Skeletons of Japanese Sacrifice Victims Found

TOKYO, (AP)—Considerable interest is attached to the recent discovery beneath the corner stones of the Double-Bridge (main entrance to the Imperial Palace) of eight human skeletons. Most of the skeletons were found upright about twelve feet below the level of the Palace Moat, which is undergoing repair work necessitated by the earthquake of 1923.

The theory of some Japanese scientists is that the skeletons are the remains of persons who, several centuries past, offered themselves as "Human Pillars" for the immortalization of the corner-stones used in building the Edo Castle. The tradition of the "Human Pillars" is an old one in Japan. In the past age it was believed that if human beings

If It Can Be Done

An Observer Want Ad will do it quickly and economically. No matter what your want, if it can be found in the La Grande territory, a Want Ad will find it.

been buried alive beneath the cornerstones of great structures, the gods would accept permanent sacrifice and solidity to the foundations, and, in addition, those who thus sacrificed themselves, would become immortal. It was considered that those chosen as "Human Pillars" were greatly honored. They were buried alive in a standing position.

The "Human Pillars" recorded in Japan dates back to the reign of Emperor Nintoku, more than 1,500 years ago. The Yodo river in Osaka, where the emperor had his palace, used to overflow each year, drowning many people and causing much damage. Every dike built by the best engineers was unable to withstand the floods. One night the emperor dreamed that his soul had advised him that he would see human bodies as pillars

Dear friend, I want to give you a special... We have a very large deer and window trade all over the valley. Many builders are directed to us by people who tell them they can not do better. They either phone or leave their orders here without a word. They all are coming back which indicates satisfaction. Our commission last year was 10%. It is still 10%. We believe you will agree with us that we are the first ones in La Grande to sell building material on such a low margin. Let's keep the good work up, and see what we can do next.

Good Service

Good telephone service depends vitally upon care in calling telephone numbers. A wrong number called causes loss of time to you, to the party called, and to the operator.

Consult the current issue of the telephone directory. Give your number clearly, correcting the operator if she misunderstands your number.

for the construction of the embankment, there would be no more flood troubles. The water for an embankment immediately caused human beings to be buried alive beneath the foundation of the dike and, since then, the embankment has withstood all floods.

Lebanon Finishes Paving Job

LEBANON, Ore.—The first of three Lebanon street paving projects was completed. This is the Main street work and comprises the paving from the business section of the city to the city limits north and connects with the proposed improvement by the Highway Commission and Clark county of the Stanton highway on which work was begun this week.

The work on that improvement starts at the intersection of the Albany-Crabtree road and proceeds toward Lebanon.

La Grande Theatres

Fun and Thrills Many in "The Way of a Girl."

Eleanor Boardman makes her debut as a screen comedienne in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Way of a Girl," which opened last night at the Sherry theater for an engagement of two days. After appearing in such pictures as "Wife of the Centaur" and "So This is Marriage," Miss Boardman, in "The Way of a Girl," demonstrates her versatility by playing comedy with sparkling gaiety and nerve.

"The Way of a Girl" itself is a distinct addition to motion pictures. It is a unique combination of comedy and melodrama, and is enlivened with some of the most singular scenes on the screen in recent months.

For sheer beauty of photography we have seen nothing in recent months to compare with the prize fight scenes. Robert G. Vignola, the director, and his cameraman, John Arnold, are to be congratulated for the tremendous suggestion of great crowds given in the usual serious lighting.

Besides Miss Boardman, the cast includes Matt Moore, William Russell and Matthew Betz. "The Way of a Girl" was adapted by Albert Shelby LeVine from the novel by Katherine Swella Bart.

Comedy showing, "Toy in Blue."

Zane Grey Border Drama to Open At Star Friday.

"The Light of Western Stars," another of those clean, wholesome, typically American stories, for which Zane Grey is famous, has been filmed by Paramount under the direction of William K. Howard, the producer of that epic photoplay, "The Thundering Herd."

It will be the main feature at the Star theater where it opens Friday for a three days' run.

Picturo-goers, who have come to expect certain things in Zane Grey productions, will find them in overflowing measure in his latest colossal epic. "The Light of Western Stars" is a romance of the Arizona border where desperadoes clash with the sturdy Americans who are building up the great range country.

The story vividly pictures the men presenting Corinne Griffith last night of the hotel, had been in "The Marriage Whirl," her

BOY BELIEVED DROWNED

SALEM, Ore.—When Robert Sterrett, 15-year-old son of B. V. Sterrett, state parole officer, left two companions with whom he was swimming and walked on Mill creek, he had no idea his absence would cause his father great sorrow and disrupt the routine of the entire penitentiary. A report that young Sterrett was drowned was
