northern eleven. It has only to defeat Oregon, a team which has lost all of its conference games this season.

Stanford An Obstacle.
Should California win, it still has to settle Stanford's claim a week later in the annual "big game." A win by the Cardinals would throw the title into the air, for three and possibly four teams would become tied.

Although the teams compare favorably in strength, California was a slight favorite today to take the measure of the Huskies.

Oregon and the Oregon Aggies will battle for home honors at Eugene in a contest marked by traditional rivalry. It will have conference bearing, as will the game at Los Angeles, where Southern California entertains Montana.

Stanford has an easier assignment and will meet California, Southern branch, at Palo Alto.

money for the support of his family. For the expensive medicines that were needed to ease the pains of Hazel, all night he remained in the home that housed his helpless, mindless daughter.

Six years ago there was added to his miseries a series of swift disasters. He became ill and was unable to practice. His life's savings, $2500, were swept away in a luckless financial venture. And a year ago the heaviest pain came, his wife died.

His daughter, Frances, married, Dr. Blazer, in his sixties, not well, and blind in one eye, was left alone with Hazel.

An Endless Task.
For a year he struggled on, giving the witless daughter constant care. Night and day he nursed her.

Then there came the breaking point. Dr. Blazer contemplated the day when he would die—before Hazel? Who would care for her?

Mercury and chloroform and the little, undeveloped feet lost its expression of pain, sank into an eternal peace.

More mercury and chloroform, dizziness, but not death!

Still in the fumes, Dr. Blazer realized that he failed. He recoiled to the bathroom, slashed his throat with a razor.

Life is Saved.
Frances found him. Hospital care saved his life—to be tried for murdering his daughter.

That with the longer review of Dr. Blazer's earlier life as a country physician and father, is the human side of the story.

Question Unanswered.
But the question still remains: "Did Dr. Blazer commit murder?"

Jurists, scientists, God-fearing men the country over cannot agree on an answer. The question involves too much of theory and fact. The trial did accomplish something however.

The jury, as a body, declined to put the stamp of approval on this sort of crime; they declined to state that Colorado would countenance these types of killings, and it will serve as a warning in the future," District Attorney Joel Stone says.

And perhaps its status will thus rest.

BOND BUILDING ON GAIN.
BEND, Ore.—Although September was a banner month in building operations, October went it one better, a survey of the past month's record was disclosed. In October 55 building permits were issued, nearly two for each day, for a total value of $55,417. The September record was 47 permits, totaling $52,005.

The past month's building was a big advance over the activity of October a year ago, when 38 permits were issued for a total of $21,921. September also showed an increase over the corresponding month in 1924, so that all indications were for a new high total for a calendar year in 1925.

AUTO WRECK FATAL.

MARSHFIELD (By the Associated Press)—George L. Loud, formerly representative in congress from Michigan and now a lumberman at Myrtle Point, was killed last night when an automobile driven by J. A. Whitaker of the Western Lumber company struck a disabled truck on the highway at Millington, two miles from Marshfield. Whitaker was injured, but physicians say he will recover.

Trapped Miners Dug Out

TRIDENTON, Mo. (AP)—Seven miners early Friday night dug their way to freedom, after having been entombed for 11 hours more than 200 feet underground, by a cave-in of the shaft of the Tridenton coal mine. They were none the worse for their experience. They had taken food into the mine with them, and there was ample air supply.

DUN'S REVIEW. NEW YORK (AP)—Dun's today says:

"No perceptible lessening of business confidence resulted from the collapse of stock prices early this week. The primary cause for the reaction existed within the market itself, speculations having been carried to excess and during the period of readjustment in that quarter, attention was temporarily diverted from some of the best industrial news of the year."

Orders of the principal steel producers had added, substantially, to the accumulating evidences of commercial progress, while the prospect of extensive buying of railroad equipment in 1926, which is still stressed in current reports, further strengthens sentiment.

"Results disclosed in financial statements of various corporations moreover have exceeded estimates and resumption of long deferred dividends and declarations of extra payments show that prospering conditions prevail in different lines. There are, in fact, few disquieting notes in dispatches from the leading trades and geographical sections of the country, adverse phases being the exception."

MAJOR POWELL APPEALS. OTTAWA, Ont. (By the Associated Press)—Major Luther H. Powell, of Portland, organizer of the Canadian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, who has been refused entry to Canada by immigration officials has appealed against the decision to immigration authorities in British Columbia who are in communication with the dominant immigration officer here. While there is nothing in the immigration act which specifically prohibits entry by members of the Ku Klux Klan, the entry of all persons, phased as "undesirables" may Both men, convicted of taking a $2000 bribe, have announced their intention to appeal their case. Both are cheerful in their prison surroundings.

Their Romance Ends

Her famous "love in a cottage" exploded for Josephine Paddock today, the former "Slim" Wilcoxon. She has filed suit for divorce against Carter, Randolph Lewis. The news of the divorce proceedings is as much of a surprise as the sudden elopement of the couple five years ago. This is the latest photo of the couple.

Other child laborers exactly fine, and baskets that represented months of painstaking work in the manual arts classes of the public schools were displayed with interesting comments by the two women.

Their collection included several barbarous knives that had been confiscated by the constabularies in the district of the Moros, who inhabit a part of the southernmost islands. Mrs. Taylor said that even in Luzon, the hospital treats many a wound inflicted in both fights. Severed ears and body gashes requiring as many as 200 stitches are not unknown.

The Moros, however, are the only Mohammedan tribes. They kill from religious motives, such as the "Christian" increases their JURY FAILS TO INDICT. SALEM, Ore.—The Marion county grand jury returned a not true bill against Clyde Watson, who was arrested at Astoria charged with being implicated in the robbery of the Astoria State bank more than two years ago. Watson has been in jail here for three months.

Indictments were returned by the grand jury against Walter Bingham, assault with a dangerous weapon; J. Frank Jensen, larceny; and Lawrence M. Bortz, obtaining goods by false pretenses.

Bingham was accused by the grand jury of attacking Henry Stauffer, Donald rancher. Bingham was shot by Stauffer during the attack and later appeared at a Portland hospital for medical treatment. He was arrested there and upon being dismissed from the hospital was returned to Salem for official investigation.

Gayly adorned with bright-colored embroideries and tassels were the articles in a fascinating collection that Mrs. Sayre displayed with explanations given in letters from her missionary daughter in China.

Signifying the earnest zeal with which the Chinese accept the teachings of Christianity, were the wedding gown and all her gold-cloth wedding gifts that a little bride sold to the missionary in order to raise money to make an offering to the mission.

There were many little shoes, made to cover the bound feet of the older women, and tiny replicas of shoes, costumes and even the blue that are the only covering for children under 12 in summer, made with almost invisible stitches during the domestic science hours in school.

Miss Sayre has been superintendent of a girls' school in the Honan province, which is inland in China, for more than a year and a half. She taught for two years before that, following two years of study and teaching among the children of missionaries. Many of her Chinese friends have expressed their appreciation of her work by sending gifts to the missionary's mother.

America stands in the best favor of any of the foreigners in China, according to a letter from Miss Sayre that Mrs. Sayre read to the company. But since the recent uprising, much careful work will be required to regain the confidence lost, and the attention probably will never be as favorable again, said Miss Sayre.
