start an immediate inquiry.
When the state investigator impounded the Mackinac's exhumed bodies they found it was an old one deteriorated by wear and stained down to certain places, said Mr. Holman. "What occurred at the time of the explosion was a capture of the plate in the cross drum extending from the right-hand side of the fire box to the center of the boiler, although of the longitudinal beam."
The longitudinal beam was very thin and the opening was six or seven inches wide, extending upward to the rear of the drum. It appeared that from time to time the boiler had been subjected to extensive repairs by the addition of new bolts and patches.

Only one of the victims was killed instantly by the blast of the boiler. He was Joseph Leville of Central Falls, a fireman. The others succumbed to burns or from inhaling steam.

Death Last Held Low.
Newport mariners tonight said the death list was extremely low in view of the fact that more than 700 excursionists were on board.

When the Mackinac was docked at Sullivan's wharf by a navy tug, crew guards were placed on board to keep everyone off the vessel pending the federal investigation.

Effects to confirm the report that the Mackinac's departure from Puget Sound was delayed yesterday while repairs were made on her boiler, failed today.

The Mackinac, built in 1909, is 162 feet long, 25.2 feet of beam and draws 12 feet of water. The hull is of steel structure.

DISCIPLINE HELD LAX IN INSTITUTION

little control over the convicts, and attempts by the deputy warden, principal keeper and others to discipline prisoners have been overruled by the warden.
Heads in Conflict.
Heads of the institution were in conflict, which was fully known to all around the prison and that guards and convicts even were betting at one time as to whether the warden or deputy warden would lose his job.
Herb "Oregon" Jones, killed in the break of last week, and Bill "North" Kelly, one of the fugitives now sought, were occupying a cell together, although they were partners in an escape a little over a year ago and were known to be constantly plotting another break.
Gangling goes on constantly among the prisoners with the knowledge and the sanction of the warden, and with the sanction of the warden, who ordered, it

Marne That Saved France to Supply A Big Wheat Crop

PARIS (AP).—The battlefields of the Marne, where the French and the British turned the tide of war seven years ago, will furnish a bumper crop of wheat this year. The Department of the Marne and the Eure were rated at the end of June at 98 in the official crop estimates, while 59 is exceedingly good and far above the average of recent years. Thirty-two of the 89 departments were rated at 80 to 85, yet government officials are warning whether they will not gain this year be obliged to import some wheat to meet ordinary requirements.

Agricultural experts say that while the crops look good, the rust has done much damage and that an early June estimate of 99,000,000 metric hundred weight or 224,000,000 bushels of wheat must now be reduced to about 238,000,000 bushels. France consumes about 225,000,000 bushels per year.

The harvest which began recently in some departments, is just in time to keep the mills going, the stocks on hand having been practically exhausted, so that if the agricultural experts are nearer right that the official crop judges, France will have to buy abroad nearly as much wheat as it imported last year. It is pointed out, however, that the agriculturalist is always inclined to pessimism and fair judges opine that while France may be a little short of her requirements she will not need as much grain from abroad as last year.

Boats Found Without Safeguards

MAINEFIELD, Ore.—A. W. Rosow, navigation inspector, found many violations of the law in this part of the county and Curry. He found two ferries without the required life preservers and several small boats without the necessary safeguards. The Bagnold ferry on Rogue river was not adequately protected nor was that at Scottsburg, in the way of fire and scotching, in apparatus.
