Message No. 32, front: OREGON TRAIL FOX FARM, H. W. Smith, Prop., La Grande, Ore.

WHY fur animals must be farmed:

BECAUSE prices paid for them have steadily raised, thereby inducing more trapping, and because fur animals are only prime and fit to sell but three weeks of each year, yet our station allows trapping from three to four months, thereby causing dealers to stuff off poor furs to the buyer.

SILVER FOX farming is a big need to our country and to the fur consumer, and has a great future.

Last Showing of "Confessions" at Sherrys Tonight

Would you like to see a story depicting a real queen's life? A queen who ruled with her husband in a brilliant kingdom in Europe, was dethroned and then forced into exile in the Paris? A queen who had all the beauty and magnificence of a royal household and whose eyes and laughter hid bitter tears?

Such is the story of "Confessions of a Queen" at Sherrys tonight. It is a Victor Seastrom production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, adapted to the screen by him and Agnes Christine Johnson from the famous story by Alphonse Daudet.

Allie Terry plays the role of the Queen Frederika, and Lewis Stone is seen as the King, Charles. Others in the cast are John Towers, Eugene Decker, Helena D'Almeida, Frankie Darro and Joseph Bowring.

Comedy showing "A Royal Flush" with the Spat family.

Broncho Champion In "Circus Cyclone" At Star

Art Acord, world's champion bronco rider and celebrated star of Western sensations comes to the Star theater Wednesday and Thursday in Blue Streak's new thriller, released by Universal, "The Circus Cyclone," as it is titled, is a new twist in a Western romance; the story of a circus troupe in a Wyoming plain, with cow punches and bronco riders holding the circus people in just as much awe as the circus people hold them—and out of it is evolved a romance with battles and thrills, a charming story of a range rider and a circus

Screen Obtains New Story By Beaumont

"The Man in Blue," Universal-Jewel co-starring Herbert Rawlinson and Madeo Bellamy and to be shown in the Arcade theater Wednesday in one of those motion pictures acclaimed by those who saw it at a prescreening as one telling a story of happenings which might easily occur in life, Edward Laemmle directed.

But this is not to be taken as indicative of the fact that the story lacks action, for the contrary is said to be the truth, inasmuch as the author of the original used to be a police reporter and much of the material used in the story was obtained by him in the course of his work in that capacity.

Gerald Beaumont wrote the girl, and one of the most remarkable mob scenes that has been shown in many years.

Acord plays a range rider who, through his love of horses, is thrown into contact with the girl of the circus; for her sake he battles his way through the entire troupe; climaxing it with a sensational prize fight in the circus ring and a daring leap from a trapeze to a saddle.

There is a stirring rescue and a desperate battle on a crowding automobile, and other thrills through the lightning like action of the story, which was written and directed by Alfred Hitchcock.

Nancy Deaver, former star of "Wolf Fang" plays the leading feminine role, and others in the cast are Ben Corbett, world's champion Roman rider, Al Smith, noted "heavy" of the screen, Cozmo Corzina, the delightful old clown of "Merry-Go-Round" and other equally well known artists.

story, "The Flower of Napoli" published in the "New York Magazine" from which "The Man in Blue" was adapted for the screen. It tells the heart romance of an Irish policeman and a little Italian flower girl of the Italian quarter of an American city, where the policeman walked his beat.

Rawlinson made one of his largest successes as a policeman in the Universal production "Jack O' Clubs," and Miss Bellamy was selected for the part of the flower girl by reason of the capabilities she has shown in other big productions in which she appeared.

"The Man in Blue," which was directed by Edward Laemmle, is said to have attained virtual perfection insofar as atmosphere is concerned. Several hundred men, women and children from the Italian quarter of a metropolitan city were employed as extras for the exterior scenes and the entire supporting cast was selected with unusually careful consideration of the necessities of maintaining the Americanized Italian atmosphere that was attained so impressively by Beaumont in the original story.

ASHLAND RECEIVES BIDS
ASHLAND, Ore.—Although bids for the construction of the new grade school building, to be erected on Beach street, were opened by the members of the school board, no contracts were let. The bids of the lowest bidders were taken under consideration, and, according to V. C. Smith, a member of the school board who has been prominent in school building activities of the past year, these bidders will probably receive the contracts.

However, the members of the board decided to hold off their decisions on the contracts for a short time in order that the entire matter may again be discussed with the architects.

The Clyde W. Frazier company of Portland was the lowest bidder on the general construction work on the entire building. The bid was $45,280.
