OUT OUR WAY

By WILLIAMS

THE RUSTLER.

Lois—Alice is fearfully ill.
Angeline—Indeed?
Lois—Why, she doesn't even know enough to lift her ankle when kissing in public.

It takes a beauty doctor to make a mountain out of a mole spot.

And the efficiency man got a job with the hotel company because he suggested that restful atmosphere for the guests was one of the prime requisites. One of his best was the placing of atmosphere in each room. A worried motto on each wall now reads: "Home Suite Home."

"Don't jump at conclusions," it may sound as if the neighbors are crying, fighting, or breaking up the furniture when they are out tuning in the radio.

Jack—What do you think counts most in this world?
Norma—Well, there's the adding machine.

The man who trips his partner's see is usually the one who brings company home to dinner on the cook's night out.

Asked by her school teacher to describe the backbone, a schoolgirl said: "The backbone is something that holds up the head and ribs and keeps one from having legs clear up to the neck."

If your wife's mother is subject to sinking spells, why not take her rowing?

They may be colder than they look. May have to live up to the stamp.

But I'm inclined to think, gazony, I wouldn't care to love a gazony.

Soap may come, and Soap may go, but an unchanged towel rolls on forever.

We wonder whether President Harding would keep silent were he to hit his thumb nail with a hatchet?

When three comes in of the door hard times try out the window.

Here's interesting news: The United States eats almost $300,000,000 worth of ice cream every year.

Save your dollars and they'll save you, all business men say that this is true.

Another opinion is a man who takes two lunks to a poker party.

"China has a standing army of 1,500,000 men."
"Don't they EVER get to all down?"

The Jimsons have a saxophone. The Jonkims a radio set. A phonograph belongs the Hyzons. Revenge is sweet. Now we have 'em!

MILES LEE'S WILL FILED
BAKERSFIELD, Cal.—The will of Miles Lee, who died here two weeks ago, was filed for probate in the county clerk's office Friday. The estate is valued at $100,000 and is composed of real estate and personal property valued at $20,000 each. The will left $10,000 in life insurance to the widow as well as his notes and mortgages valued at $20,000 and the family home over worth $100.

Each of his daughters received $25,000 in liberty bonds as well as large tracts of land, which they will not have in their own right until they reach the age of 40. They will receive the liberty bonds when they reach 20 years of age. One adopted son received only $5.

You can't tell if a man is working too hard or has a radio.

North Bend Masons to Build
MANSFIELD, Ore.—The Masonic order of North Bend will begin construction soon of a three-story concrete temple in that city on one of the four best business corners in Oreg. Bay. COVE, (Special)—At the annual meeting of school district No. 15 Monday, June 15, K. J. Stackland was elected director and Miss Bess Kelly, clerk. The meeting was well attended and one hundred and sixty-four votes were cast. After much discussion it was decided to increase the budget. A meeting will be called at a later date to decide upon it.

A feminine speaker remarked recently that cooks are born, not made. We suspected as much—most folks are.

Engine trouble has developed in many a flight of the imagination.

It is understood that business generally will be suspended on the anniversary of President Coolidge's birth. Not that Calvin has attained such heights of fame as to yet deserve that homage. He just happened to be born on the Fourth of July.

The Legion drum corps may have some very keen competition at the state convention at Prineville this year but it will take competition of that variety to keep them very far from first money. It's a real corps—a credit to the Post, to the members who play, and to the community.

NOT A FLYING FIELD.
The sigh of relief that the newspaper reading public experienced last night with the news of Amundsen's return from the Arctic was immediately followed by speculations as to how he returned and what he accomplished during the four weeks' disappearance. Details now lacking will furnish interesting matter as the explorers get more closely in touch with civilization, but at least we can be convinced that the top of the world will no longer be considered a very likely flying field. The party did not come within 100 miles of the North Pole and, returning in a fishing boat, apparently wrecked the two airplanes in landing or in attempted starts back. The relief that we feel at their safe return is combined with a conviction that sitting on the North Pole is not sufficient compensation for such hazards.

BOB LA FOLLETTE IS GONE.
At one time or another during the long years of his brilliant and interesting public career there are very few people in the country whom Bob LaFollette could not include in his following of admirers. LaFollette changed as the years went by and the people changed with even greater rapidity. Many who knew him and heard his speeches with admiration over a decade ago considered Bob LaFollette a wonderful statesman and leader but in the last election fought his candidacy with unceasing ardor, while thousands of others rallied to the cause. However worthy or unworthy the cause of Bob LaFollette in recent years, his place in history cannot be denied and today many millions over the nation and over the world are paying tribute to a fighter. He was a man unafraid, a man sincere in his efforts, a man to inspire admiration for his character even though he inspired some hatred for his ideas. A keen politician, he did not really entertain any hope for victory last fall; he only sought to launch a party movement that would bear the stamp of his personality through the coming generations. Only time can tell how well or how poorly he realized that ambition. Certainly he has made a lasting impression on the politics of America and the following gathered has lost an able and great leader.
