Final Showing of Picture at Sherrys Tonight

After being seen in a variety of pictures wherein he invariably was cast in jovial roles, Willard Louis appears next week as a flint-souled, conscienceless villain. The picture in question is "The Man Without a Conscience," a Warner Bros. "Classic of the Screen," playing at the Sherry theatre.

The title role calls for all the verisimilitude and versatility Mr. Louis possesses, and those who have admired the popular character comedian in such pictures as "Bau Trummel," "Babbit," and others, will be eager to watch him essay a different characterization, from Rick and June Marlowe, "The girl with the soulful eyes," the play opposite him. Others in the cast are John Patrick, Helen Dunbar, Robert Agnew and William Orlanmond.

The presence in one single picture of so many screen luminaries is sufficient promise of a veritable feast of cinematic entertainment, and from critical accounts in other cities, this picture is exceptional in many respects. The plot centers around an unscrupulous man bent on betraying and ruining friends and intimates for his own selfish ends, and around two women who become part and parcel of his life, for better or worse.

"Comedy showing, 'The Merchant of Venice'."

Jones Stars in New Film of Gold, Girl, Bandits

Dan Prentiss is a one-woman man, and Pal is a one-man dog. Marjorie Donald has a heart of gold, but the real gold comes from the Gold Eagle Mine and is driven in a big wagon over winding trails where bandits lurk.

The girl, the gold, the bandits and Buck Jones are the ingredients which go into the making of "Gold and the Girl," the thrilling William Fox western picture which will open on Friday at the Star.

It will run the entire week. And, in this case, "run" is used advisedly. There isn't a slow minute in it.

Dan Prentiss first comes into the life of Marjorie Donald when his larrikin, swinging straight and true, halts her runaway mount and saves her life. He loses his heart to her that morning, and Dan's dog, Pal, loses his heart, too, when Marjorie remarks he is a "daring."

After that, many things happen, but in the end, Dan wins Marjorie. There is a great deal to be said for Pal's acting. He not only does things intelligently, but he shows his emotions by his facial expression just as other actors do. He is listed on the cast as Pal. Although this is the first time he has appeared in a Buck Jones picture, he promises to become as familiar a screen figure as Jones' horse, Silver Buck.

Silver Buck's best scene this time is in a wild chase Jones makes after a runaway wagonload of gold bullion. His leap from the horse's back to the seat of the wagon is a real thrill. But there are many others featuring fist fights, pistol duels, rescues, and captures. For the benefit of the fair sex, it might be added that there are two scenes on a certain rustic bridge where Buck meets the heroine and tells her—well the kind of things a real hero does tell the one woman he loves.

The girl, Marjorie Donald, is played by Elmer Fair. The cast also includes Bruce Gordon, Claude Peyton, Lucien Littlefield and Alphonse Fieber. The story is from an original scenario by John Stone, Edmund Mortimer, who has proved himself remarkably capable

Report President Cosgrove a Spy During First Manuevers

DUBLIN (AP)—Press reports credited President Cosgrove with unwittingly playing the role of spy during the first army maneuvers of the Free State, which showed the troops to be well trained and equipped.

When the fighting was in the neighborhood of the Dublin mountains, not far from his house, President Cosgrove rode out to look on. He was questioned by a young officer as to what cars he had passed on the roads and the information the president gave was sufficient to betray the Blue defending force.

Alec Umpire had reminded the president that civilians were not supposed to divulge valuable army news. President Cosgrove sought the young Red officer to make no use of the information. With all the affability of a Gilbertian soldier, he consented and put the president at ease.

Radio Listeners Taxed for Entertainment But Increase

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The radio listener in Sweden must pay for his entertainment, but nevertheless license holders increased to 75,000 against 6000 last year. A fee of 12 krona paid by listeners has provided funds for an improved program. Demand on the present broadcasting stations has necessitated fresh arrangements.

It is planned to build a high-power station in the center of the country having a wave length of 1720 meters.

By reports United States weather reports and operating their furnaces accordingly, the Egid Museum in Chicago estimates that it saves $10,000 annually in fuel costs.

Money won't get you into society, but lack of it will put you out.

MOM'M POP

HELLO MR GUNN—HOW LONG'LL IT BE BEFORE YOU LEAVE FOR HOME? I'D LIKE TO RIDE WITH YOU—

SORRY HENRY BUT I'LL HAVE TO WORK A LITTLE OVERTIME—BETTER NOT WAIT ON ME

BLAST IT—I HATE TO WALK HOME—THE PAVEMENT IS HOT AND MY SHOES SOLES ARE THIN—

GOSH—HERE'S AN OLD STREET CAR TRANSFER! MAYBE I CAN PASS IT OFF ON THE CONDUCTOR

SAY I'VE ARGUED WITH YOU ABOUT THIS TRANSFER FOR TEN MINUTES—I TOLD YOU IT'S NO GOOD—EITHER PAY YOUR FARE OR I'LL PUT YOU OFF!

ALL RIGHT—I'LL GET OFF AT THE NEXT STREET AND I'LL ALSO REPORT YOU TO THE COMPANY

HEE—HEE—I GOT PUT OFF RIGHT AT MY STOP!

