Lumber Men and Hoover Plan to War on Waste

WASHINGTON (AP).—General use of short-length lumber, nine feet or less, will save enough forest material, now wanted, to build 300,000 eight-room dwellings annually, according to Arthur T. Upson, lumber technologist of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association. The association has set up that objective as a part of its contribution to the crusade on industrial waste being waged by Herbert Hoover.

Data gathered by the association, the United States forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis., and the lumber division of the department of commerce now are in the hands of a committee which is considering how to stimulate the public demand for short lengths, which are said to be cheaper and, usually, of better quality than long lumber.

Mr. Upson said the short-length economy proposed is equivalent in forest conservation to giving the 29,000 lumber mills of the United States an entire year's holiday every tenth year, or about 25,000,000,000 feet of lumber, which would require all the sawtimber on 350,000 acres of land.

Plant Employee Injured

HARRISBURG, Ore.—George Fulton, 55, of Seattle, suffered a broken right arm, a fractured collar bone and was badly lacerated when the loose end of a belt he was attempting to wind around the fly wheel of the McKay gravel plant here slipped and knocked him over. Fulton operated the electric hoist of the plant, which is furnishing rock for the Harrisburg-Junction City sector for paving the Pacific highway. This is the first serious accident during the process of bridge construction and pavement laying at this place.

Chinese Theater Americanized To Meet Demand of Patrons

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A revolution in the presentation of Oriental dramas by the invasion of western customs has been noted at a Chinese theater here. An American jazz orchestra has replaced an aggregation of native stringed instruments and Chinese girls are chosen to play feminine roles in preference to male impersonators.

The little theater on the fringe of Chinatown offers a further innovation prompted by western influences by the installation of real scenery, backdrops and wings, to relieve the strain on the Americanized Oriental's imagination, formerly occasioned by the lack of "atmosphere."

Managers of the Chinese playhouses explain that the innovations are necessary since the younger generation of Chinese familiar with American methods of staging productions, demand a stimulation of the centuries-old method of Oriental presentation.
