state governors, including Pinchot, to help name. To the statement that the national administration was doing its best Pinchot, in effect, answered with a pointed remark "no" in way no president likes to be talked to.

Pinchot didn't even concede that the administration "meant well." He said Secretary Mellon didn't want to enforce the law.

"Why not" in reply to some Pinchot pointed to the secretary's ostensible interests.

Analyze the attitude in this explanation and it becomes evident it's the kind of thing a public man—particularly a very high and mighty one, like Mellon—is apt to put in the absolutely unforgivable class.

General White Improves Slightly

SALISBURY, Ore.—The condition of George A. White, adjutant general, who has been ill for several days with an attack of intestinal influenza, is reported as slightly improved. Physicians said that Adjutant General White's condition was not critical and that he probably would be able to leave his bed some time next week.

for the defense, referred that motion of his side were ready at any time to make their views plain when such issue is germane.

At T. McKenzie suggested a point debate after the trial is over. The discussion ended when the court ordered the jury brought in.

In agreeing to an early ending of the trial, the defense explained their testimony on which it relied to count against having been excluded, the defense would state to the jury it could not ask a verdict or not guilty, and was satisfied to have the conviction so that an appeal might be made to the Tennessee supreme court or even to the United States supreme court.

John T. Scopes, when the judge asked him if he had anything to say, said: "Your honor, I have been convicted of violating an unjust statute. Any action other than I have pursued would be in violation of my idea of academic freedom."

Will Not Give Up

He said he would continue to oppose the law in every way in his power as long as it existed, if an unjust law and in violation of the constitution.

Bands for an appeal was filed at $200.

The meeting was thrown open for general discussion and half a dozen informal speeches were made, thanking the layton people for their hospitality during the trial.

Film Stars Welcomed

PENDLETON, Ore.—A vociferous welcome was extended by the citizens of Pendleton today to Edward Sedwick and his company of motion picture actors, when they arrived from Los Angeles to begin the task of filming the exterior views of two pictures.

Business houses were closed for an hour and several thousands of people were massed around the depot when the train pulled in shortly before noon. The blast of music from the Pendleton Round-Up cowboys' band and from the drum corps of the local American Legion post greeted the visitors when their train stopped.

Old stage coaches were used to convey the principals from station to their hotels and behind them rode an escort of mounted cowboys and cowgirls in round-up regalia.

The company will film two pictures while here, "Under Western Skies," which will be constructed around the Pendleton Round-Up, and "The Last Frontier," in which Dustin Farnum will star.

HOOD RIVER, Ore.—F. L. Wright, Columbia river fisherman, broke the record of several years when he landed from a salmon net a sturgeon that weighed, when dressed, 262 pounds. The huge fish measured 2 feet and 7 inches in length. It was exhibited in the windows of a meat market with a 50-pound Chinook salmon and scores of bluebacks and was viewed by hundreds of motor tourists.
A large run of bluebacks is on here now and fishermen are catching them by hundreds. Scores of home-bred, buying the favorite fish at 18 cents a pound are catching it.

Roscoe Is Kidnaped Again

Mrs. Roscoe Canady of San Antonio, Tex., has just regained her son, Roscoe Jr., 5, from his father, who lives in New York. The father kidnaped him from her last spring, and now she has kidnaped him back again. The New York courts refused to hold him for kidnaping, ruling that a parent cannot kidnap his own child.

Foreigners Find Life Rather Tedious in Bolshevik Capital

MOSCOW (AP)—To relieve the tedium of life among the foreign diplomats and newspaper correspondents, the Moscow government has adopted the expedient of giving free theatrical entertainments once a month. Early in June a distinguished gathering of ambassadors, consuls and Soviet commissioners were the guests of the Soviet government at a concert given at the State Opera house, which was featured by ballet dances, operatic pieces and vocal solos by Bolshevik Russian vocal artists. Theatrical Square, where the ambassadorial automobiles drew up, resembles Times Square, New York, at the busiest theatrical hour. Moscow has not seen so many fine Broadway since the days of the czar. The flags of all nations were seen, the French tricolor being especially conspicuous.

