girls under 16 in the needlework department. Vivian Dodson, Elgin, 13, prizes a blue ribbon hanging from a bright-colored cloth and napkins. Leah Lumper, the same age, has a first prize pair of pillow slips and a colored pillow top. Jean Denham, Elgin, won first prize with a laundry bag, an apron and a towel. Betty Halgarth, who is only 9, exhibited glass towels and won a prize. Two of the youngest exhibitors, Rose Marie and Agnes Hazen, 8 and 6 respectively, are happy to find white ribbons on their dolly bed spreads.
 Lawrence Falloway, one of the few boys who competed in the flower show, had his water lily red-tagged yesterday.
 Elgin has its Pendleton, which promises good entertainment once it gets started. Most of the features dragged a bit yesterday, though Ruben Hogg, of Union, on Montana and William Bryant, of Kamela, on Let's Go, gave exhibitions of broncho-busting skill that were first class. Matt Boswell and Ella Sommer found favor with the judges in the saddle pony contest that preceded the races.

FAIR ON AT HILLSBORO

HILLSBORO, Ore.—The first annual Washington county fair was formally opened by Governor Pierce. The exhibit covers all of the county's resources and industries. Tomorrow is Forest Grove day and Friday will be Hillsboro day.

needlework lovers. A first prize for Italian cutwork went to Mrs. J. M. Donahue, who is Mrs. Houghton's partner in the local Art and Baby shop.
 Housekeeping reputations of long standing were looked on with anxious eyes by many a matron when ribbon after ribbon went to Ruth Bibber, 14, yesterday. Ruth worked all vacation; she has worked in domestic science since school started, and she has had at least hours for a week, putting on the finishing touches that assured her triumph. Her blue ribbons floated from lozaphery jam, cookies, candies, doughnuts, an embroidered centerpiece, a dish towel, a braided rug, bouquets of sweet peas and sunflowers. She took second prizes for dried apples, grape jam, grape jelly, canned tomatoes, canned ferns, canned asparagus, and for light bread.
 A woman in crochet was the bed spread made by Mrs. Duvors, of Kansas City, after her sixtieth birthday, and shown by her daughter, Mrs. Tom Baird, of Elgin.
 Mrs. Katherine Zweifel, of Elgin, who is past 80, was delighted to find a blue ribbon on her box of old-fashioned flowers. She has won many first prizes in many departments during her 55 years as a resident of Union county.

Overgrown vegetables feature the community and farm displays. There are cabbages you can hardly carry, and squashes and pumpkins that you can't begin to lift. The potatoes make a good appearance, but are not abundant—about enough for county consumption, in the opinion of the farmers.
 The grain show is not large, but satisfactory in the quality of the exhibits. Some of the specimens outrank those of former fairs, and will be taken to Enterprise to compete with the crops of Wallowa farmers. J. A. Gaskill, Imbler, won a blue ribbon on his Hybrid 125. Hard Federation, and on an exhibit of barley. E. D. Jasper has prize-winning eye. Luther Hindman took the honors in oats. First place for hard winter wheat goes to Rev. Hooper of Elgin. B. E. Slack of Summerville, took first in soft spring wheat with a bushel of Soft Federation.
