If a fellow can't afford a car, he can at least paste these stickers on the front window and sit before an electric fan.

The motorists who greet a highway cop with undue familiarity have probably just reduced from 45 to 30 miles per hour—and have to relieve strained nerves.

We're getting near the time when you have to have your auto lights adjusted according to the new state law—or "the traffic cops will get you if you don't watch out!"

Nothing will be a greater aid to good business this fall than the prospect for tax reduction planned by Coolidge when congress convenes. Reducing small income taxes to 1 per cent, surtaxes to 20 per cent, and corporation taxes to 10 per cent should attract much tax-free capital into active business enterprises again.

The Democrats are "crushing" the Republicans for stealing their economy program and taking all the credit. It's true that the minority party started the governmental economy crusade, and it is equally true that the Republicans have continued it (under Coolidge) with unabated vigor. Economy isn't a thing that should be peculiar to one party or the other; it should be peculiar only to good government. The government is a gigantic business at all times—and sensible economy is at all times good business.

HELP WANTED.

When the pioneers came into this land they asked no government aid. They knew that they must fell the forests and build houses before they could have farms and homes. It required initiative, industry and vision to foresee fields of growing grain and comfortable homes where the primeval forest held sway. But strong men with the love of land born in them did not hesitate to tackle the job. Each did for himself as far as he was able and asked no odds. Only when the task was too great for one alone was co-operation sought and help then was asked only that it might be given in time. When difficulties beset them they solved the problems themselves. They were self-reliant because they knew that on themselves depended success. Villages grew and became cities in response to conditions that demanded them. Whatever progress was made was due to the efforts of individuals working alone or in co-operation with others. Our forefathers had no delusions about work. They knew that nothing is accomplished without effort.

We appear to have gone far from the ideas of the pioneers. Too many people believe that there are shorter cuts to accomplishment than hard work coupled with good judgment. This, that and the other interest wants the government to do something. It is true that government can give encouragement to industry but the people themselves must act to gain the advantage of whatever inducements are offered. There is an element that believes that plenty of money would relieve the situation. Russia has more money than any land on earth, yet the people are starving. Too many people appear to have lost initiative and want help.

We need to return to fundamentals. We may talk and speculate but unless we get to work farms will not produce, homes will not arise on wooded lots and the wheels of the mills will not turn. Instead of looking to the lawmakers, Americans need look to themselves for accomplishments. We need a return of the initiative of our forefathers who did not know much about appealing to the government when they had troubles but did know a lot about how to work.

Hell is a condition brought about when a man begins working with another man's business.

All my today is better than a low tomorrow, said Ben Franklin, but that was before cold storage.

Just because the girls laugh at your remarks is no sign that you are witty. Perhaps they have better taste.

The reference, having played wifely with the Constitution, will probably start on the Ten Commandments next.

THE BARRIS' ERROR
When I was a boy I was a great admirer of I made in a moment of self-indulgence I called a spade a spade. It cost me many weary years and many broken hearts.

To learn to call the spade a spade is an improvement in a spade.

THE BROTHERS' SIN

A lot of white men understand a lot.

A man of liquid dynamite and you think the standing just hangs out of you.

Oh, who gives when white men say.

A man who repeats a line after he has said it is a fool.

A woman who repeats a man's affair is a fool.

Two small boys will keep away the chaps.

The hapless people are those who have nothing to worry about except death.

The things that make a woman happy often look foolish to a man.

Revenge is a dish best served cold and by your enemies. There is a monkey show at the monkey resort.

We wonder that one of the worst things that could happen to a teetotaler would be for him to break a leg.
