a satisfactory manner. An average force of 20 men is kept on the ground by Hartenbower Brothers, contractors, who are supervised by two capable city-employed inspectors, H. C. Thomas and Roy Crabb, and by L. R. Stockman, consulting engineer.

Foundation Laid
The foundation in the filter bed, which is 173 by 158 feet in dimensions, is completed and one-half of the concrete corrugation, setting on top of the four-inch bottom layer, has been poured. The tank of smoothing off the corrugation with carbundum has just been started.

When the corrugations have set, 75,000 concrete slabs will be placed on top of these and then a layer of rock six feet in depth will be laid over the whole—one of the last things to be done in completing the three-quarters of an acre filter bed.

The foundation for the dosing tank has been poured, the old ready tank cleaned and made ready for remodeling and for use in the construction of a sludge digester, and the clarifier hole is 75 per cent completed.

The frames are all in place for the filter bed side walls, and fillings, some gravel and sand and other material are now on the grounds.

When complete, La Grande will have one of the most modern sewage disposal plants west of the Rocky mountains, experts declare.

Thorough Tests Made
The city inspectors, who are on the job at all times when any work is being done, test all cement, sand, gravel and other materials used daily, keeping a complete record of all tests. In addition to this, the cement is also tested by the state highway department and by the Oregon bureau of public works.

The inspectors have absolute authority over the contractors. In the main, material has been found O. K., but some has been condemned.

with the colonial idea, but explained that the dwelling may be small without violating the architectural purpose.

Color Important
That color is the greatest influence of any element that enters into interior decoration of the home was contended by George Rasmussen, whose talk was next on the program. The personality of the persons who will inhabit the rooms and the personal taste of the one to whose lot falls the planning are the important factors to be considered in the interior make-up, he said.

"You might tell yourself that Mrs. Jones' house is just the way you want yours to look, but the chances are that if you lived in it for six months you would be heartily tired of it. Put your own individuality into your rooms if you want them to be livable.

"Overstocking the home with furniture is the common fault with Americans. Most of us ought to be selling furniture instead of buying it," Mr. Rasmussen concluded.

How a touch of complimentary color often relieves the monotony of too close adherence to a single color scheme was explained in a discourse on pictures, pottery and china given by Harley H. Richardson.

Good Taste Necessary
Masterpieces and originals are out of the question for most homes, but good reproductions are within the reach of all, he continued. The facilities need not be of the old masters to be in good taste, and often the newer artists fall into better harmony with the modern settings. Reproductions of impressionistic art must be used with care, though, he said, for most of them require rooms larger than the average home affords.

"In pottery we can get closer to the artists than we can in pictures, and we don't need to go back to the time of Josiah Wedgwood either in order to find something good."

The meeting began with the general singing of "America the Beautiful," under leadership of Mrs. Lynn Wright.

Mrs. G. L. Larison announced the coming tea at the home of Mrs. A. J. Stanga, Saturday afternoon, when it is hoped to raise sufficient funds to give the club a 100 per cent subscription to the state federation bulletin.

Institute Announced
A club institute at which La Grande will be hostess to the 12 women's clubs of Union, Wallowa and Baker counties, Monday, November 16, was announced by Mrs. J. D. Lynch, chairman. Mrs. Saldie Orr-Dunbar, state president, will be present to assist with the conferences, which are to deal with club management and technique.

An endeavor to raise the $50 required to complete La Grande's share in the state federation endowment fund will take the form of a candy sale in the showroom of the Ford agency, according to Mrs. H. A. Zurbriek, who is chairman of the committee in charge.

A meeting of the new child welfare department was announced by Mrs. C. H. Seranton, president, for Friday at 2:30 p. m. with Dr. Stella N. Bodmer as speaker.

Mrs. H. H. Cleaver reminded the members of the art department meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. F. A. Egan as leader.

When the program was concluded, Mrs. Seranton introduced new members present and invited the company to take tea. Mrs. Turner Oliver and Mrs. O. E. Silverthorn presided at the urns, between which stood a richly colored bouquet of seasonal flowers. Mrs. F. E. Ralston, assisted by Messdames Frank Harris, Clyde Zimmerman, Grace Mollitor and Dale Cox, dispensed courtesies.

Public Often Blamed For Low Quality Plays to stand upon.

"That is where he has been commercially unwise. He has been running his New York theater as a side show at a fair. He has created for that public and not for the public, he has merely sought the 'nimble shilling.' He has built up no reputation that will be an asset to him throughout these great United States—nor he might have done. My experience has taught me never to underestimate the understanding of an audience, to give them credit for at least as much intelligence as I have myself and to go for the great mass of normal theatergoers of this country, rather than the seething crowd of amusement seekers that throng any metropolitan center."

LEA WINNER IN EQUITY CASE

A decision for the plaintiff was handed down by Judge J. W. Knowles Tuesday afternoon in the case of A. H. Lea versus Andrew Blokland and his brother, Garrett Blokland.

The history of the case dates back to the sale of a farm to the Blokland brothers by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reynolds. Several payments were made by the buyers, including two for which two separate notes were given.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds sold the notes to Mr. Lea of Portland and the case settled yesterday grew out of his action to collect from the Bloklands.

The action was thrown into equity—that is, taken before the judge for decision without the concurrence of a jury—first by the Blokland brothers, who sought relief from the terms of the contract, and then by Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds in an endeavor to collect further delinquent payments.

In Judge Knowles' decision permission was given Lea to recover on the notes signed by the Bloklands, and relief was awarded Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds against Andrew Blokland and his wife, who signed the contract, for the recovery of unpaid installments. No costs were allowed to anyone except Lea of Portland.

Lea and Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were represented by Cochran & Eberhard. The Blokland brothers had as counsel L. R. Tingo and Nichols, Hallock and Donald of Baker.
