Water Kills Outworms.

BENI, Ore.—Outworms infestation in alfalfa fields near Redmond is being checked by flooding the land. W. T. McDonald, county agent for Deschutes county, reported that worms first made their appearance on an extensive scale in this county on the James Demore farm, in the Redmond community. Shortly after the water was turned over the areas of infestation the worms floated on the surface and the birds had a feast.

UNION GIRLS TAKE OUTING

UNION (Special)—About fifteen of the Junior Campfire girls, accompanied by their guardian, Mrs. Elnora Knight, left early Monday morning for a week's outing. The girls and their guardians and perhaps one or two other ladies will pitch their camp along the banks of Catherine creek, probably at Presbyterian lake, and will remain in the camp till Saturday. J. P. Hutchinson and family, who have been camping along Catherine creek during the past week, broke camp and returned home Friday on account of the rainy weather.

Carl Zeiser, who has spent the last year in California, returning for a few days in Willam, went on to Klam where he will stay with his parents for the next few months.

Although the last week has been very stormy and many heavy rains have fallen both east and west of us, the rainfall in this immediate vicinity has been much lighter than in other parts of the valley.

According to latest reports, Mrs. R. H. Lohme who was taken to Hot Lake a few days ago for an operation, is recovering from the operation and resting well.

E. O. Zeck, who is engaged in the logging business, reports that the heavy rains in the mountains last week damaged the logging roads to the extent of several hundred dollars and it will require some to repair the roads so logging can be resumed.

The tailor shop formerly run by Morris and Lewis, has been taken over by H. J. Evans who is now in charge of the work at Hot Lake. He is having the shop repaired and painted and will be ready for business about the middle of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wilson were over from Inbar and visited over Sunday with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Fox.

N. J. Morrison, who comes here from Herndon, has taken over the agency for the Mutual Creamery company of Union and expects to bring his family here and locate in this city.

A. C. Program Given

The program staged by the Athletic club at the school gym last Friday evening was well attended and the numbers thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Clarence Rosewell opened the program with a drill monologue, finishing his number with a song. Tony Smith and Mrs. Pearl McVey sang two duets which were very nicely rendered. Then Dean Hutchinson gave an exhibition of Hindu ceremony reading and was doing splendidly and had the audience enthralled until his assistant slipped him the wrong question, which seriously interfered with the readings. After several selections by the local brass band, the final number of the program, representing a night in a hotel adjoining an infamous asylum, was pulled off in a successful manner. With Dean Hutchinson as host, Clarence Rosewell as bell boy, and Fred and Vera Fox, W. V. Connor, and "Clad Cooper" as the nuns from the asylum, the act literally brought down the house. The

COOKERY LECTURE GIVEN

HOOD RIVER, Ore.—So large was the crowd that greeted Miss Alice Bradley, nationally known authority on cookery, presented here by the Hood River Woman's club that it was necessary to hold the lecture in a larger hall than had been chartered for her. More than 350 city and valley women were present to hear Miss Bradley and watch her demonstrate her suggestions. Women tourists from other states halted their journeys to attend the lecture.

Miss Bradley, the guest at a luncheon in her honor, was brought here from Portland over the Columbia River highway by Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Blanchard, the

Accord Reached by Bulgaria and Turkey

ANGORA (AP)—Negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey looking toward the adjustment of several controversial questions have made such progress that a complete understanding is expected. Simon Radeff, the Bulgarian representative, recently stated: "The negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey have taken a direction toward final agreement. We shall soon reach an understanding on all most points."

The negotiators have agreed that Turkish citizens who were living in Bulgaria before the Bulger-Turkish war and now are living in Angora, will be free, if the course of the next three years, to dispose of their immovable property in Bulgaria and transfer their allegiance to Turkey. A similar accord was reached relative to Bulgarian citizens who are living in Turkey.

A decision has been reached affecting Turks who migrated from Bulgaria and Bulgarians who left Turkey after the Balkan war. The negotiators have agreed that those persons may not return to the countries from which they migrated.

Wynne Ferguson Author of 'Ferguson on Auction Bridge' gives you these EASY LESSONS IN AUCTION BRIDGE

Copyright 1924 by Wynne, Jr.

