THE KINGDOM OF THIS WORLD are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.—Revelations 11:15.

The silver lining to most domestic clouds is pay day.

A girl's popularity is often due to a comfortable porch swing on a warm summer night.

MacMillan may not find new land in the Arctic but if he finds nothing but ice there will be those who envy him these July afternoons.

There is a bright side to everything. If we don't own a car we can get some satisfaction from the fact that a tire manufacturer advanced the price of tubes three times in one week. Rubber continues upward—for no apparent reason except that the British stockholders may need extra large dividends this year.

The impression given readers of last night's Observer that the band concert would be held that evening was due to the fact that the reporter in telling of the program failed to state which evening it would be given, no specific date being named. The date had been given correctly in a previous issue, but that does not excuse us from omitting it in last night's story. We regret any inconvenience it may have caused.

SPEEDING IN TOWN.

There have been numerous complaints by La Grande citizens against speeders, frequenting streets south of the business district and endangering children crossing streets and playing nearby. The offenders are many if a strict interpretation of the speed law is made and the drivers who not only get up to 25 miles an hour but to 35 and 45 are all too numerous for the public's safety.

Boys who drive cars are too easily afflicted with the speed bug and too slow to appreciate the extreme danger that fast driving produces in city streets. Some of them are among the offenders. They are not consciously flitting with murder, of course, but they should be the subject of severe warnings by parents who know the irresponsible attitude that youth is often prone to take. They are not alone guilty, however, as the complaints also include adults who should be devoted to the job of increasing public safety rather than jeopardizing it.

Many bad intersections on the streets leading up on the hill make the matter more serious. If necessary, special police supervision can be put in the district affected until the streets become safe. Citizens who want to see the speeding eliminated are too slow, we believe, to turn in specific complaints to the police department against individual drivers. If this is not effective, a written petition from property holders requesting police protection from speeders will get action and cure the evil. As with anything else, united effort is necessary to bring proper emphasis to some violations and secure correction. If a citizen is not interested enough in his own or others' welfare to throw his influence in the right direction, such a thing as speeding on outlying streets of the city cannot be curbed effectively.

OUT OUR WAY

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Oregon Statesman, Salem, Ore.—Christian Endeavorers of the nation are in session in Oregon's metropolis. These young people—representative of high ideals of life and service—are among America's most valuable assets.

Called together under the banner of the Cross and guided by the Golden Rule they have neither time nor desire for discussions and quibblings over the theory of evolution. Their efforts are directed unerringly to the betterment, the happiness of the present and future generations. Their ideal for the work and requirements of life is the Savior of men. They are among the country's most virile, sincere and hopeful young men and women.

The Convention members are tremendously busy with worthwhile things of life. Their enthusiasm for Christian work, their splendid optimism for the future and their trust in the Creator as the guardian of their hopes and destinies, are an inspiration to other men and women everywhere.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Eugene Guard—Dr. Francis E. Clark, for 28 years president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, has resigned. He is 72 years old and he has earned his rest. He was the original sponsor of the Christian Endeavor movement among young people. He started his work with it and for it when it was nothing. He leaves it a strong, virile movement, established in 60 nations of the world and participated in by 20 church denominations. It is doubtful that any man has done more than he for the spiritual welfare and progress of the world's young people.

There is scarcely any other movement in the world of today that has so great a tendency to solidify and weld Christianity as the Christian Endeavor. It urges young people while they are at the most impressionable age and teaches them to think wholesomely. It inculcates practical ideas of right living. The lessons thus taught and the ideas thus inculcated cannot but influence for the whole period of their lives the Endeavorers. But the most valuable thing of all about it, as it seems to this writer, is that Christian Endeavor says the emphasis of its teachings upon the aims and ideals that its members may hold in common. It leaves inter-denominational differences aside and strives for the common goal. That is why it is a solidifying and a welding force for Christian progress.

To all Oregonians it must be particularly gratifying that the successor of Father Clark as head of this great international movement is Oregon born, Oregon bred and Oregon educated. President Daniel A. Poling was born in Portland and educated at Dallas. He did his first teaching at the old seminary at Lafayette, now departed. His career as preacher and teacher has been notable. His labors in recent years have taken him away from Oregon, but Oregon still claims him and he still claims this state as his own. There will be interest in Oregon in watching his progress in his important new work.

ENDEAVORERS SPEAK

Portland Telegram—What the body of American Endeavorers officials expressed in connection regarding the enforcement of the prohibition law and the movement for permanent world peace, is what the world expected them to express. Any pronouncement by them less forceful or less direct would have been a world disappointment. But because they did the expected thing, what they did is none the less important and heartening. Nor is it for a moment to be thought that these Christian young people are merely repeating what older people have thought out for them. The very essence

Let a national politician make a mistake, and he can't explain to the country. Let a local one apoloize his constituents' anger to the tolling point—if he's smooth enough, he can talk 'em out of it.

Federal taxes are high but con-ing down. State taxes are higher and coming up. County taxes are higher yet and coming up still faster. City taxes are highest of all and no rise equals theirs.

The nearer you get to the people, who have the most to say about their own local affairs, the worse the situation gets.

The natural conclusion is that the people, basically, are least to be trusted of all.

It's axiomatic that a people gets as good a government as it deserves. The American people seem to be getting better ones, at up and down the line.

Then why so much kicking about taxes—and other things? We ought to be pretty well satisfied.

ing a few of the federal government's tricks of indirection.

As a general proposition, however, the federal government's taxation policy is to be slick and the local government's policy is to be crude.

The explanation? It seems to be this:

The federal government is so far removed from the masses of voters as to be hardly recognizable as their own creation. It is so far removed that it can make no allowances.

"A Washington senator or representative fixing Florida's taxes" gotta be careful.

But a local government? The
