cash balance of $213,053. In the field of its work, the report said, the federation was now finding that "it has to meet different projects and a different type of opposition from employers who oppose the trade union movement." This new opposition involves the building up of "company unions," and the interesting of employees in the ownership of industry, along with the provision of group insurance. As to the union movement, the report said that studies had been undertaken, while it called upon labor banks and investment organizations to safeguard savings of union members.

"Labor is now taking steps to enable workers to secure cheap but adequate insurance protection by ways other than through the beneficence of employers," the report continued. "A number of international unions authorized a committee to organize the Union Labor Life Insurance company to be controlled by trades unions and to furnish insurance at reasonable rates sharing the profits of the undertaking with the policy holders.

"The labor banks represent an effort on labor's part to supplement the service rendered by the union through further mobilization and controlled usage of the earnings and economic resources of the wage earners. The federation advises caution with regard to labor banks. Labor banks must be doubly sure of their expert advice because they have greater handicaps than the usual bank which is not seeking to give the rank and file of labor those inside banking profits and advantages that are usually reserved for the privileged few.

"We recommend that unions contemplating banking undertakings proceed with the greatest caution and that they secure the experience of previous undertakings in this field to guide them and that they secure the services of the best experts available. The federation is now engaged in making a survey of labor banks."

"Cooperation between union organizations and managements in organized labor industry, the report said, was possible after collective bargaining had been fully recognized.

Believes in Production.
"There is an important service that the union can render," it was said on this point, "that of participating in finding better methods of production economies. A group of workers cannot enter into this type of cooperation unless they know the results of their work will not be used to their disadvantage. There must be mutual confidence and that stability that makes possible future planning. We recommend that the federation keep in touch with the procedure and data necessary to union-management cooperation."

In the broad political field, the report said that the federation would follow up the policy decided on at El Paso, of sticking to non-partisan advocacy of candidates and measures which meet the opinions of its members.

THOMPSON TO RUN.

PORTLAND, Ore. (By the Associated Press)—W. L. Thompson, vice-president of the First National bank of Portland, and formerly of Pendleton, has announced conditionally that he would be a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator. The condition attached was that he would enter the race formally if he continued within the next ten days, to receive support in the same proportion as in the last two weeks.

MINISTER SAYS SECRET OF CAREFREE LIFE IS IN GOD

CHICAGO (By the Associated Press)—The secret of a carefree life is to put it in line with God's purposes, declared Dr. Henry Howard of Melbourne, Australia, in an address on "Don't Worry," opening the nineteenth session of the Sunday Evening club. "Christ's cure for a worried life is explained in His words: 'Be ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added to you.'" Dr. Howard said, "You are who you stand up to. If you have felt the worry, stress and strain. But the way out from worry does not lie along the line of escape from work. "The birds and flowers to which Christ referred as carefree, are among the busiest of God's creatures. The work translated 'toil' does not mean 'worry,' but plus worry. First of all stand right with Him. This will swing life into harmony by putting it on the rails of God's permanent way, and everything life needs will come along the lines of fulfilled relations to Him as Master and Lord."

Postmaster Case Up.
The authority of congress to restrict the power of the president to remove officials appointed to offices created by it, also must be decided. This case was brought by a former postmaster at Portland, Oregon, removed during the Wilson administration. Decision as to whether the Six Nations Indians are independent sovereigns within the United States is expected soon.

There will be a call today of all cases on the original docket in which states are parties, for the purpose of eliminating those which are not prosecuted with reasonable diligence. Substantially one-half of these cases have been open since for years to retain jurisdiction to enforce court decisions. One by Georgia would prevent the destruction of vegetation of sulphurous fumes from the Tennessee Copper and other plants in Tennessee. Five were brought by New York to prevent pollution of harbor waters.

On the original docket are a number of boundary disputes between states including proceedings by Massachusetts as claimant to lands in Rochester, N. Y., by Wisconsin, in which several other like states want to join against the sanitary district of Chicago, and by New Jersey against the Federal Water Power commission.

Several motions for rehearing in cases decided last term are pending, the more important being two by the government which seek Sherman anti-trust suits against the Maple Flooring and Lumber Manufacturers' associations.

Among the 523 cases carried over and on many of which decisions are expected during this term, are those involving the validity of the sale of German dye patents to the Chemical Foundation; constitutionality of the California syndicalism law and the Arizona minimum wage law for women; equality of the Montana gasoline tax law; and the constitutionality of the California occupational tax law.

Cases filed during the recess of the court included one by the Kansas City Southern to test the interstate commerce commission's valuation of its assets. Several others were filed to test the legality of the government's methods in various phases of income tax assessment and collection.

Partial List of Cases.

A list of the cases awaiting decision includes those involving these questions: The validity of the Utah law making insurance companies liable for accident insurance policies in cases of suicide. The validity of the Alaska excise tax imposed on salmon canning industry.

Validity of prohibition search warrants issued upon information and not upon evidence obtained through the personal investigation of prohibition agents, brought from Cleveland.

Whether physicians may prescribe at one time more than one dose of narcotics, raised by Dr. A. W. Boyd of eastern Tennessee. The right of owners to cancel real estate leases when the property is used in the violation of the prohibition laws, raised by James Dugan of New York City.

Whether an automobile being purchased on the installment plan can be seized when used for the transportation of liquor, coming from Alabama. Whether the combined income from community property can be taxed by the government, in a case from California.
