Twinkle, twinkle, little eyes, looking thoughtful and so wise, like a couple of mince pies.

"Let's see. What in the world will I put in my ad today? Oh, yes. The farmers are just climbing over themselves to get these ten carloads of rough lumber at $13 per M. Our ad came out just once and yesterday there was a string of farmers hauling large loads of rough lumber. Some were going to build hog fences, chicken houses, hog houses, machine sheds and cow barns. Remember that we are selling the Kemmerer No. 5 and Rainbo coal. We are getting good reports from our new customers already. The test of the pudding is in eating it, you know." We thank the people of this country for their loyal support and we appreciate their orders whether it be a 3c can of paint or a complete house order. Good-bye, dear friends, we are awful busy.

Too Late To Classify:—A carload of Star-A-Star Shingles and a carload of Kemmerer Big Lump arrived today.

"The Diamond Bandit" Shows at Sherrys Today Only

"The Diamond Bandit," an Arrow picture at the Sherry theater today only, promises a good evening's entertainment.

Ashton Dearholt who is rapidly becoming a screen favorite, again has the role of "Pinto Pete," the chivalrous bandit who roams the countryside with a snake-like bull whip which is the terror of all evil-doers.

He handles the dual role of an idler in the daytime, whose chief occupation is seemingly to play his guitar, and that of the good bandit who nightly righs the wrongs of the poor, exceedingly well. How he turns the tables on the bullying commandante, is proclaimed governor and marries the "Mission Waif," makes a plot which is intensely original and interesting all the way through.

Supporting him is Florence Gilbert, and she is decidedly captivating as the "Mission Waif."

Comedy showing, "Tin Can Alley."

Director Says Barthelmess Is Greatest Actor

Richard Barthelmess, who comes to the Arcade theater today in his newest production, "Shore Leave," is looked upon by many screen authorities as the leading actor of the films. Among those who hold to this opinion is John S. Robertson, who directed the young star in "Shore Leave" and seven of his previous picture productions.

Robertson has watched Barthelmess at close range for several years, and he ought to know.

"I am quite confident," says the director, "that no young actor in the films today has the infinite promise of Richard. If anybody in the whole world of the photoplay seems sure to do infinitely big things, that person is Barthelmess.

"No actor in the whole range of the shadow drama has made such steady progress. Each picture has revealed a steady and sure development. Ge gave great performances in 'Classmates,' in 'New Toys' and in 'Soul-Fire,' but I believe the biggest thing of his whole career to date is his delightful performance as the sailor, 'Bilge' Smith in 'Shore Leave.' Here is work that will stamp him as a fine and sure comedian."

Horse Feared as Killer Now Happy Movie Star

Rex, the princely wild horse who is starred in "Black Cyclone," the Hal Roach Pathe feature showing today at the Star theater, made himself known to the world in one picture, his first. That was "The King of Wild Horses," a sensation in 1924.

The story of Rex's discovery and regeneration has almost the character of a miracle. Hal Roach heard of a horse named "Casey Jones," the terror of a section of Colorado, who had finally been put in chains in a locked stall. A death sentence hung over him. His location was near the birthplace of "Chick" Morrison, now dead, but at that time active with his brother, Carl Morrison, in training horses for pictures.

Roach instructed Morrison to investigate, with the result that "Casey Jones" was taken out of prison, given a new name, and, as Rex, the king of wild horses, brought into a new phase of life through treatment which met the requirements of his sensitive, highly-strung nature. Carl Morrison now is training him, taking the place of his brother.

Fred Jackman, who made "The King of Wild Horses" in Colorado, took Rex to Nevada and, in the heart of the hill country, remote from civilization, directed him with a cast including Geinn Williams, Kathleen Collins and Christian Frank in "Black Cyclone."

Although still wild in temperament, permitting only a few men to ride him, Rex has lived down his record of one man killed and one injured, and, in his new work for mankind, has done much to enlighten and delight audiences of old and young alike.

Rewards for Revealing Bandit's Hiding Place Enrich Bulgarian

HASKOVO, Bulgaria (AP)—Dimo Marcheff, a goat herder, has become a rich man for revealing to the police the mountain hiding place of Mitu Ganeff, notorious chief of a robber band. Marcheff had been one of the bandit's victims for a long time, being obliged to furnish food and other supplies. Consequently, it afforded him great pleasure to guide the police to Ganeff's hiding-place.

As a reward the ministry of the interior presented Marcheff with 40,000 lire; the district of Haskovo gave him 200 sheep and a money reward, and the community of Susam has set aside a site, upon which the villagers will build a house for him.

Australian States Want their Governors to Be Native Born

SYDNEY, N. S. W. (AP)—The several states of Australia have decided that in the future they want only native born Australians as state governors. A memorial is being prepared by New South Wales, as the mother state, asking the home authorities for the appointment in the future of Australian-born citizens to governorship posts.