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MY FATHER'S A BIG FELLA—HE'S THE BIGGEST MAN IN THIS HERE TOWN!

AW—WE AIN'T SO BIG AS MY POP! HE'S BIGGER THAN ANYBODY!!

SAY! MINE'S BIGGER THAN YOURS!

NO!! HE AIN'T!! MINE'S BIGGER!

JUST AT THIS MOMENT AN EXPLOSION OCCURS AT THE GAS WORKS A FEW BLOCKS AWAY

BOOM

WHAT'S THAT?

THAT WUZ MY FATHER SNEEZIN'!!

"The Dancers" Now Showing At The Arcade

Quite often the sensationally successful play or book becomes a failure when produced for the screen and although many reasons have been advanced, William Fox still holds that the movie cast makes or breaks a stage production.

While he agrees with Shakespeare to the extent that "the play's the thing," he goes the hard way on better and adds significantly, "If you have the players."

In "The Dancers," which Emmett Flynn has just directed for the Fox Film corporation, special attention has been paid to the cast. In fact, it is hand picked, the character of each role being carefully analyzed and then given to an artist who could give a correct and faithful interpretation to the part.

With the same inquiring judgment which led Mr. Fox to select George O'Brien for "The Iron Horse," the wander picture of the year, he selected Mr. O'Brien to portray the coveted role of "Tony" and then surprised director, associates and the motion picture world by throwing economy to the winds and playing Alvin Karpis as Madge Bellamy in the leading feminine roles.

The balance of the cast is of the same artistic calibre and as a result "The Dancers" is one of the most pretentious productions of the year. The screen version was made by Edmund Goulding.

"The Dancers" is the feature attraction at the Arcade theater today and capacity houses are expected to be the rule during the engagement.

"Strongheart" Saves Own Life By Quick Thinking

There are some persons who insist that a dog does not think. Try and tell that to Jane Murrin, who adapted "White Fang," at Sherry's Friday and Saturday, to the screen from the famous London novel, and who is one of the most violent leather-lunged boosters of the great canine star. Having worked with "Strongheart" in many pictures, and having raised him from a puppy, Miss Jane Murrin is in a position to know more about his great native intelligence than any one else. And she says that Strongheart's finest bit of thinking occurred during the filming of "White Fang."

Here is the example which Miss Murrin thinks proves most conclusively Strongheart's thinking power—fortunately for her reputation for veracity she has in this instance at least twenty eye witnesses who will swear that this is a true story.

In filming some scenes in Alaska, the company used a short spur track across a trestle to move from one location to another. Every-one crossed it one day save Strongheart, who was nowing along by himself on the high trestle above when the rest of the company had reached the other side and descended into the valley.

Suddenly, without even a warning blast of the whistle, a gravel train heavily loaded rounded the curve at the far end of the trestle and rolled on rapidly down the grade. The engineer saw the dog on the track and whistled furiously, but he could not stop the heavy train.

"Run, Strongheart, run!" shrieked his mistress from below. Meanwhile the train rumbled on toward the animal, silhouetted against the sky.

But Strongheart did not run. He knew better than anyone else his danger—and his chance. Measuring the distance from the train to the far end of the trestle with his eye, the big dog saw that he could not make it with all his speed. He would be overtaken before he could make it and grind beneath the wheels or thrown into the valley below.

As the train plunged on and the petrified spectators waited helplessly, Strongheart, with all the deliberation in the world, let himself down between the ties and hung, with his strong neck braced against one tie and his forepaws against the next one. Then he barked loudly, as if signalling from below.

"He wants us to catch him—be's going to drop," yelled someone. In a second a dozen trembling hands spread a blanket and just as the train thundered over him the big dog let go his insecure hold and dropped into the blanket and safety.

"If that ain't thinking," says Miss Murrin, "what is?"

Gunnysbags Still Made Where Vigilantes Had Ft. Gunnysbags

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A company on lower Sacramento street manufactures gunnysbags on the site of old Fort Gunnysbags, of similar memory in the stirring annual year at the threshold of San Francisco's history.

Fort Gunnysbags was the place where the vigilantes lugged criminals in 1851, when for a few months these dispensers of summary justice had entire control of the city. The year preceding had been 1900, and the histories say that 1900 murderers had gone unpunished. The Vigilance committee was organized, enrolling 5000 men on a military plan. Arms were seized from the state. Stocks were filled with sand and piled high in a building over which guns were mounted—hence Fort Gunnysbags.

I have several modern homes located in different portions of the city. All are priced right—several I can sell on very liberal terms. I have a few where a substantial payment is required, where the owners realize to assure these payments they must offer extraordinary values. Now is the time to buy La Grande property. Remember this statement: Those who buy now will have money over those who wait until next spring. Sales invariably follow conditions when good houses to rent are scarce. That is the condition in La Grande today and the renting problem is going to be pronounced more and more during the coming year. It is the original thinker who is the success. The majority always have and always will follow leaders—they buy when the buying boom is on, they stop when the other fellow stops, but the shrewd buyer awaits his opportunity. That opportunity is now. Permit me to show you some real home bargains.
