Costly Title

"Queen of the taxicab drivers," they call Mrs. Mae Jones, above, in Peoria, Ill., but on a state utilities commission complaint she was fined $1000 and given a year in jail for insisting on running a taxicab line of her own.

Farm Pointers

The keeping qualities of the Golden Delicious apple in western Oregon are being studied at the experiment station. In eastern Oregon this variety has proved one of the best. There it develops a good, waxy cuticle which has been found to add to the keeping quality of most varieties.

In the western part of the state, though it bears well, the fruit does not keep like the eastern product. The trees are still young, and the dallas hopes that as they become older the fruit will develop this waxy covering.

The preparation of bees for the winter in Oregon is best made during October and early November, says the bee specialist at the experiment station. To pass the winter successfully, the bees need ample storage of food and the best one form of winter protection.

House ferns attacked by scale in Oregon can best be controlled by frequent applications of a spray solution of common laundry soap, say the entomologists of the experiment station. One-quarter of a pound of soap is used to one gallon of water. It is advisable to wash the solution from the plants about two hours after application.

Oyster shell scales on Oregon apples promise to be an important pest the coming year, says Don C. Mote, entomologist for the experiment station. When the brown, pear-shaped scales are found on occasional fruits, growers may examine the bark of the trees for further indications of scales. Application of lime-sulphur spray, 12 gallons of the concentrated solution to 100 gallons of water, in February is the standard control of this pest.

The problem of whether the new coupe will hold three comfortably seems to depend upon whether two of them are married or just expecting to be.

BOYS, GIRLS WIN HONORS FOR COUNTY

In other places brought his cattle premiums up to $40 and his hog premiums to $45. His hogs sold Wednesday in the fat stock sale for 17 cents a pound, bringing in $127. His two steers are expected to net approximately $252. This is Blokland's last year of club work as he will be above club age next year.

Others Win Honors
Other club members added important winnings to the record of Lester Blokland. Lyle Ledbetter had the champion Hereford steer and sold him for 24 cents per pound, and Allen Mills sold his Shorthorn steer for 19 cents per pound. Gale DeLay won a blue ribbon on a Shorthorn heifer. Russell McKennon showed Poland China barrows in the open class, winning second on pen and second on single barrow over entries from two northwest agricultural colleges. Clifford Conrad won second in the district in the pig feeding contest and also second on single barrow.

Gertrude Bell of Cove won first place and championship honors on her Jersey heifer in the Jersey showmanship contest Wednesday against all Jersey club entries from Washington and Oregon. Carmen Daniel won third on her Holstein heifer in a large class gathered from the best dairy herds of the northwest.

Gaskill's Grain Best

In the grain division of the land products show, J. A. Gaskill won first honors with wheat in the hard white class on a Hard Federation sample and also in the white club class with a sample of Hybrid 128. This is the second successive year Mr. Gaskill has done this, which is a record for Oregon. E. J. Justice won first and second prizes on a bushel of rye. Gaskill also won second prize on barley.

In the stockyards, T. B. Johnson, Clyde Kiddle, W. J. Townley and William Couper showed carloads. Clyde Kiddle won first on his carload of fat hogs and grand championship. Johnson won second on light hogs. Couper won second on feeder steers and Townley third on feeder steers.

About twice as many people from Union county are attending the stock show this year as have ever attended in any previous year, according to Mr. Avery.

HAS FAITH IN YOUNG PEOPLE

ning at the Presbyterian church, under auspices of the Grande-Ronde union.

"The young people of today are more alive to their spiritual possibilities than those of yesterday," the speaker declared. "The Christian Endeavor is giving them an opportunity for expression in the religious world parallel with the opportunities provided them in the material world."

"Forty-five years ago, when the Christian Endeavor was having its beginning in a Congregational church in New England, young people were supposed to be seen and not heard, while in reality they were seldom seen and never heard."

Four Points Emphasized
Confession, service, prayer and loyalty were the four points emphasized by the speaker as comprising the ideal toward which the society strives.

Music was furnished by a quartet from the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor, of which the members are Misses Grace Gebel, Bess Gebel, Dorothy Funk and Juanita Spencer, and by Miss Myrtle Willcox, who sang a solo.

Five delegates from the society at Baker were among the visitors. Tonight Mr. Shurtle will speak to the Union of Christian Endeavor societies at Portland. His territory includes the United States, Canada and Mexico, and requires 45,000 miles of traveling every year.
