Italian Queen as Baby Began Mother Duties

ROME (AP)—Discarding the duties of a mother with a victor recently, Queen Helena told her great that she had always been a mother. "When I was a baby," said the queen, "I mothered my dolls, having them, bringing them up and educating them as though they were living creatures. As a young girl, I was a mother to my youngest brother. When he was born my mother was seriously ill, and the infant was turned over to me. I did more for him than I did for my own children, because for them I had the aid of nurses."

Queen Helena recalled a story of the crown prince when a toddler told her that the youngster had been crying and quickly dried his tears when his mother invited him to aid her in a minor domestic task. "Now you are a fine little man," said the queen to her now smiling son. "And to think just a little while ago you were crying like a naughty child."

"Oh, mother," replied little Humboldt, "that was not I crying, it was another little boy."

The Seine and the Thames have been linked together by an experimental flight of a French plane from the heart of Paris to London. It is planned to eliminate the straits and save an hour's time and considerable expense by having planes directly in the heart of the cities.

Billy Evans Says

VETERANS PASS. Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Americans recently gave more evidence of his intention to repeat next year by passing along two of his veterans to Washington.

The players who went to the world classic over the vaiver route were Outfielder Bob Veach and Pitcher Alex Ferguson.

No doubt Manager Huggins of Washington figures these players may help in the pennant drive by strengthening the club in batting and pitching.

The defense of the Nationals is all that could be desired. An added punch at the bat could be used. The hard-hitting Veach may help here.

Since the opening of the season the Washington pitching has been a question mark. Ferguson has always been a touch-out for the Nationals to crack. Substantly that "ironhorse" Harris in claiming him.

Both Philadelphia and Washington retained Jack Quinn when Boston asked for waivers. The Athletics got him. At the present writing the two-centre lead enjoyed by the Jacksons might be credited to the fact that the wind registered by Quinn.

It is apparent in the drive down the home streets, neither Washington nor Philadelphia is going to overtake a single bet that might enhance pennant chances.

VEACH'S JINX

The case of Outfielder Bob Veach is a most peculiar one. It would be a just amount happening if he finally topped with a pennant winner at the end of his career.

Five or six years ago the New York Americans made many overtures for Veach's services. It was generally known that he was not in favor in Detroit and that a trade for him was possible.

At that time Veach was one of the outstanding sluggers of the league and it was believed that he would not only add a batting punch but prove a big gate attraction for New York.

For some reason the two clubs could never agree on the deal and Veach limped with the Tigers until sold to the Boston Red Sox two years ago.

Had Veach landed with the Yankees when that club was hot after him he would have had the good fortune to share in three world series. Instead he got nothing.

Last winter the Yankees finally secured him and it seemed Veach was about to get a good break financially. Then New York proceeded to collapse and pick a spot in the second division.

Going to Washington at this time injured Veach of a piece of change, as the Nationals are certain to be either one-two.

Best Playing Ponies Get Association Medals

CHICAGO (AP)—Fifty-nine bronze medals have been awarded by the Horse Association of America to the best playing ponies in clubs affiliated with the United States Polo association, the association announced here today. Twelve went to horses playing with army teams and 47 to horses playing with civilian teams and clubs.

A committee of polo players selected the best playing pony of the season, judging entirely on performance and without attention being paid to breed or type.

Stephen Sanford of Long Island was the only man who had two ponies good enough to win medals this year. Five of the winners were developed by Fred Post, Westbury, Long Island, bred by W. D. Meadows of San Antonio; three by E. B. Jenson of Boyce, Virginia; and Frank Small of Hamilton, Mass. Col. Jacobs, William Anson of San Angelo, Tex., and Earle Hopkins of New York, each selected and trained two of the medal winners.

An analysis showed that Texas furnished more polo ponies. Twenty-one of the 59 were known to have been from Texas. Of the 16 on which no information was available, a number probably were from that state. Virginia ranked second with six ponies. Nine other states and Argentina, Canada and England furnished the remaining sixteen.

Because of the need of weight carrying polo mounts the height limit was abolished several years ago, but no marked increase in size was evident so far as the medal winners were concerned. Thoroughbred blood dominated in the winners, although many traced on the dam's side to a quarterhorse, bronco or mustang foundation.

Secret Fatalities in London Increase 41 in Three Months

LONDON (AP)—The streets of London are getting more dangerous as the quarterly statement of the number of deaths from accidents issued by the commissioner of police in any criterion. During April, May and June this year 228 people were killed or died from injuries received in street accidents.

This death-toll is higher by 41 than that for the previous three months. The total number of street accidents during the quarter was 25,442, compared with 17,816 during January, February and March, and a quarterly average during 1924 of 26,744.

O'DOUL CLINGS TO HIS LEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. (By the Associated Press).—Although suffering a loss of eight points at the hands of Seattle's pitchers, "Lefty" O'Doul, by choice of the Salt Lake Bees, continues to lead Pacific Coast league batting by an easy margin. Unofficial figures including games of Saturday show a batting average of .412 per cent for the Bees outfielder.

Paul Wagner of the Seals, second high man with an average of .399 and Frank Brasch, Seattle, is next with .396.

"Hack" Miller of the Oakland club is leading the outfield with .384; high leads the Portland Beavers with .381 and Twoombly sets the pace for the Angels with .376. An average of .291 gives Davis first honors with the Senators, and Warner, with .297 leads the Vernon Tigers.

Tony Lazzeri has a four lead in the home run department, having garnered a total of 25. Bram and Kolover, Portland, the lead for extra base hits with 25 each. In the stolen base column Lazzeri also leads with 26 stolen bases.

Hummelfield, Portland, has 22 and Lane, Seattle, 28.

Team fielding: San Francisco .967; Portland .964; Los Angeles .942; Seattle .942; Vernon .937; Salt Lake .932; Oakland .931; Sacramento .931.

Team batting: Salt Lake .330; San Francisco .322; Seattle .309; Portland .295; Los Angeles .291; Oakland .279; Sacramento .279; Vernon .265.
