OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE

Monsters Star In Conan Doyle Film, "The Lost World"

A whole flock of new stars are soon to arrive in La Grande in an attempt to steal honors from the reigning queens and sheiks of filmdom.

The visitors are Messrs. Brontosaurus, Triceratops, Megalosaurus, Allosaurus, Trachodon and Diplodocus. For the benefit of those who might not recognize these new film aspirants, it is announced that they are members of the Dinosaur family, prehistoric monsters of pre-pre-prohibition days, who, according to scientists, should have passed out of the picture ten million years ago.

The ladies and gentlemen with the "prehistoric" demeanors are scheduled to make their appearance at the Arcade Theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday in important roles in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's fantastic story of love and adventure, "The Lost World," which was produced for the screen by First National and Watterston R. Rothacker under the supervision of Earl Hudson.

Their opponents for stellar honors in the film are Hattie Love, Lloyd Hughes, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery and several other notable screen personalities, who are the rulers of explorers who find these terrifying reptiles of long ago in a land which time forgot.

"My Wife and I" Features Fantastic, Fascinating Triangle

In "My Wife and I," the attraction at the Sherry theater, Warner Bros. have again proven their almost uncanny intuition when it comes to choosing material for photoplays. This time they have taken a story by Harriet Beecher Stowe and achieved a picture that literally breathes the exotic flavor of romance, intrigue and drama.

"My Wife and I" weaves its fascinating and fantastic way around a unique triangle that actually has four points—a father and son both fighting for the love of a naughty little creature of the primrose path, with the gracious mother and wife waiting, waiting, waiting... Irene Titch, in the role of Mrs. Borden, is a beautiful figure of ripe womanhood, whose love for husband and son is threatened by the decadent life of younger, more glittering charms. She is beset by heartbreak despair and then, as a final touch, she faces the evil passion of her husband's friend.

Mrs. Borden is a beautiful figure of ripe womanhood that is suddenly swept by a strange yearning for youth and its complement—romance. The colorful part of Stuart Borden, the spoiled son of a wealthy father, is portrayed by John Harron with sincerity and considerable snap. John Roche, Constance Bennett, Tom Ricketts and Clare de Lorez make up the balance of the excellent cast.

"My Wife and I" is a real classic of the screen and we owe Warner Bros. a vote of thanks for their unflinching neck of hitting the nail on the head when it comes to pleasing motion picture entertainment that is wholesome.

"Comedy showing, "Giddap."

A bitter range feud, caused by the age-old wrangle between cattle and sheep ranchers, provides the setting for William Desmond's latest Blue Streak Western starring vehicle, "The Burning Trail," which is being shown at the Star theater today and Thursday.

In this fast moving story of the range Desmond is seen in a number of his unusual and striking characteristics, this time as a wandering cook who goes from ranch to ranch.

How he becomes a central figure in a war between two adjoining ranches for the daughter of the rancher for the daughter of the other complicating affairs, makes an exciting thriller as any seen by patrons of the Star theater in many months.

The war between the opposing factions, half dramatic and half comic, provides the highlights of the story, with a human heart interest thread woven throughout the plot.

A diverting comedy touch has been injected into the picture with Desmond's system of keeping account of the various jobs he does by asking his employer to shoot a hole in his hat as soon as he is discharged.

Desmond, careless though he is, brings peace between the warring factions, and finds at last one job which he can hold permanently—with a wife in addition.

Mary Meloy is a pleasing leading lady, with Helene Roussin, Jack Dougherty, Edmund Cobb and Jim Corry ably supporting, under Arthur Rosson's direction.

A comedy and news are also on the program.

Old Folks Made New

"It is now five months since I took a course of your medicine for gas and stomach trouble and I am feeling entirely well. My friends all tell me I am looking 20 years younger and I certainly feel as they say. I am recommending Mary's Wonderful Remedy to all ailing with stomach and liver trouble." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and at the same time stimulates the digestive organs practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including constipation. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all drug stores.—Adv.
