Lincoln's Name Taken Before He Gained Fame

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP)—Of the 24 cities in the United States which bear the name of Lincoln, this city alone took the name during the life time of Abraham Lincoln and when he knew no fame, historians here say. He christened this city with two names.
When the railroad, which later became the Chicago and Alton, was laid through Illinois in 1852, Robert Latham, Virgil Hicks and John D. Gillett, all famous pioneers of Illinois, purchased a section of land adjacent to the railroad right of way, as a prospective town site and county seat.
They were personal friends of Lincoln, who was a traveling city-to-city lawyer. He was their legal adviser in the location of the proposed town. In Lincoln's office in Springfield on August 24, 1853, the pioneers discussed a name for the proposed town. One of the proprietors said:
"Let's name the town for Abe and call it Lincoln."
The others agreed. Lincoln's usual modest humor then rose to the occasion and he said:
"All right, boys, go ahead—but I think you are making a mistake. Nothing named Lincoln, as far as I know, ever amounted to much."
Five days after the new town was named, a sale of lots occurred on the new town site at which the future president attended. At the noon hour Lincoln purchased two watermelons at a vendor's booth. With a melon under each arm, he called the proprietors of the new town to the proposed court house square, cut the two melons in half. He gave a half to each proprietor and retained a half himself, with the remark:
"We will now proceed to christen the new town."

4 CANDIDATES IN FIELD. KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.

Four candidates will seek the two offices of director of Klamath irrigation November 10. They are R. C. Short and J. L. Jacob, who have the support of the present regime; and G. H. Carleton and Charles Drew, who represent the opposition. Drew is the minority member of the irrigation board and has no voice in the dealings of that body.
The election this year promises to be even more bitter than the one of a year ago, since the present directors have charged Dr. Elwood Mead, reclamation commissioner, of having thrust himself into the local campaign in an effort to defeat the administration candidates.
It's no hard to drown your troubles in liquor. The blame staff seems to fatten them instead.
