FOR EVENING

Sister Mary Says:

Breakfast—Stewed dried peaches, boiled rice, thin cream, toasted bran muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Spinach au gratin, bread and butter sandwiches, gingerbread, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled porterhouse steak, baked potatoes, new onions in cream, chopped vegetables in lemon shells, whole wheat bread, junket ice cream with raspberry sauce, milk, coffee.

Mincd new cabbage, new carrots, green peppers and celery are well-seasoned with salt, pepper and sugar, scalding vinegar is poured over and the mixture is allowed to stand until cool. It is then chilled and served in halves of lemon shells. Needless to say, the relish is not for juniors.

Spinach Au Gratin—Two pounds spinach, 1 cup milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup grated cheese, 1/2 cup coarsely bread crumbs.

Wash spinach and cook in its own juice until tender. Chop. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Bring to the boiling point. Melt remaining butter and stir crumbs in it until well-coated. Put a layer of spinach into a well-buttered baking dish, cover with sauce and sprinkle with grated cheese. Continue layer for layer until all is used making the last layer of white sauce and cheese. Cover with buttered crumb and bake in a moderately hot oven until brown.

MacMillan Knows How Eskimos Procure Food

CHICAGO (AP)—One of the necessary arts in being an Arctic explorer is an ability to use native weapons, particularly of the kind employed by the inhabitants of that region in obtaining food.

On a former expedition which was outfitted for one year, MacMillan was obliged to be away four years because the far northern operations held him back. Then he was led to men on native rafts and brought them all back in better physical condition than when they departed.

The seal is the principal source of meat and the oil of the whale the source of fuel. The harpoon is the Eskimo's means of capture. Others eratic devices are used, but the harpoon ranks first. Pirarim are in many instances useless. MacMillan and his men became adept and decided that the tools of the Arctic were better for his purpose than the tools of the civilized world.

In using a seal, the Eskimo also uses his cunning. During the night he seasons the seal, appears only at a water hole. The Eskimo locates these water holes and covers them all but one. By the side of that one the Eskimo, harpoon in hand, keeps vigil, many times as long as 18 hours, sitting on his haunches and waiting back and forth as the only efficient means of keeping warm.

Bells Range from 15 Pounds to Nine Tons in Rockefeller Gift

NEW YORK (AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is presenting the largest and heaviest carillon in the world to the Park Avenue Baptist church in memory of his mother.

The carillon comprises 55 bells which run 4 1/2 chromatic octaves. The great mass of bell metal weighs more than 50 tons, and when completely installed, the steel work and fittings will bring the gross weight of the church tower must support to more than 100 tons.

The bells were made by Gillett & Johnston, bellfounders of Croxson, Surrey, England, where the carillon was first tested in public last May in the presence of King George and Queen Mary, the American and French ambassadors and other guests of note.

Size determines the tone of a bell, according to the makers. The largest Rockefeller bell is accordingly the lowest tone—"Low E"—weighing nine tons. The top note, "High A," floats from the smallest of the bells, a pigmy of but 15 pounds.

The secret of a carillon's success lies in the tuning, the British makers say. The Rockefeller peal their own phrase for the bell choir, is tuned according to the "Simpson five-tone principle," which in their opinion surpasses the best efforts of the long-reputable bellmakers of Belgium.

A bell is "cast on the heavy side," they explain. It is then reduced to weight and tone by experts who lathe out the inside surface of the bell according to the Simpson method. Once a bell is tuned, it stays tuned forever.

The carillon is played from a keyboard similar to the pianoforte. The instrumentalist is called a "carillonneur," who plies lever-keys and foot pedals with such might and main that a vigorous hymn leaves him in much the state of an active college halfback on a warm day.

Nevertheless the art of the carillonneur is one of the oldest and most cherished in sacred music. The Belgian players have virtually a monopoly on the profession, the Croxson bellfounders say. They serve an apprenticeship of years before they are pronounced masters in the cathedral school where they are trained.

The Episcopal church at Cohasset, Mass., has a 43-bell carillon, and 23-bell carillons surmount the Metropolitan church of Toronto, and the war memorial clock tower at Simco, Ontario.

When the Dam Gave Way

The dam that held the water supply for the town of Horton, Kas., collapsed after a series of heavy rains and every able-bodied citizen worked for hours to prevent the flooding of the town and destruction of crops. The lake that was released by the dam's collapse was two miles long, half a mile wide and 25 feet deep.

When the dam gave way, the British makers say. The Rockefeller peal their own phrase for the bell choir, is tuned according to the "Simpson five-tone principle," which in their opinion surpasses the best efforts of the long-reputable bellmakers of Belgium.
