A man never really worries about winning his bride. What worries him is how he can keep her in clothes!

Any woman can fool a man by letting him think he is fooling her.

HOOTS! HOOTS!
Scotch bag-pipe is an army bugle with tonalities.

The laziest man in the world wears a brown tie because he chews tobacco.

ADD DISLIKES
I'd hate to be the devil.
He surely has to jump.
So many people are trying
To beat him around the stump.
New Orleans, La., Times Picayune

The devil has his troubles, course.
I don't deny that's true.
And yet the devil is one bird
Who always sees his dun.
Cincinnati, O., Enquirer.

I will not stand this razzing
About my property.
The devil man, and mine
Ain't—
My wife gives him to me.
Montgomery Ala., Advertiser

The devil is the judge's friend.
And that is on the level.
That's why the judge soaks
Them no hard
Who drive to beat the devil.
Houston, Texas, Post Dispatch.

I'd love to be the devil.
He is a happy duffer;
He goes the gait with all his dancer,
And never has to suffer.

You can't actually read men out of a party, but you can stop passing the pie.

Among the things that are not teachable is about story writing.

Potterness, these days, consist in offering a lady your seat when you get off the street car.

If I did as worried when slaughtered out with a boy it is probably because he has a good memory.

Only those who love really suffer. Ask the parent of a wayward child.

Complication: Why is a ship like unto a woman?
Solution: Because the rigging costs more than the hull.

Men don't actually fall because they knock; they knock because they have failed.

There is nothing particularly painful about talking to a bashful man if you don't watch his Adam's apple.

Strangely enough it's the man who gets plenty of sleep who is wide awake.

Sign in cemetery: "Persons are prohibited from picking flowers from any but their own graves."

Preparation for Service: First get a collection plate.

In early youth we are taught to "Love one another." Later we learn to love one—and another.

Five Increase Target

ROSEBURG, Ore.—The attorney-general is to be asked for an opinion on the law increasing the salaries or district attorneys in several counties, and requiring an additional filing fee of $5 on divorce complaints. The matter was referred to District Attorney Gordon, who has applied to the attorney-general for an opinion.

HEALTH

(By Dr. Frederick Stricker)

Time is an important factor in the control of any communicable disease. The earlier its recognition, the more easily can it be controlled. In submitting specimens to the laboratory, therefore, it is of the utmost importance that they be so prepared and shipped that there shall be the least possible delay in their reaching their destination. Some specimens are best sent by express, many, however, are sent by mail. Memoranda of the Postal Laws and Regulations covering the mailing of bacteriological specimens has resulted not only in extra expense to the sender, but also in serious delay in their receipt at the laboratory. A ruling covering the mailing of bacteriological specimens has been received, under date of July 18, 1925, by the Director of the Laboratory of the State Board of Health from the third Assistant Postmaster General, as follows:

In reply to your letter of the 7th instant, you are advised that bacteriological specimens, when prepared for mailing in the manner prescribed by section 461, Postal Laws and Regulations, (a copy of which may be consulted at any post office), in parcels not exceeding 8 ounces in weight, are embraced in matter of the third class and chargeable with postage at the rate of 1 1/2 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof. Parcels exceeding 8 ounces are subject to postage at the parcel post zone rates. It is permissible to write on a form inclosed with a specimen, or on a label attached thereto, the name and address of the patient from whom the specimen is taken, together with the names and addresses of the physician and health officer and other information concerning the patient or for the purpose of description, under the provisions of section 447, Postal Laws and Regulations.

"Such parcels may be mailed sealed at the third or fourth class rate, provided they are labeled in printing with the name of the sender as well as his address and the indicia as to contents and inspection, as prescribed by paragraph 6 (b), section 453, Postal Laws and Regulations."

The laboratory of the State Board of Health sends, free of charge, containers and mailing cases specially adapted for mailing under the regulations of the Post Office Department. Specimens submitted in such mailing cases may be accompanied by the information slips attached to every container without changing the classification of the parcel. If information other than that called for on the laboratory slip is desired to be given, attach it in a stamped envelope to the specimen parcel. Insufficient postage will delay the receipt of the specimen, and in many cases will make it useless for examination.

