Billy Evans Says

BEATING RIVALS
The ability to beat the real contenders is what wins pennants. Pittsburgh leads in the National league because it has the edge on New York and Cincinnati, its two most dangerous rivals.

Washington is within striking distance of the Athletics because it has won nine of the 14 games played with the Athletics.

Eight games are still to be played between Philadelphia and Washington. These eight games will probably decide the pennant in the American league.

The Washington club makes no bones of the fact that remaining games with Philadelphia are the key to the championship. Manager Harris is confident his team is superior to the Athletics.

Over every other club except the world champions the Athletics hold the winning margin.

At present Pittsburgh looms the strongest in the National league, with little to choose between Philadelphia and Washington in the American.

remark a good offensive in the heat defense.

That hardly holds true in baseball where the defense and offensive strength play a somewhat equal part.

A good defense hinges largely around the infield of a team. Most major league clubs have capable outfields of nearly equal strength.

The margin of difference is far greater when making a comparison of the infields than the outfields.

Brilliant infields are a prominent factor in the pennant fight that is being made by Pittsburgh in the National and Washington in the American.

The infield combinations of these two clubs stand out as the best in the majors. The inner defenses of the Athletics and Giants are not far behind.

Bevins was in the final count in the Portland-Oakland game that ended with a double header yesterday, Portland winning the final game.

Portland now seems slated to end the season just about where she now holds forth in fifth place. It would take a tremendous effort to dislodge Los Angeles and a half game ahead and Portland would have to lose a lot to fall behind Oakland, nine and a half games to the rear. Expectations to finally have the pennant finished although a serious slump might give the Reds a chance to get down on the scale's sixth place lead.

Five full games ahead of the Giants the Pirates will leave New York today with the opposition temporarily crushed. Pittsburgh leaves to face a new menace at Boston score have flamed off last week but his Braves in a rally from the depths of last place to six victories in eight starts.

The schedule which has but six weeks to run will lend its aid to the Pirates. After the series at Boston and Philadelphia, they will return to the home grounds for the remainder of the season, except for two weeks with St. Louis and Cincinnati.

American Race Close
Smashing of the Philadelphia attack in the American at St. Louis and Chicago coupled with a determined push on the part of the Washington Senators throw the American league race into doubt again.

Third place teams in both circuits put on spurts without endangering second place tenants. Cincinnati lacked up dependable pitching by pouring heavy hitting valleys into the ranks of Pittsburgh.

Philadelphia and Boston clubs, while Chicago, without an abundance of hitters, brought enough safe flows out of the bag to win five of seven games.

Except for the unseating of the Athletics in the American there were no changes in the standings of either circuit.
