PICKUP TESTS REVEAL POWER

In a series of specially conducted tests recently held on the Pacific coast, the getaway ability of the Overland Six engine was capably demonstrated in unique fashion, according to Gettings and Hanks, local distributors.

"Officials of the Willys-Overland Pacific company arranged the tests which were run off under newspaper supervision, with newspaper representatives acting as timers, starters and checkers. The results proved conclusively the ability of the Overland Six to do 100 yards from a standing and running start in an incredibly short time.

"First, the engine was paired with Keith Lloyd, one of California's crack sprinters and a favorite in the 100-yard distance. The test was held in the Coliseum at San Francisco, and both contenders got away from a dead start. The runner started into the lead at the pistol shot and gained quite an advantage in the first few yards and then the Overland Six began to 'do its stuff,' overtaking the runner before 75 yards was reached and taking the distance in 27.7 seconds. Lloyd was nonplussed that a car could beat him over the century distance, particularly when the three gear shifts had to be made. Previous to the test, drivers had taken the Overland Six over the 100 yards in nine seconds flat from a standing start.

"Another unique test to demonstrate the flexibility of the Overland Six engine was conducted with a well known trotting horse on the coast. The race was over a straightaway course for an eighth mile distance. The horse having a flying start over the Overland Six, driver had to gear and overtake the flying horse in the soft track. The driver of the car had to accelerate to 25 miles per hour to catch the horse in 800 feet. Both demonstrations faithfully portrayed to California residents the enormous power confined in the Overland Six engine and its flexibility of handling, and

An avalanche of sparkling novelties, snappy dance revue, comedy galore, and vocalists who sing sensible songs with harmony will be seen at the Arcade theater on Sunday next.

The Three Devers appear in a novel dance revue, a versatile showing of steps with syncopated shuffling, eccentric toe dances, burlesque Spanish & French Apache numbers with beautiful drapes and lily costumes. Dixon & Freeman in "A Minute Late," a colorful railroad conversation from the pen of Rudy A. Powell, characterizes the high brown and black in a classy and novel way. Miss Dixon is a clever vocalist and Freeman is a comedian that never fails. Geo. & Lillian Whitney in "Let's Have Some Fun" present a singing, talking and dancing offering with juggling and magic sandwiched in to make it more pleasing. Arlene Francis in "Character Impressions" impersonates some of the best known female stars. The number is a splendid expression of song and story. Musical Delphines, European dance musical artists, combine pantomime comedy with novelty music which makes for twelve minutes of real comedy and entertainment! Pictures and orchestra also featured on the bill.
