LABOR DEMAND IN OREGON IS STILL HEAVY

to its plant here. There are but few unemployed men, skilled or otherwise, in this city.

Seattle—Logging activity in several Puget Sound districts became more pronounced last week. The St. Paul & Tacoma Cattle Co. on the Klaskan line, out of Bellingham, resumed operations and fanners and buckers have been put to work at other camps in the Central Sound district. Merrill & Ring will resume logging during the present week, it is reported. Calls for forest fire fighters have ceased.

Spokane—Following a few days of rain forest fires have ceased to require more than small patrols of watchers, and many hundreds of men have been released from fire fighting work. A large majority of these, however, have hired out at the woods operations which are gradually resuming activity after enforced idleness. There are more available men in Spokane today than there have been for weeks. Advertisements for men and women to pick apples in the Yakima and Wenatchee valleys have begun to appear in local papers. The harvest will start next week. The demand for wheat harvest help is greater than the number of men applying for this kind of work.

BAND CONCERT GIVEN BEFORE LARGE CROWD

The selection was a pleasing number written in waltz time, "My Regards" by J. L. Moore. Mr. Lopez's execution was marvelous and it seemed that the cornet in his hands proved an instrument of unlimited possibilities. Smooth round tones and tripping runs and grace notes were executed with equal skill.

When the selection was finished the applause was deafening. Horns honked clamorously, hands clapped, some even whistled and stamped feet. For an encore Mr. Lopez played Ethelbert Nevin's well known composition, "The Rosary." This selection was also well played with accompaniment by the band. The full program of the concert, including encores follows:

Overture, "Pomp"—Ludwig; encore, "I'll Be You in My Dreams"; "Celebrated Minuet"—Faderewski; encore, "The Gate City"—Weldon.

Concert waltz, "Gold and Silver"—Lohar; encore, "Sally Trombone"—Intermission.

Cornet solo, "My Regards," Andrew Loney, Jr.; encore, "The Rosary"; Serenade, "The Old Church Organ"—Chamberlain; encore, "Swanee Buttery"; Patrol, "The Blue and Grey"; Descriptive and Romantic Fantasie, "A Summer Evening in the Alps"—Kling.

FUGITIVES DISCOVERED IN PORTLAND

through to Portland before daylight in the car appropriated at Monitor but the rising sun found them near the Newman place. Murray ordered the driver to stop there.

They wheeled the Newman automobile from the garage and drove there in, closing the door, leaving the Newman machine the only one in sight. Then they rapidly awakened the Newmans demanding food.

After eating and cleaning up they settled down to await the evening before continuing their flight. During the day they gave Newman a vivid account of the prison break.

Newman said that Murray was not seriously injured and that he joked about his wounds. The convicts all laughed and joked at their success in eluding the posse thus far.

The three fugitives, while telling Newman about prison said they emerged from the woods near Bixerton, passed the guards sleeping alongside the road, continued along this road to the railroad, and then proceeded to Monitor where they commandeered a car which took them to Newman's place.

"This is poison, I'm going to take it," he roared or roared over by some bull's gaze, he told Newman. He exhibited a small, worn bit of newspaper containing a bit of deadly drug. "Wilkes and I have agreed to reserve our last shots for ourselves," declared Murray.

Police said they were informed today that the convicts had friends here who would help them any way. The officers believe that the fugitives will hide in the city if possible until the chase has quieted down.

Railroad officials have called their special officers and all yards are heavily guarded to prevent the convicts from leaving the city. Detectives are searching the rooming houses in hope of uncovering the outlaws' hiding place in the city.

HOOD RIVER (AP)—Local officers hastily organized a posse today to guard the road between Portland and Hood River following the receipt of a message from Portland police that the three escaped convicts had been roving area about white traveling east over the department, Miss Carolyn Baumann, University of Washington; Miss Juanita May Van Horn, Nesbrank; Miss Ethel Dickford, University of Washington; Miss Ruby Dillon, College of Idaho and Miss Ruth A. Johnson, of Minnesota.

Word has been received here that Lester MacFarland, director of the high school athletics is on his way to La Grande and will arrive here shortly.

Indications at present are that the attendance at the high school will be slightly less than last year. The fall term in 1924 broke attendance records so the increase this fall is not expected to be large.

E. A. Sayre, county superintendent, reports that three new district school houses are now being built in Union county. These are located at Iyestam, northeast of Elgin, Palmer Junction and at Harbardsville, east of Alton. The Iyestam and Palmer Junction schools will be one room buildings and the Harbardsville will have two.

Repairs have been made on the Hillard, Shanghai and Cove schools during the summer.

The Cove and Island City schools have installed sanitary systems.

Miss Zilpha Allen, who was compelled to give up her school at Kamela last year on account of poor health, will again be teaching at Kamela this season, according to Mr. Sayre.