Bull Attacks Farmer

SWEET HOME, Ore.—J. Turbyne, who lives in the hills was attacked by a bull at his home while trying to drive it from the corral. Mr. Turbyne advanced with a raw hide, but discovered the animal was angered and would not be driven. To defend himself he hit the beast and it turned, knocking him down. The owner managed to grasp the rope and worked his way to the head of the animal. Mr. Turbyne managed to reach a fence just in time to save his life. He received bruises about the sides and back. The animal was immediately sold.

Coolidge may be lacking in many executive qualities but he has shown unusual good judgment in broadcasting the proposed tax reduction when congress meets again. With the country expecting it—and sadly needing it—the national legislators will hardly have the nerve to start any pork barrel operations this year.

RADIO'S FUTURE.

Cripe-hangers are predicting that the radio craze is booked to fizzle out. They are wrong. Unquestionably, interest in radio is going through a decided slump. It is a natural reaction. The novelty is wearing off. Radio is becoming commonplace. Only a few months ago it was as great a marvel as the arrival of a man from Mars.

Manufacturers of radio equipment think that the slump in wireless enthusiasm is due to summer. Their theory is that people want to be outdoors now in the evenings as much as possible. In autumn, the manufacturers predict, radio will come back stronger than ever.

An old hand-bill comes to light in the east, advertising one of the early telephone demonstrations at the city hall in Lawrence, Mass., May 28, 1877. The hand-bill reads:

"The miracle telephone! Wonderful discovery of the ages! Prof. A. Graham Bell, assisted by Mr. Frederic A. Gower, will give an exhibition of his wonderful and miraculous discovery, The Telephone, before the people of Lawrence, when Boston and Lawrence will be connected via the Western Union Telegraph, and vocal and instrumental music and conversation will be transmitted a distance of 27 miles and received by that audience in city hall. Prof. Bell will give an explanatory lecture with this marvelous exhibition."

The telephone, considered a marvel, swept popular fancy overnight. Then it had a slump. Many predicted that the telephone craze would die out quickly, just as similar predictions are being made now about radio. But the telephone hasn't died out. Neither will radio. It is as much in its infancy as Bell's phone was in 1877.

A DANGEROUS ILLUSION.

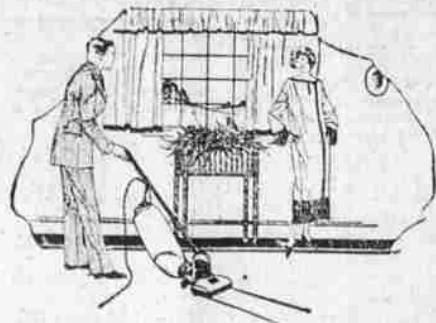

The American presently to become a disillusioned race asks someone. "A sage once said that the Celt was a dreamer, that the Anglo-Saxon was a practical man of affairs, that the Irish had a sense of humor. In the light of more recent information on these facts, are they still tenable?"

Well, perhaps they are not; perhaps the value of the few facts available was over-estimated, bringing conclusions not altogether warranted. But there is no danger that Americans shall presently be without illusions, no matter how relentlessly science sets to work to convert beliefs into lost illusions. There is more danger in hanging on to some illusions a little too long. There is, to put the matter concretely, a real danger in clinging to the illusion that political problems will somehow right themselves; that in time the right men will come to the front of their own accord.

Such an illusion about the practical working out of democracy can not be got rid of too soon. However it was acquired, there is no basis for it in fact. Political problems can be righted only by those who take in their solution an active part. There is no illusion for which Americans pay more dearly than for the one prevalent in politics of letting "George do it." Democracy means political co-operation, and when a great number of people fail to cooperate, democracy must fail to function adequately. If the people want to make sure that the best man gets into office, they must take pains to find him and put him into office. Every other theory of democracy is illusion, and a costly one at that.

The HOOVER

It BEATS... as it Sweeps as it Cleans

Do you need to be urged?

Isn't it too bad that most women have to be urged to exchange their back-breaking, arm-tiring cleaning methods for a Hoover—the modern electrical home-cleaning servant?

Isn't it too bad that most women have to be urged to accept the leisure hours they have always wanted—the freedom from hard work—and at the same time obtain the cleanliness of rugs and furnishings in which they take such pride?

Surely, it shouldn't be necessary! If they only understood, as we do, what the Hoover would do for them, we couldn't keep them from owning it!

We hope that day comes soon. Maybe we can help your understanding by cleaning one of your rugs, free, with a Hoover. We're ready whenever you are. Just phone us.