You often hear the phrase "He's a cheerful loser" and most players consider it a compliment but the writer disagrees. It's a mighty fine thing to keep your temper, either losing or winning, but if to be a "cheerful loser" means a "rattified loser," then the writer prefers the loser who snarls and snaps but is always trying to change his luck. Every player must lose at times and he must learn to accept it. He must figure out tomorrow he must pay and take today's losses as a part of the game. But whatever you do, never be "rattified" to lose. Hustle and fight with everything you have to win and never give up until you are beaten. Don't be a "cheerful loser" in that you don't try for everything with all your thought and all your might. Above all things, however, don't get discouraged just because you lose a few rubbers or even lose for a week or so at a stretch. Struggle or had luck strike every player, even the best. There is one player of the writer's acquaintance who would be a "perfect auction player" if he could only learn not to become discouraged with bad cards or bad "breaks." Under adverse conditions he just whiffs and plays no better than the ordinary player. He has everything but bluntness and lacking that, he can never be rated as high as his real ability warrants. The player who can take his losses and his bad "breaks" and then come back still fighting and hustling, is hard to beat over any stretch of time. Never brood over your hard luck. Never speak of it. Never get discouraged. When bad luck comes, it keep on fighting just the same and you are bound to win out in the long run. The "cheerful loser" is usually too easy going for real success but the "hustly and courageous loser" is a real man and bound to win.

The writer recently made the statement that it's very improbable that a player will hold a hand that will justify a pass of a partner's double of a one suit bid. This statement is true ninety-nine times out of a hundred so the writer is bound where the exception arises to hand to be interesting.

The other night, in one of the New York clubs, the dealer bid one spade, second hand doubted, third hand passed and fourth hand, the doubler's partner, bid the following:

Hearts—7, 4, 3 Clubs—7, 6, 6, 4 Diamonds—4 Spades—K, Q, J, 10, 9 and very properly passed. The hand was played at one spade doubled and the contract was doubled by one trick. It was an interesting hand, showing that even a sound one spade bid may be defeated. It's "breaks" such as this, however, that make the game so interesting. No player can ever learn enough about the game so that he can foresee the number of possibilities of every deal. The human mind is only finite and the possible distributions at auction are infinite. Auction can never become "cut and dried" and therein lies its charm.

A very interesting hand has just been submitted which involves some of the points considered in a recent article:

Hearts—K, Q, 7, 4 Clubs—Q, J, 7, 4 Diamonds—Q, 7, 8 Spades—A, Q, 10, 9 No score and Y-Z a game in. Z dealt and bid one no-trump and A doubled. What should Y now bid with the foregoing hand? This is a hand Y should redouble. It is a perfect example of the type of hand that justifies a redouble. From now on Y-Z should be on the alert for big penalties. They have A in between two big hands and if they bid properly, they should score a big penalty. The following is the distribution of all four hands:

Hearts—K, Q, 7, 4 Clubs—Q, J, 7, 4 Diamonds—Q, 7, 8 Spades—A, Q, 10, 9

Hearts—A, J, 10, 8 Clubs—10, 9, 8, 2 Diamonds—A, 4, 5 Spades—4, 3

Hearts—A, K, 2 Clubs—A, 5, 2 Diamonds—K, 10, 9, 4, 3 Spades—K, 7, 2

Y had a perfectly sound one no-trump bid but A's double was very smart. Y's redouble was sound and B had no choice but to bid two spades. The redouble in this situation does not represent a strong warning, particularly when the doubler from bidding, Z, playing against a "bluffer," one who doubles merely to frighten the other fellow and to try to bluff him out of a game bid. The requirements for a sound redouble are simple. If your partner bids a no-trump, second hand doubles and you also have a no-trumper, redouble. That is, if you have a hand on which, as dealer, you would bid a no-trump, it is a simple rule and one easy to remember.

Be on the alert for such hands and if your group includes a "bluffer," you should bid a few times and you will soon cure him.

or a not loss of 500 points. It was a big penalty caused by A's bad double and Y's alertness in redoubling and telling his partner the alert for big penalties. The redouble is usually too easy going for real success but the "hustly and courageous loser" is a real man and bound to win.

Russia Takes Entrails Business from Germany

MOSCOW (AP)—The export of entrails to foreign countries is one of the chief items of Russia's foreign trade. Exports of this commodity during the last six months amounted to over $1,000,000, of which a steady market in the United States for this kind of material. American sausage makers having purchased 45 per cent of the total export of entrails during the last six months.

In pre-war times Russia did a great trade in entrails. It had an unlimited supply of sheep's intestines and special factories were built in Leningrad equipped with the latest mechanical devices for sorting and preparing the goods for export. The whole trade was in the hands of Germany.

which had a monopoly for purchasing entrails in Russia, but now exporting organizations are now preparing to deal direct with the consuming countries.