Whether because of the complete absence of social life generally or to the high cost of living, the foreign ambassadors and legations entertain only on rare occasions. Invitations to dinner or to parties from the members of one embassy to another, or to members of the Soviet government are seldom given. Perhaps nowhere in the world do diplomats lead a more uneventful, uninteresting life than in the Bolshevik capital. Such social amenities as evening dress suits have almost entirely disappeared, and a silk hat is rarely seen.

It was believed the arrival of Jean Herbetie, the new French ambassador, would relieve the tedium that pervades the foreign missions, but the hopes of those who sought greater social activity and gaiety have disappeared. The French ambassador and his wife live modestly at the former home of the Nansen relief mission, and already have adopted the quiet, unobtrusive social customs of their colleagues in the diplomatic miscellany.

On the very infrequent occasions when entertainments are given by the government or by foreign missions, the wives and families of the diplomats are conspicuous by their absence. The fact is that life in the Russian metropolises is so dull, difficult and dear, that foreign ambassadors and ministers prefer to leave the members of their families at home where normal conditions prevail and where they have the customary social and friendly contact with neighbors.

Widow Considers Offer
MAHESHFIELD, Ore.—Mrs. E. M. Mulkey, widow of the county superintendent of schools, received an offer of the position left vacant by the tragedy which befell her husband when a tree fell upon his automobile and killed him.

Mrs. Mulkey was unprepared for the tender and refused, but later was urged by friends and the court to reconsider the offer. Mrs. Mulkey will give his answer upon returning from the funeral of Walter Mulkey in the vicinity of Baker.

Mrs. Mulkey is a graduate of the rural school department of the state normal and taught school for nine years at Coquille.

Hunter Fired for Killing Deer
ROOSEBURG, Ore.—Ray Shields of this city was fined $50 and costs for having a deer in his possession. Shields is it is claimed, was hunting and was successful in killing a deer, which he smuggled into the city. Deputy Game Warden Walker learned of the proceeding and issued a search warrant secured a deer from Shields' ice chest. The hunter entered a plea of guilty and paid the fine.

Grazing Land Burned Over
ROOSEBURG, Ore.—Nearly 2000 acres of grazing lands were burned over about 15 miles northeast of Roseburg. The fire covering three large ranches owned by Al Kent, George Koblhagen and Mrs. W. G. Grubbs. It was thought it had been brought under control.

CALLS FOR BIDS.
MEDFORD, Ore. (AP)—The Medford post office today advertised for bids for airplane mail service scheduled to be established between Los Angeles and Seattle October 1. The bids call for a speed of 90 miles an hour, and a schedule from Medford to Portland of two hours 55 minutes.

SIX BOUTS ON CARD TONIGHT

that looks good. Both boys are local fighters, both have been developed here, both have good records and both are hard, clean fighters. Each one has many supporters among the La Grande fans and a match between the two to prove which one is best will be of interest.

The Abait-Hagan bout is expected to show some lively action. Hagan is known to many of the local fans by the name of Mich Hahn. He was trained by Tommy Burns of Portland, a relative, and fought the semi-windup a year or so ago when Burns was awarded a division over Jackie Rau of Spokane. At that time Dana looked pretty good but he was against a set up. Abait is from Ione and is said to be tough.

Hinder vs. Lindsay, a scheduled four-round affair looks like a good battle. Hinder lost a decision to Daugherty on the last athletic club card and then turned around and stopped Frankie Doyle of Pendleton in the second round at Huntington a week or so later. This boy is a fine physical specimen and with the increased confidence of a knockout should put up a good bout. Lindsay is an old ring hand in point of experience.

Two other four round bouts are on the schedule. These are Coleman vs. Driscoll, the curtain raiser and Watts vs. Davis.

Ring installed

The athletic field has been fixed up with the arena in such a position that about 2,000 people will be able to see the fights. The ring has been placed directly in front of the grand stand just back of some plate and the bleachers have been put up around the back and sides.
