TURNOVER IS AT LOW POINT

PORTLAND, Ore. (Special).—An extremely low labor turnover featured last week's employment reports from the various producing centers of the west coast, according to the 41 employment service letter issued here today, which indicates that the usual movement of men from job to job is at present at the lowest point of the year. The letter states that there is not a great number of unemployed men in the five districts.

The oversupply of most all kinds of help in the inland Empire, a condition which has prevailed there for the past month, has not perceptibly decreased, the letter states. Reports from the various districts follow:

Medford, Ore.—Not many unemployed men here.

Eugene—Resident help well employed. Considerable migration to and from Nation cut-off.

McMinnville—Fruit ranches busy with full crews. Haying well along. Few unemployed in this district.

Portland—New jobs offered confined to construction work. Small labor turnover. Short-time jobs for berry pickers and sugar beet workers giving employment to many men and women. Small surplus of common labor.

Aberdeen, Wash.—Many camps down. All sawmills operating. Labor turnover small. Few men out of work on Grays Harbor.

Tacoma—More than enough labor in this city to care for current demands for help.

Seattle—More than half of Puget Sound camps closed. Sawmills operating. Skilled help of all kinds well employed.

Spokane—Large surplus of men here, including some skilled workers.

Orefino—Considerable logging being done with local help. Plenty of labor.

Coolidge—All work cared for by

La Grande Theatres

Clever, Humorous Acts Promised for Sunday Caudeville.

Select vaudeville, one of those clever, humorous and unusual combinations will be introduced at the Arcade Theater on Sunday.

Donald McAdams & Sullivan Sisters in "A Wee Bit of Scotch." McAdams is an original Scotch comedian, singing his own compositions, with many bits of comical patter. And for excellent team work, the Sullivan sisters are hard to beat in their particular line. Singing and dancing is interspersed with rich Scotch humor. Claude & Metowen in a ninth provocative skit "Hokum vs. Class," a pair of entertainers who are past masters in the art. The offering given both a splendid opportunity for a display of their talents. Jimmy Doyle in "All by Myself," has a single full of wit and humor with many original songs, sayings, and similes. Carson & Carson "The Eccentric Comedians" in "This & That" right from the music hall in London and Australia, with witty songs and sayings which they have made famous across the pond. Willis & Willis, the flexible marvels known as the elastic jointed pair, in roars of contortion, forward and backward bending.

"Steele of the Royal Mounted" at Sherrys Starting Sunday.

From the most hardened movie-fighter who ever admitted that he himself had "shot" the worst picture that any northern state could possess comes praise for the men who rode the canons through the wild waters shown in "Steele of the Royal Mounted," the Vitaphone picture that comes to the Sherry Theater on tomorrow.

Even the natives who gathered along the shores opined that the water was "purty rough," and when a native commits a general opinion of that length it is time to believe that that is only half of it. It is like a farmer's reckoning of a mile to the next cross roads—two miles off in the one.

Those raids shown in "Steele of the Royal Mounted," are real, and they were "zidden" by the men pictured in the canons, who were called upon to forget personal safety for the sake of fidelity of action.

Comedy showing "What Price Goody."

"Thundering Herd" Makes Hit At Star.

History came to life in all its vivid realism last night at the Star Theater. Which is merely another way of saying that "The Thundering Herd," Paramount's pictureization of the powerful novel of the same name by Gene Grey, began its local engagement there and will remain for the next three days.

Those who are familiar with the story know that it is written around the winning of the west, and deals with a particularly important and violent period of American history—the rush of the pioneers in 1878 from their farms in the east to the buffalo fields of the far west.

Not a small measure of the success of the photoplay is due to the skilful adaptation of Lucien Hubbard, and the directorial shrewdness of William K. Howard. There was no easy task for the transferee of popular story to the screen is always attended with a good many difficulties. In this case it was accomplished successfully and the result is a film, replete with adventurous action, flavored with romance and chock-full of pictorial beauty.

Nothing has been omitted from the film that would contribute to an accurate and faithful portrayal of the old west. The hardships and privations of the sturdy pioneers is vividly depicted and the wholesale massacre of great herds of buffalo is pictured with startling boldness.

The cast was evidently selected with care and the featured players, in particular, acquit themselves with considerable distinction. Jack Holt has seldom been seen to better advantage; Lois Wilson has a part to which she brings both beauty and histrionic ability; Noah Flery plays a villainous role in his usual effective style; and Raymond Hatton wins new laurels in his characterization of an experienced buffalo hunter.

Picture-goers who prefer their film fare seasoned with plenty of thrills will find this screen play much to their liking. The Indian battle is one of the tremendously exciting highlights in the picture, and the stampede of two thousand fear-maddened buffalo is certain to make even the most blasé film fan sit up and take notice.

"The Thundering Herd" is not only excellent film entertainment, but it is an enduring tribute to that race of Americans too often forgotten in the hustle and bustle of this jazz age.

Talmadge Amazes Sailors of Fleet in "Laughing at Danger."

Officers and men of the battleship California, flagship of the Pacific coast fleet, enjoyed an informal entertainment while the big fighter was plowing through rough seas on the way to recent target practice in the San Clemente channel. Dick Talmadge was the entertainer, and while it was purely a matter of business with him, it was a great show for the tars.

The Carlos-P.O.H. star was permitted, through the courtesy of the naval authorities, to shoot scenes for his latest picture, "Laughing at Danger," at Sherrys today, and the sailors were ready to admit after they had seen him work, that the picture was well-named. He did a leap to the deck from the fighting top, with only mattresses to break his fall; swung by his toes on the signalling arm, swinging on a rope from one lattice mast to the other, and did many intrepid stunts which amazed the spectators.

Lee Moran in his latest comedy "His High Horse" is also being shown.

ELKS' PLEA IS REFUSED.

SALEM, Ore.—Governor Pierce declined to proclaim July 19 a legal holiday, as requested by the officers and hundreds of members of the Elks' lodge in this state. The holiday proclamation had been requested in connection with the national convention of Elks which will be held in Portland next month.

The governor's decision was contained in a letter sent today to Ben S. Fisher of Marshfield, president of the state Elks' association.

"The declaration of a legal holiday is a serious matter to the business interests of the state," said the governor. "I cannot see my way clear to declare such a holiday. However, I do earnestly urge that all business men who are Elks, or whose employes are members of the order, will endeavor to arrange their affairs so they may attend the convention and that our thousands of guests will receive a real Oregon welcome and entertainment."

"Sadder still," remarked Leslie E. Edmonds, state bonus director, "those veterans, who probably need the money, will not be able to get a cent of it after June 30. The state legislature has extended the time once, but will not do so again."
