the state's star.

Rules Against Defense.
At the end of a two-hour argument in chambers, Judge Thomas J. Lynch ruled that the defense could not ask Dr. Amante Longest about his conviction for conspiracy for disposing of diploma stolen from Marquette university at Milwaukee, Wis.

Dr. Longest wavered in his identification of the bulky, pale, middle-aged Shepherd as the "young student, dark" young man who had visited his hospital regarding a course in bacteriology.

The defense seemed to have another victory when Judge Lynch indicated he would rule out testimony intended to show young McCintock had directed the sale of the Shepherd-McCintock home in a fashionable North Shore suburb, but that Shepherd would not permit display of the place. The court gave the prosecution until Tuesday morning to cite authorities before entering a definite ruling.

GRANGER TOBACCO

ROUGH CUT

Packed in tea-foil, instead of tins—hence 10¢

You'll take to Granger right from the start

Granger has that full, rich "rounded-out" mellowness that every experienced pipe-smoker looks for in tobacco.

For Granger is fine, ripe old Burley tobacco mellowed by Wellman's famous old 1870 method. And another thing, it's specially cut for pipes (rough cut, we call it) so that it burns slow and smokes sweet and cool right down to the very last flake.
