

START HAYING AT STARKEY

STARKEY (Special)—More than twenty-five people attended the fourth of July picnic given by the Starkey Needlecraft club ladies. There were a number of quilts auctioned off and a clever booth was built in the pines where hand work was sold. Everything was soon sold and then a basket lunch was served. After the meal a few hours of dancing followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Thomas. At the close of dancing the crowd again gathered around the festive burl.

The dance given in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Starkey was a big success. A good crowd, good music and a good floor added much to the occasion. The ladies of the club now have sufficient funds to build a community hall. They expect to start work on it within a short time.

Among the guests present for the celebration were: Mr. and Mrs. George, of La Grande, Mr. and Mrs. John Walls and Harry Wells, of Alsea, Mrs. Jack Smith of Island City, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Williamson and sons of La Grande, Warren, Bonnie and Walter Burnett, of Pendleton, Mrs. Otto Dieper and small daughter, Margie of Hiland, Jim Ross of Pendleton, Mr. and Mrs. George Wade and son Tom and daughter Edith of Hiland.

Haying is now beginning at Starkey. Everyone reports a good crop.

MOTHERS TOLD HOW TO GUIDE MODERN GIRLS

REDMOND, Ore. — Criticizing the younger generation is the great disease of the age and it is generally prevalent not only in present day books, newspapers and lectures but also among parents, according to Mrs. Kate Johnson, dean of women at the Oregon Agricultural college, who spoke before the Homemakers' institute here on "housekeeping or homemaking."

"Mothers must organize if they would counteract the organization which exists among the young folk today. They are now in a class by themselves and they do what they want to do."

"When the mother of a high school girl says 'You must not go to parties on week nights,' the girl says 'but Johnnie and Mary are going.' If all mothers got together and arranged that there would be no week end social affairs for their daughters, they could stop them. I have known the modern girl ever since I began teaching in the grade schools. She will be as good as we are if we give her a chance."

Mothers of high school girls were advised by Mrs. Johnson to provide the "modern girl" with a room of her own, to listen to her constant talk of "the boys" or some day she will not tell something which might be vital. Mothers were told to provide entertainment for the girl at home, maintain the family home to her girl friends and to do this, and then go away and leave "modern young folks" but to play with them.

A dean of girls in the smaller high schools is one of the great needs now, the speaker said. Most high schools have a coach who acts as a leader for the boys.

LEADERS PRESENT
Mrs. Jessie D. McComb, home demonstration leader with the extension department of the Oregon Agricultural college, is in general charge of the Homemakers' institute, which is the first to be held in central Oregon. M. T. McComb, county agent for Deschutes county, has been in charge of local details.

A few nurseries is maintained in the basement of the high school where the seedlings are held. The camp fire girls are in charge, and mothers may leave small children there while they attend the meetings. Morning meetings are given over to demonstration work in road and clothing while the afternoon meetings are to be featured by special talks.

After the ordeal he said: 'Give me a golf crowd and I am happy—but the microphone? Never again!'"

FLYWHEEL IN MILL RUINED

BAKER, Ore. (Special). — The Baker White Pine Lumber company in South Baker was the scene of one of the most serious accidents that has happened in Baker for some time. The mill, which occurred about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, resulted about $4,000 actual damage and a shut-down in plant operations for approximately 20 days. In fact, motors were obtained temporarily, while parts are being cast for those which were demolished. The huge fly wheel used to run the planing mill and box factory was totally ruined, when the belt from the engine began slipping and the motor ran away, the centrifugal force tearing the wheel into pieces and sending them flying in every direction. Three holes were torn in the west side and roof of the building, where the parts were thrown through, and parts were recently in the street which was recently in the street was torn to bits when it

Concrete Caved In.
Several pieces of the wheel were found on the roof and in the surrounding territory; one piece traveling about 120 feet, narrowly missing a freight engine of the Sumpter Valley railway, and landing feet in the ground three feet in depth directly in front of the home of Mr. DeBolt. Other parts struck the pit in which the wheel was buried, causing the solid concrete foundation as though it were an eggshell. The fly-wheel weighed approximately five tons and was 14 feet in diameter.

Two men miraculously escaped death in the accident.

OREGON DEBT RUNS SECOND

The state government of the United States have increased their bonded debt nearly 10 per cent in the past three years, according to a recent study of state finances published by The Bank of America, New York. The bonded debt now amounts to $1,524,423,333 or $13.39 for every man, woman and child in the country.

New York State's population, property and credit permanent tax, 30 cents are reflected in its bonded debt, which aggregates $2,200,000,000. The cost of its great debt service and taxes to pay existing debts is the largest of any state, although its per capita debt is comparatively low. Massachusetts is second with $125,000,000,000, of which a large proportion represents the value of its metropolitan district improvements and highways. Following these are Illinois with a debt of $112,000,000,000, North Carolina with $100,000,000,000, California with $88,150,000,000 and Michigan with $82,000,000,000. Kentucky, Nebraska and Wisconsin have no bonded indebtedness. Slightly over $678,000,000 of outstanding warrants and Wisconsin notes included only in its total figure to the extent of $15,000,000.

Debt Second.
The lowest per capita debt of any state in the Union is that of South Dakota, the state of each inhabitant owing $29.95, nearly six times as great as the national per capita debt. Oregon is second with $72 per capita. North Carolina third with $48.67, Delaware fourth with $46.76, North Dakota fifth with $24.67 and Massachusetts sixth with a per capita debt of $23.60.

The Pacific group, comprising the states of Washington, Oregon and California, has the highest per capita debt of any section. The Bank of America finds in grouping the figures according to the geographical areas of the country, its debt per inhabitant is $25.32, nearly twice the average for the United States. At the opposite end of the country, the New England states hold second place with a per capita debt of $22. The Middle Atlantic group of states, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania have a per capita debt of $18.07 and the South Atlantic states, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida are next with $12.45.

Below the average for the country as a whole are the East North Central division with a debt of $9.79, East South Central with $6.83, West South Central with

It is interesting to note, The Bank of America points out, that the total bonded indebtedness of the states at present is approximately half a billion dollars greater than the entire Federal debt in 1916 and the per capita is $4.07 larger.
