LA GRANDE RANKS HIGH IN LUMBER

(Continued from Page One.) which do not maintain plants here. La Grande facilities for shipping are as good as any inland city in the state. A railway division point where three shops of all kinds are operated for the maintenance of the rolling stock, thousands of men are kept for the most expeditious transportation of railway freight. La Grande has considerable advantages. Progressing slightly from the main issue, the Union Pacific distributes approximately $250,000 monthly to the railway employees here. This figure varies to some extent but is always near the $250,000 mark. A great deal of the freight tonnage on the Joseph branch line to La Grande is either logs in the mills here or finished lumber from the plants operated in Wallowa County. To augment this so called tonnage which penetrates the heart of the timber country in one direction, some of the lumber concerns here hold their own truck from the mill line into the woods. The Grande-Rogue Lumber Company maintains about 12 miles of standard gauge track from Hilgard to Jordan Creek along the Grande-Rogue River and the Mount Emily Timber Company has laid eight and one half miles of standard gauge line from Hilgard along Five Points Creek. Both of these lines pay rich timber country. The Mount Emily Timber Company holdings in feet simple approximate 25,000,000,000 feet with that much again in the government reserve in the Five Points and Mount Emily areas.

The Grande-Rogue Lumber Company has holdings along Jordan and Catherine Creeks and the Bowman Hicks Company owns extensive timber rights in Wallowa County. La Grande is also considered the natural outlet for the immense stand of timber at the head of the John Day River and adjacent areas.

Future is Promising—With such large reserves of standing timber the La Grande mills will have almost an indefinite period of activity and can rework out as logging operations are discontinued in the eastern states to cover wider markets for their lumber.

This is a factor that has a wide bearing on the future development of the city. The north coast and southern states are rapidly being logged off and many mills in those sections have already been dismantled or abandoned. The reforestation will take years. The entire United States and even the world must then turn to the Pacific Coast states, Oregon, the Grande-Rogue Valley, for lumber.

High Quality Lumber—The Grande-Rogue Valley mills are ready. Blue Mountain Yellow Pine is of a quality to compare favorably with any lumber produced in the northwest. For ship timber it cannot be excelled. Almost free from knots, with straight grain and fine texture for a soft wood it is easily and satisfactorily worked. The fir and larch lumber produced in this territory is comparable only to the famous Coast Fir. It makes an excellent floor and is adaptable to most finish work. Blue Mountain fir and larch also makes excellent large timber such as ties and it is in this variety of lumber that the Eastern Oregon mills are most able to compete with any of the other plants along the coast.

Tug Buns Ratt Sings—AFFORIA, Ore.—The tug Coquette of the Knappa Tugboat company was sunk on the Columbia river when she ran into a log-rat she was towing. The collision tore a big hole in the tug's stern and she sank immediately, her crew of three including Miss Margaret Chaschidick, took being forced to swim ashore.

The tug is about 20 feet of water, and plans are being made to salvage her. The Coquette was built on Coos Bay in 1908. She was 78.7 feet long and had a beam of 16.7 feet.

Nine-Foot Fish Caught—NEWPORT, Ore.—Deep sea expert, who announces himself as fishing for ink cod off Newport has reeled the climax when one of the fishermen hooked a sturgeon, 9 feet and 8 inches long. The fish was caught on a hand line used for deep sea fishing.

As soon as the excited fishermen felt the weight of what he thought to be a log hanging on, he immediately called his hands to his assistance, with main strength, the big sturgeon was hauled aboard the boat and gaffed. After more than an hour the big fish was hauled and towed into Newport. Fishermen say this is the biggest sturgeon caught in these waters for years.

ROGUE FISH BOW LOOMS—MARSHFIELD, Ore.—Roderick Macdonald of Portland and Curry county passed through here for Rogue river, where he will institute injunctions against men he believes to be trespassers who are operating in Rogue river.

According to Mr. Macdonald's statement, the firms of Paulding of Red Francisco and S. Erastus of Beattie have fishing craft in Rogue river, where they have encroached upon private property, built docks and in some instances are using facilities belonging to local fishermen of Rogue river. Charges, Mr. Macdonald heard, had been made that the trespassers are stretching logs across the entrance to the river only a few feet wide at this season of the year. Their camps are on both sides of the Rogue river.

Silverton to Pave Street—SILVERTON, Ore.—Work preparatory to paving was started this week on the part of West Main street which is unpaved. Concrete will be used by Harmon & Wilson, contractors. When work on this street, which will take about a month, is concluded, all principal street leading into Silverton will be paved.

BUTTERFAT—SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Butterfat 54 1/2 here today.

DUN'S REVIEW—NEW YORK (AP)—Dun's today says:

"More firmness in commodity prices, relatively large demands in various trades and improvement in sentiment are distinctive phases of the current business situation. A contradiction of activity usually occurs in mid-summer yet much less of it appears at present than was the case a year ago, fundamental conditions are sound and there is a solid basis for future expansion. Even now, despite occasional restraints, operations in certain lines as in steel, footwear and hides are broadening, while the position of different sellers is strengthened as markets become steadier or tend upward."

"Narrow profit margin continues to occasion complaint in some industries but for eight consecutive weeks advances in wholesale quotations had predominated, and more than one-half of this week's increases in Dun's list are in other articles than food stuffs. Among the commodities which have recently reached higher levels are copper, lead, zinc, tin and hides. "Weekly bank clearings $8,277,974,000."

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks—Firm; Mark Truck touched record high at 20 1/2.

Hogs—Higher.

SALEM PIONEER NOW 86—SALEM, Ore. Joseph Bauer, who has the distinction of being in Salem longer than any other man, observed his 86th birthday anniversary here.

Mr. Bauer said he attributed his present alert condition to regular habits practiced in his younger days and his wife's good cooking. He estimated that he had eaten 100,000 biscuits provided by Mrs. Bauer.

Mr. Bauer crossed the planet in 1847 when he was 3 years of age. During his residence in Salem his residence in Salem he has served as city marshal, sheriff and a member of the legislature. He remains with pride that he is the only surviving member of Salem's first brass band.
