FAIRCHILD CLEW FOUND

BAKER, Ore., (Special)—A new clue on the death of A. H. Fairchild, whose body was found in the Snake river August 5, and whose death has since been a mystery, came to light when Russell Fairchild, a son, received a letter from Anna Brown of Homestead saying that Mr. Fairchild ate dinner there July 29, the day he left here.

TRACTOR FIRM FAVORS CITY

Recognition of La Grande as an attractive distributing point is indicated by the appointment of C. W. Bunting and associates of this city as dealer for caterpillar tractors for a large area. The new arrangement puts La Grande on the same plane as Seattle, Portland and Spokane in the program of the Caterpillar Tractor company.

The Caterpillar Tractor company is successor to both the C. L. Best Tractor company and The Holt Manufacturing company, pioneer builders of the tracklaying tractor. Several months ago much interest was aroused when the report was given out that Pierce, Fair & Company, San Francisco bankers, had purchased the control of both of the large firms. Rumors of all descriptions flew thick and fast in financial and business circles. The final announcement that the two firms would be merged into one large corporation brought forth the statement of prominent financial writers that the transaction was as important to the Pacific Coast as the Dodge Brothers automobile sale was to the east.

Big Territory

The territory included in the new La Grande dealership consists of Union, Wallowa and Baker counties in Oregon and the entire State of Idaho, excepting the portion north of the Salmon river.

Five models of tractors will be marketed by the new company. These include the caterpillar 2-ton, 5-ton and 10-ton sizes formerly manufactured by the Holt Manufacturing company, and the trackbayer '20' and '60' formerly made by the C. L. Best Tractor company. Parts will be supplied and service furnished by the new company, through its dealers, for all models previously sold by the two companies.

Mr. Bunting is busily engaged in getting a new organization together to handle his increased territory and the new models he will sell. His plans call for enlarged offices and office personnel, a tractor sales room, increased facilities for handling repairs and a number of salesmen to cover the outside territory. The new firm will be known as the Bunting Tractor company.

HUGE DAHLIA PRODUCED

PENDLETON, Ore. — Dan P. Smythe of Pendleton, well known as one of Oregon's biggest wool and mutton producers, claims a record for one of his prize dahlias. The bloom of one flower, a Siskiyou, measured between 12¾ and 13 inches in diameter. Its coloring was pink, tinged with mauve.

The production of dahlias is a hobby with the sheep man, and he has about $1000 invested in the bulbs in his private garden. In addition to dahlias he has hundreds of gladioli and other flowers growing in the rest of the lot at his home on Jackson street.

And some of those divorce suits being pressed should have been sent to the cleaner first.

Peach History To-Date

Car No. 1

OUR FIRST CAR OF SNAKE RIVER PEACHES LASTED NOT QUITE TWO DAYS. THIS WAS THE FINEST CAR OF PEACHES EVER RECEIVED IN LA GRANDE.

They were especially selected for THE HOOVERIZED—the first car of the season, and the largest and best colored fruit off the trees from this famous orchard. The selection of this lot was so perfect that this car contained not a single box of peaches less than 55 to the box. Most of them were 40 and 45 to the box. This was exceptional since it is known that a great portion run 70 and 80 to a box. The price at which THE HOOVERIZED sold this car—box, $1.58; 5 boxes, $1.53—was the lowest price such quality of fruit could possibly be sold for.

Car No. 2

Was received in La Grande today and is now on sale. While the quality of this fruit is A-1, it does not average as well in size or color as the first car. However, we highly recommend it for canning, as the smaller fruit means more weight in box. These extra size boxes weigh several pounds more than most other peaches, and accordingly your peaches cost less per pound. This lot, any quantity, per box.....$1.45

Car No. 3

Will arrive at THE HOOVERIZED soon. Possibly will be the last car of the season. Better can a few more boxes. Market information advises all canned fruits will positively be higher this winter, and there is no comparison of quality. Send your order in today. Extra delivery service for canning orders.
