U. S. REVENUE IS INCREASED

WASHINGTON. (By the Associated Press)—Federal internal revenue for the fiscal year 1925 which ended June 30 were increased $212,148,407 from the previous fiscal year despite sharp cuts made by the last revenue law in income and other tax rates.

The total tax receipts for the fiscal year just ended, as announced last night, were $2,555,010,647, of which $1,761,461,541 came from the direct assessment on incomes and $182,229,295 was from the miscellaneous sources upon which the federal treasury draws. While the present tax law was fully operative only half the last fiscal year, it gave evidence which treasury officials say confirm their belief that lower rates would increase the total internal revenue.

BURGLARS IN ACTIVE NIGHT

Attempts were made to rob three La Grande business houses last night or early this morning. In two cases the burglars actually broke in, but were unable to locate anything of value.

The Plumbing Blacksmith Shop and the Ryan Fruit Company were entered and the safes tampered with and the Gibbons Service Station would have been robbed save for the fact that a service man kept there last night.

The burglars evidently started at the Plumbing Blacksmith Shop, just across the railroad track on Fir Street, here they entered through a back window, climbed over a foot lock and into the office where they opened the small safe.

The combination on the safe was not entirely an art required only a turn in the right direction and the would-be thieves were evidently smart enough or clever enough to open the door without breaking the dial off.

The papers in the safe were scattered all over the floor but no cash was in the till.

Appropriating several useful tools from among the blacksmith tools, the burglars next entered the Ryan Fruit Company plant on Jefferson and Greenwood Streets.

They gained access to the office safe by the simple expedient of knocking out several boards nailed across a window at the rear of the building.

Following their hammering of the dial off the front of the safe, took the pivots out of the hinges and had things ready to open the safe when Night Officer Pryor appeared at the rear of the building, saw the back door open and came into the warehouse to look around.

Not suspecting that anything had happened other than that the Ryan men had forgotten to lock the door the evening before, Pryor looked through the building, closed the door and went on.

From about 6:20 this morning found about 6:20 this morning by Bennett J. Moyle, efficiency manager of the Ryan Fruit Company who opened up the plant, it seems probable that Pryor's entrance started the burglars out just as they were about to blow the safe.

Their tools, stolen from the blacksmith shop, were scattered about the floor and the bookkeeper's papers had been gone through and were littered about the office.

When Mr. Moyle entered, a large steel hammer was lying on the floor directly in front of the safe, one smaller hammer, a brace with steel drills and two chisels were scattered about, but just as the thieves had dropped them.

Nothing of any value was taken from the Ryan office, according to Mr. Moyle, who made an examination of the property after the police had looked the place over.

E. S. Sax, a young man who has been employed at the Gibbons Service Station on Jefferson Street was sleeping on a bench in the station office last evening, when he was awakened by a noise at the rear door.

Looking up he saw a man working with the small glass pane in the door. Jumping to his feet Sax gripped a rubber mallet and yelled at the burglar who made off toward the railway yard.

Sax went back to sleep thinking that the man had been scared away for good but about 15 minutes or a half an hour later he was again awakened and again the burglar ran out of sight.

TRUTH SOUGHT FOR CENTURIES

talists which have increased with the rise of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

The last actual trial occurred in Cleveland, Ohio, in May, 1924, when William Montgomery Brown, former Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Arkansas, was pronounced guilty by a church court of holding beliefs at odds with the accepted doctrine of his denomination. He publicly avowed communism and so-called atheism.

In the '90s, Professor Charles A. Briggs, a Presbyterian minister at New York City, was charged with having expressed himself as varying with the Westminster Confession. The New York Presbytery cleared him, but the General Assembly of the church reversed the decision and pronounced a verdict of suspension.

Dr. Richard Heber Newton, a New York Episcopalian, of the same period, cut short charges against his "broad churchmanship" by demanding a formal trial. His demand was met but the plaintiffs failed to appear.

David Swing of Chicago left the Presbyterian faith to preach independently in the '70s, when those citing him for alleged heresy refused to abide by his acquittal at the hands of the Chicago Presbytery and threatened to appeal to the Synod.

Mrs. Sarah E. Cooper, Sunday School worker, was hailed before the Presbyterian authorities in San Francisco about 1879.

Theologians to survive heresy proceedings and gain what were reported as a firm position were Horace Bushnell, Congregationalist of Hartford, Conn., in 1849; Prof. Philip Schaff, whose acquittal in the German Reformed church in 1846 was echoed for thirty-five years in the "Mercurius" controversy; Leonard Meacham, father of Henry Ward Beecher, and Presbyterian pastor in Cincinnati, in 1825; and Rev. Albert Barnes, Presbyterian of Philadelphia, 1827.

The widespread delusion in Salem village was the tragic climax of controversy in a colonial day when the accused were hanged and one "pressed to death" in 1692.

Henry Ruster was forced to resign as the first president of Harvard College in 1654 after he publicly doubted validity of infant baptism. He was also indicted by a grand jury as a heretic and sentenced to a public disputation and placed under bond for good behavior.

Belmont reported about 1649 was virtually deported to England because of the unpopular of his temperament and views. He returned to America under letter of safe conduct issued by the Earl of Warwick to the Massachusetts colonists. Governor John Winthrop he came to the defense of his wife's servant who had smiled in church. He suffered rigorous punishments from Plymouth, Newport, Rhode Island and Boston. A host which adopted his antinomianism survived him one hundred years, records show.

England was stirred in 1407 when Master William Thorpe, priest, was "examined for heresy" before Thomas Arundel, Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Chancellor.

MOSCOW, IDA. (AP)—Lest Hinkle, 29, of Moscow, Idaho, a student of the University of Idaho, was killed as he walked along a road near Wheaton, when struck by an automobile.

A. P. Warm, a garage man of Burlington, Iowa, was held in connection with the accident on the testimony of Dr. R. S. Schuler of Wheaton, believed to be the only eye witness. Pending further investigation no details of the accident were made known.

Hinkle was a student of theology and planned to go to India as a missionary.

Simon was cited in Acts of the Apostles as having attempted to buy the secret of the laying on of hands from the apostles Peter and Paul. The name of holy things ever afterward became known as "simony."
