MILTON TEAM WINS EASILY

PENDLETON, Ore. (Special to The Observer).—The Pendleton Buckaroo team was sunk, scattered and swamped at Milton Saturday afternoon by the team, little ship Bruno Plicker. The McLaughlin union high school's gridiron team had some long range guns that barked steadily throughout the contest which finally wound up in the dark with the Milton lads on the long end of a 59-12 score.

Pendleton showed a lot of fight but their attack was nullified by the Milton defense and the Buckaroos in the main were powerless against the onrushes of the clever and powerful McLaughlin backs.

The first quarter opened with a rush and when the smoke from the heavy firing was settled the score board read Milton 21, Pendleton 13. Milton pounded away steadily at the Pendleton defenses and scored on steadily throughout the game. Several times Milton's defense by the Buckaroos cost Milton the ball within scoring distance.

Milton showed a wonderful offense with a well balanced backfield. Hifford and Karker appeared to be the outstanding stars of the Milton attack and ran the ball with equal efficiency.

Pendleton's touchdown came early in the first quarter just after Milton had scored two and kicked two goals. Halverson scored the first when he recovered a fumble in midfield and the second came as the result of a long pass, Hutton to Halverson, but the pigskin on the one yard line.

Estel Cumming, Pendleton's left end, was kicked in the face, a long cut resulting, but Cumming continued in the game.

Billy Evans Says

GREAT SHORTSTOPS.
Great shortstops make for pennant-winning ball clubs. In the Pittsburgh-Washington world series the two best shortstops in the game are vying for supremacy.

One is Glenn Wright, the brilliant youngster, who has not yet reached his greatest heights. The other is Roger Peckinpaugh, the veteran, who is now at the very peak of his fame.

Wright is just coming, while Peckinpaugh is about ready to start to fade from the picture.

Prior to the series I listened to daily tales of the great Taylor, the respectable Traynor and all the other "old" stars of the Pirates.

After watching the club in the first two games of the world series, Glenn Wright is to me by far the most impressive of the youthful Pirate stars.

Unless I am mistaken, Wright, in not more than two years will be the outstanding star among the shortstops of the two major leagues.

Wright has poise, speed, grace, brains and the ability to hit just about as well as he fields. What more could you ask of a shortstop?

REGULATION FIELDS.
The crying need of baseball is a regulation field.

By a regulation field I mean the same amount of territory for play, infield and outfield.

The bases are the same, 90 feet apart, on every ball ground, but it would be a different matter to find any two outfields in all the United States that had exactly the same measurements. Short outfields, making for easy home runs, are sooner or later going to make a joke out of the game.

I have reference to the world series games in particular. Few major league parks have any more regular playing space than they need. In the big series these limited fields are further curtailed by the addition of temporary seats to take care of the vast throngs who desire to see the big show.

In all of our parks were secured, and of these, five were circuit drives. Not one of the home runs would have been registered on the regular playing field at Pittsburgh.

As a matter of fact, Cuyler's home run, which decided the second game, the flukiest home run of all, was the hardest hit ball of the five.

The other five drives would have been caught for fairly easy outs, but Cuyler's drive would have been good for at least a double, possibly a triple.

It is all very fine to take care of the additional spectators, but when doing so tends to burlesque the game, it becomes a serious handicap. All clubs are equal offenders in this respect. A gin stumpy, citing the Pittsburgh situation as a concrete example.

SALEM TO BE HONORED.
SALEM, Ore.—As a mark of respect to the memory of Lieutenant Colonel John F. Williams, Oregon national guard, who died at Eugene, Brigadier General George A. White, commander of the Oregon military units, issued an order requiring that flags on all state armories be displayed at half-mast Wednesday, the date set for the funeral services.

The military record of Colonel Williams dates back to the year 1813, when he entered the service as a private. He advanced steadily through the various grades until he reached the rank of lieutenant-colonel. For a period during the world war he served as acting adjutant-general of the state.

A number of military officers will attend the funeral.

PRISONER IS EX-CONVICT.
SALEM, Ore.—It was learned here that Harold Cotto, one of the three men arrested Thursday charged with having burglarized homes in their possession, previously served a term in the Oregon state prison.

Cotto was received at the prison from Lane county March 24, 1925, to serve one year for larceny. He was paroled August 4. Officers said that Ellroy, another member of the trio served a term in prison under another name.

George Green, who was with Cotto and Ellroy at the time of their arrest, was released.

Officials to Discuss Traffic.
SALEM, Ore.—Sam A. Noser, secretary of state, and T. A. Rafferty, state traffic officer, left for Sacramento, Cal., where they will confer with the officials there regarding traffic regulations. They later will spend a few days in San Francisco.

Andy's Bears In Action

Football critics are picking the University of California Bears to win the Pacific Coast conference grid championship again this year. Coach Andy Smith, the man who has turned out five successive champions at Berkeley, offers a few of his stars for your approval. Look 'em over closely because these are the boys who will make the Golden Bear growl this season.

Eastern Teams Outplay Midwestern Elevens

NEW YORK (By the Associated Press).—The football supremacy which the middle west has won for a broad share of the past few seasons due largely to winning ability of such wandering warriors as those of Notre Dame and Marquette, is now reeling on rugged eastern shoulders.

