against a soft accompaniment by the French horns and trumpets. "Let It Rain, Let It Pour" by Walter Donaldson, a fox trot which is very popular in the east at the present time, was next played and served to display the versatility of the organization.

"Egyptian Love Dance" by Arthur Pryor, famous band leader, concluded the first half of the program with an encore, "Dixie Blues" by Fromont which gave the trombones a lot of action in typical southern negro style.

The second half of the concert opened with scenes from "The Fortune Teller" by Victor Herbert which contained "Gypsy Love Song" and other Herbert masterpieces which the general public is familiar.

Dvorak's "Humoresque" again displayed the clarinet choir to an advantage. The program was concluded with two native selections, an American sketch, "Down South" by Myddleton and "Blue and Gray Patrol" a march by Dalberg.

Extracting Teeth for All Ills Is Opposed

TORONTO, Ont. (AP)—Warning against the promiscuous pulling of patients' teeth "just because it's hard to find out what is the matter," was sounded by Dr. Jerome M. Walters of Newark, N. J., in his presidential address opening the annual convention today of the American Osteopathic Society of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology. "It is a finish to save teeth," he urged, "in your judgment they should be saved."

Dr. Walters insisted that there be a thorough examination, the elimination of impacted third molars and abscessed roots and the filling of all cavities.

Citing one of his own cases, he said the patient had severe ear trouble which failed to respond to treatment. The X-ray revealed an ulcerated root in the jaw, from which all teeth had been pulled 12 years before. With removal of the root the ear trouble disappeared.

Two of MacMillan Crew Escape Duty at Wheel

(CHICAGO (AP)—The cook and engineer of the Bowdoin, which, with the Peary, are carrying the MacMillan-Navy party to the arctic region for exploration, are alone of its complement who will not go to take his turn at the wheel. The Bowdoin, of the auxiliary schooner type, has a passenger list of 12 men and a personnel of 12 navy officers and men.

All members of the crew and the complement are volunteers. The crew was selected principally from three viewpoints: personality, which was ranked first; physique and ability. It requires a good personality to withstand the rigors of arctic isolation as much as good physical condition.

Commander MacMillan is in charge of the Bowdoin, Commander Eugene E. McDonald, Jr., in charge of the Peary, the Commander R. E. Byrd, U. S. N., in charge of the navy personnel and planes. McDonald also is chief of radio on the expedition.

The planes are of the amphibian type and numbered SA-1, NA-2 and NA-3. They will have a maximum flying distance of 1200 miles but will not be required to fly further than 500 miles from their arctic bases at any time. They will also carry carrier pigeons and smoke bombs.

Next Session to Show Up Progressive "Bloc"

The next session of Congress will begin to show Administration spokesmen protest to feel sure already that insurgency is a thing of the past.

In reality, nobody can tell without a definite test.

If Progressive-ism's fate depends on a successor to La Follette who can fill his shoes, nobody's in sight.

Senator Borah has the necessary qualities of strength, courage and magnetism, but he isn't a Progressive—with a big "IF"—all the time. A follower may be a part-time, but a leader must be consistently on the job.

Senator Norris is so regular in his Progressive-ism as to be almost the real thing, but he hasn't the pugnacity La Follette possessed. He can put up a terrific fight when he likes, but he doesn't always like.

Senator Wheeler's "whole hog" Progressive and nobody ever was readier for a scrap, but he isn't as yet a political heavyweight which is essential in this case.

Besides he's a Democrat and to be effective at this time, Progressive-ism needs to draw from the Republicans' strength.

That about exhausts the list of available.

Progressive-ism, if it's to survive without La Follette, must survive on its own merits. It can't hope to be pulled through by virtue of strong leadership.

This, of course, refers to the Progressive-ism which was launched at the Cleveland conference a year ago.

Something else may develop later along the same lines. That's a different thing.

Needless to say, the regular Republicans will spare no effort, having been afflicted far worse by Progressive-ism than it has troubled the Democrats, to make Wisconsin safe for regularity at the election of '26.

With La Follette gone, they are much more hopeful of Senator Lammot's return to the upper house and hopes are expressed of putting a regular in La Follette's own seat.

They can't do this until November of next year since the vacancy will be filled temporarily by Governor Blaine's appointment, and, as he is a Progressive himself, a Progressive will be his choice.

One remark by Senator Wheeler may prove significant—that "La Follette dead will be more powerful even than La Follette alive."

This isn't impossible. His name may become one to conjure by.

With his death, much of the bitterness which was felt toward him living will disappear.

Ideally, it is quite likely there will be immense strength for the cause he preached in his memory—perhaps a strength greater than his own, a living man on the Senate floor.

Carlson were in the car that had preceded the Bafford car.

Woman Is Struck

Mrs. Brown and children were in the machine. She got out of the car after the collision. Carlson is said to have pumped on Brown from behind. Then Mrs. Brown came up and asked what the trouble was and Carlson is said to have turned around and struck her on the cheek with his fist, knocking her down.

After that Brown is reported to have worked on Carlson until the La Grande man was down and out. In the meantime, Carter and Boylen had Bafford in charge. Twice he made an effort to get away, and both of his efforts were balked. He said he was a federal officer and threatened to shoot Boylen, and made as if to search the cars for booze. A subsequent search revealed that he had neither a gun nor star.

Sheriff Arrives

Boylen came to Pendleton and called Sheriff Cookingham who went to the scene of the trouble. Both Brown and Carter were on their way to Idaho on a vacation trip which they said was the first they had had in three years, and they stated that they did not want to be held up here to prosecute Carlson and Bafford. A settlement for the damage done to the cars was made this morning in Pendleton between the interested parties, and no charges were made.

Bafford is said to have done some under-cover work in prohibition law enforcement in Emmitt county, but his exact status could not be ascertained. District Attorney Probst declared that none of that name was employed in the county as far as he knew. Sheriff Cookingham said that he thought Bafford had done some work here.

Indignation was rife here on the streets of Pendleton when the report was circulated that a woman carrying a baby was knoched down. The attack was made by
