London Expects to Have World's Finest Airplane

CROYDEN (AP)—A scheme, which it is stated will make the London terminal the finest commercial station in the world, and which will cost nearly a quarter of a million pounds, has now been begun in earnest.

Much work will have to be done before the airplane is completed. Trees and hedges are being removed and a road diverted in order to take in an adjoining stretch of land. When this additional ground becomes available the air-express will have a clear, unobstructed space of between two and three miles upon which to take off and alight.

La Grande Theatres

Film Version of Stage Hit on At Sherrys.

A picture of undoubted import to this year's motion picture contributions is "Sun-Up" which comes to the Sherry theater today. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture and was directed by Edmund Goulding.

Goulding is well known as a writer and scenarist. He has written the best seller "Fury," several of the starring vehicles for Mae Murray, and is co-author of "Dancing Mothers," one of the most successful plays now running in its second year in New York.

"Sun-Up" is conceived for the stage by Luis Veltner, created a sensation on the stage in New York and on tour with Lucille La Verne playing the part of "Ma" Cagle, the same role she interprets in the screen version. According to advance reports the screen version is even more powerful in its dramatic sweep than the stage play.

Those two favorites, Pauline Starke and Conrad Nagel are featured in leading roles. "Shorlock South," "Abie's Irish Rose" in Fourth Year On Broadway.

A signal event in local stage history will be the engagement here at the Arcade theater for Saturday, Oct. 31, starting with a matinee performance at 2:30 and the night show at 8:45 of Ann Nichols record-breaking comedy success "Abie's Irish Rose."

This wonder play is now in its fourth year at the Republic theater, New York, and ran over a year over the highways down into the collar of Alie who, inspired by the sudden chill, starts to shiver at no one ever admitted before. The fingers of his right hand which were resting on Aggie's back, unconsciously "tickle" the widow, and together they glide over the smooth floor as "experienced" fancy dancers. Their performance is so realistic that the other dancers make way for Alie and his partner and give them a "big hand" at the end of their exhibition.

The supporting cast includes such popular favorites as Marian Nixon, Edward Kimball, Lilyan Ashman, Faylen McConnon, Margaret Livingston, Neely Edwards, William A. Carroll, Maitha Mattos, Helen Green and Loretta Bratton. The production was filmed under the direction of Harry A. Pollard.

Cameramen Defy Death Filming Grey's "Wild Horse Mesa"

Had the movie cameramen! Unhindered, unaided heroes of film-land!

The average picture-goer, who sits amidst ease and comfort in a well-ventilated, luxuriously appointed theater and watches the silent shadows flit across the silver sheet, little dreams of the dangers and hardships that fall to the lot of "the men who turn the crank." Yet, quite often, the cinema photographers experience greater thrills and have more narrow escapes than were ever flashed upon the screen.

"Wild Horse Mesa" is a case in point. This spectacular Zane Grey melodrama, which opens tomorrow at the Star, was filmed almost entirely in the rugged Red Lake section of the Arizona desert. When you see the production you will be amazed at the staggering climax, which shows a tremendous stampede of wild wild horses, charging at breakneck speed towards a treacherous barbed-wire trap, but you will hardly realize the difficulties and hazards connected with the photographing of such a breath-taking scene.

Twelve cameramen were required to film the stampede. Bert Glennon, chief cameraman, stationed his assistants in shallow natural gullies which gave some protection and yet were within exact range of the charging steeds. Glennon himself took the most dangerous and exposed position. He located his camera in a small ravine, "shoots" upwards with the entire herd racing high over his head. At times the thundering hooves swerved within three feet of his camera, and Glennon was momentarily afraid that some jostling or confusion among the spirited steeds would force one of them off the edge and on top of him. But he never stopped grinding!

Fortunately, no casualties resulted, and one of the mightiest episodes ever caught by a camera was successfully screened in all its glory at the Arcade theater today.

"I'll Show You the Town," the Universal-Jewel feature to open at the Arcade theater today, is a picture of the same name, tells the story of an unfortunate college professor who, in order to obtain a gift for his devoted wife, goes and nearly wins the heart of a wealthy widow.

In his courtship of Agnes Cleveland, played by Chazy Fitzgerald, Alie Dupree (Reginald Denny) is called upon to show her the sights of the town—which he does. In their sojourn through the metropolitan Aggie, as she is affectionately known, insists that she be dined and wine at the famous "Hanging Gardens Cafe," the center of the town's night life. Alie dare not refuse to perform the slightest wish or desire of the wealthy widow. He even goes so far as to "dance" with her although neither of them had been on a dance floor in years.

A waiter on the balcony comes to the assistance of the inexperienced dancers on the floor below. He is placing ice in a row of glasses when a piece of the ceiling slips from his fingers and falls