Some of the most notable inter-sectional engagements still are to be played with Pennsylvania holding the spotlight in clashes with Chicago and Illinois on the next two Saturday afternoons. But so far it has been close to a runaway for the east against opponents from the south and middle west.

Up to date the east shows 12 victories for eastern teams, only two for the middle west and one for the south in clashes that have brought distinct results into conflict.

BURIED BENEATH RUIN IS TOWN BUILT FOR COMING OF CHRIST

LA PORTE, Pa. (AP).—Buried beneath the ruins of a group of buildings near here is the shattered hope of a little colony of men and women who, a half century ago, founded Celestia, a town laid out and made ready for the coming of Christ.

Celestia's memory is preserved only by a yellowing deed filed in the archives of the county courthouse. It was named for the Celestial City. Streets were marked out and an artificial lake was dug. At the height of its prosperity a newspaper, "The Day Star of Zion," was published with weekly regularity.

Most of the settlers came originally from Connecticut. In order, so far as possible, to keep out worldly affairs, they petitioned the state legislature to be set aside from Pennsylvania, desiring that they did not wish to be associated with events of the mortal world. Their petition was not granted.

The last of the original settlers held at death the faith of the founders. The land, of about four square miles, was sold for taxes and the property left to ruin.

Mill Company Incorporates.
SALEM, Ore.—The Hardwood Sawmill company, with headquarters at Willamina and capital stock of $4000, filed articles in the state corporation department today. The incorporators are A. H. Kammerer, Clara Kammerer and Dorothy Kammerer. The Gates Mill company, with headquarters in Portland, filed notice of dissolution.

Webster of 1925

It will now be the business of Professor Thomas A. Knott, English teacher at the University of Iowa, to know the meanings of more words than any other man in the world. He has been selected as general editor of all Webster dictionaries.

HEALTH

DIPHTHERIA
(By Dr. Frederick Stricker)
What symptoms should lead you to suspect that a child has diphtheria? Diphtheria may be like a severe sore throat with small or large gray or white patches. These patches may appear not only on the tonsils, but also on the soft palate. A membrane on the soft palate is almost certainly diphtheria. With such a throat the person usually feels sick. Not only does the throat hurt, but there is usually weakness in the back, neck and muscles generally. The glands of the neck may be quite large and feel swollen when touched. The patient may be feverish and delirious, though the fever may not be high.

What causes diphtheria? The Klebs-Loeffler or diphtheria bacillus.

How is it spread? By contact with the infected person or with articles which may have been contaminated by discharges from his nose and throat, or by contact with a diphtheria carrier.

In what part of the body is the disease located? In the nose and throat, but the poison generated is absorbed into the body causing degeneration of muscular tissue, heart disease and paralysis. Membranous diphtheria is a form of diphtheria involving the larynx.

At what age is diphtheria most likely to occur? In children under ten. More than 50 per cent of the deaths occur between the ages of one and five.

Is everyone susceptible to diphtheria? No, some people possess a natural immunity. Practically all children between the ages of six months and two years are susceptible.

Is there a way to tell whether a person is immune or not? Yes, a simple skin test called the Schick test will determine definitely whether or not a person is immune.

Can susceptible persons be rendered immune? Yes, by three injections of toxin-antitoxin.

When a person contracts diphtheria, what should be done? Antitoxin should be given immediately even before the diagnosis is certain. It can do no harm and it may save a life. Every person who has come in contact with the sick person should be given a prophylactic dose of antitoxin.

What is the difference between antitoxin and toxin-antitoxin? Antitoxin is given to persons ill with diphtheria and to those who come in contact with them. It gives immediate immunity for a short time only. Toxin-antitoxin is a mixture of diphtheria toxin and antitoxin, given to the well person to protect him against diphtheria. Its action is slower, but when complete the individual is immune probably for life.

Why are cultures taken from the throats of children at the opening of school and during epidemics? Because this locates the diphtheria carriers. One per cent of school children are carriers. They spread the disease and should be immediately isolated, as they are a menace to the school.

PRISON TERMS ASSESSED.
MEDFORD, Ore.—Bill Short, also known as Shannon of Applegate, was pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of liquor and pointing a gun at Sheriff Jennings was sentenced by Circuit Judge Thomas to three years in the state prison on the first charge and three years on the second, the sentences to run concurrently.

H. Dawson of Klamath Falls, who some time ago pleaded guilty to a charge of perjury in his trial while armed, was sentenced to three years in the state prison, this to run concurrently with his sentence of three years on the original conviction, which resulted from a raid on the "hut" at the Oregon National Guard encampment here.

A tire that keeps its good looks to the very end of its long service life

SOME tires that look well on the show room floor begin to look shabby after a few miles of service.

The U.S. Royal Balloon not only compares favorably in appearance with any tire when new.

The important thing to note is that it holds its good looks.

Finger marks, grease and mud stains do not show on its handsome all black body.

And the flat "Low-Pressure Tread" wears slowly and evenly.

Because the weight is properly distributed over the entire tread surface, the uneven, disfiguring wear that soon gives a ragged appearance to round treaded balloon tires does not occur.

This and the patented Latex-treated Web Cord construction of the carcass permit the U.S. Royal Balloon to be run at proper cushioning pressure.

There is no need to over-inflate to save the tires.

Thus, appearance, long mileage, comfort and car protection are all provided for.

The man who is riding on U.S. Royal Balloons is enjoying the advantages of "the balloon tire principle at its best."
