Curio Hunters Loot Blimp Wreck

If a company of the Ohio national guard had not been called out to remove the wreckage, the debris would have had little chance of being removed. A few hours later it would have been scattered by the thousands to view the wreckage. Curio hunters at once started to pick up everything that could be removed, including parts of radio sets, pieces of the silver canvas, furniture and utensils aboard the ship and even big gears. Here are three men taking away all they can carry.

Mariners Blink As Derelick Roams The Sea For Two Years

WASHINGTON — Men who go down to the sea in ships are speculating about the early appearance in West Indian waters of one of the most noted derelicks of modern times. While the navy department's hydrographic office considers it unusual in these days of rapid radio communication and special coast guard patrol for a derelick to remain afloat longer than a week, the four-masted British lumber-laden schooner Governor Parr has been looting the high seas for nearly two years. The last definite report received of the schooner was in 1923.

In 1923 the marriage of Mr. Imbler and Miss Mary Smith, a native of Missouri, whose parents were early settlers of this state, was solemnized and to them were born four children; Jessie, deceased, Clara, Bessie and Lester. Mr. Imbler died in 1880 and is buried in Summerville cemetery where he will be laid to rest. In 1882 Mr. Imbler contracted a second marriage, the lady of his choice at this time being Miss Mattie Copeland, a native of Arkansas and to them was born one child, Mattie. Mrs. Imbler died in 1884 and her remains also lie in the Summerville cemetery. In 1888 Mr. Imbler married a third time, the lady who became his wife being Emma L. Warner, a native of Idaho, and they had one child, the C. & O. Lumber company.

Edward Imbler was a scout in Joseph Indian war and fraternally he was associated with the Masons at Summerville and with the I. O. O. F. lodge No. 123, at Elgin, Ore.

moved to Wallawa county, located nine miles northeast from Enterprise.

Following his father's death, Edward sold the property and returned to Elgin county, purchasing a farm near Cove.

Most of the data compiled in the investigation was removed for future disclosure, but the section of the report made public tonight contained two sets of figures:

One summarized the responses to a questionnaire sent out to members of the National Conference of Social Work, a majority of whom reported that conditions in the homes of the poor had improved in various ways under prohibition, that children's delinquency was decreasing, and that liquor was less accessible than formerly to minors, but that drinking among young people had increased as compared to pre-prohibition times and general respect for law had decreased.

The report, other sections of which are to be made public only over the coming week, was prepared under the direction of the Rev. F. Ernest Johnson, head of the Federal Council's Research and Education Department. In a foreword, he declared the study had been undertaken in order to give a "fair appraisal," unbiased by personal opinion, and uninfluenced by the great mass of current literature which had emanated from biased sources.

ported off the coast of Portugal and in October last off the coast of Africa, near the Canary Islands.

If the Governor Parr has continued to remain afloat, men conversant with oceanic conditions believe she would likely be carried by the northeast trade winds and the north equatorial current across the tropical North Atlantic and probably will be next sighted near the lesser Antilles.

England and the United States jointly patrol the North Atlantic ocean for derelicks, but naval men point out that these are hard to sight. Often derelicks are mistaken for the former craft turn turtle, their hulls being covered with barnacles and seaweed, giving them the color of the sea.

An old American warship, the Katahdin, which boasted of an underwater prow, was used in the latter part of the last century to ram derelicks, because she was enabled by peculiar construction to sink close to these menaces to navigation.

The General use of radio has revolutionized the dissemination of information concerning derelicks. Urgent notice of menacing derelicks forwarded to the hydrographic office by the captain of a boarded her, setting her afire, vessel is almost immediately broadcast through the radio senders, for later she was re-
