OREGON WILL PLAY HUSKIES

Billy Evans Says:

POOR INDIAN.

Lo! The poor Indian. That goes as far as big league baseball is concerned.

The Indian is becoming even scarcer on major league diamonds than on the reservations.

For years Chief Bender was the last of the redmen to star under the big tent. Then there was an interval of several years during which not an Indian player graced the roster of either league.

At the instigation of Manager Eddie Collins, Bender did a comeback as coach with the Chicago White Sox last season. One of the greatest of pitchers, he proved invaluable to Collins in the development of his twirling staff.

Evidently a manager Eddie thought the chief was long-since for he has signed up another redskin to keep the veteran company. His name is Leo Najo and he hails from the Okanogan club of the Western association.

Only a very few Indians have achieved greatness in the major leagues, among them being Bender, Myers and Thorpe.

When the Carlisle school for Indians paraded out, it played both with the development of the Indian in athletic life. In the old days Carlie turned out many great athletes on the gridiron as well as the diamond.

Most Indian athletes are called chief. That title was early handed to Bender and Myers but somehow Jim Thorpe escaped it.

Chief Myers was a mighty fine catcher. For years he was the mainstay of the New York Giants back of the bat. Myers wasn't a "C" Cobb on the bases but he sure could hit.

Chief Bender was starting with the Athletics about the same time Myers was going big with the Giants. They opposed each other in several world series.

All Indians are supposed to be wild, but that didn't hold good for Bender, at least as far as control was concerned.

You remember that we said a few days ago that if we had a single dissatisfied customer in our coal business, if they would write us a letter saying they were not satisfied and would sign their name to it we would publish the letter in one of our evening newspapers. Nobody wanted to make themselves out a liar, so we did not get a letter. I was down in the city yesterday and a fine looking lady said to me, "Mr. Pratt, your coal is certainly all right. We like it fine." If that lady will write a letter to the Pratt Lumber Company telling why she likes the coal and let us publish the letter with her name signed to it, there is a big fat Thanksgiving turkey already looking her way. There is only one lady that made that remark to us yesterday so one letter will be sufficient.

Remember, we compete with mail order houses. Why shouldn't one mail order house compete with another? We cannot handle all the roofing in the country, so we just handle the best of it.

A. A. U. OKEHS MANY RECORDS

PITTSBURG, Pa. (AP)—The American Amateur Athletic union, in annual session here late Monday approved 200 records and turn-down 65. Some of those rejected were, because of the presence of better performances in the event in which they were recorded. Others were for lack of sufficient proof. The great Pluto Nurnal and Willie Hittala were denied certain honors because the distances involved were not recognized by the A. A. U.

Nurnal's mark of 10 minutes and 21 seconds for 4000 yards was thrown out because of the "trick" distance. Hittala's mark of 15 minutes 21 seconds for three and one-quarter miles went into the discard for the same reason.

The 220-yard hurdle record of Charles H. Brooks of the University of Iowa, made in 1924, and which was referred to the committee last year, was approved. Brooks' time was 23 seconds.

Jackson V. Scholz of the Newark A. C. is the holder of the 100-yard dash with a mark of 5.57 seconds made at Greensboro, N. C., last May. Jonni Myria of the Olympic club, Los Angeles, had one-quarter record of 224 feet 11 inches, rejected because A. A. U. officials were not present at the time it was made. His mark of 232 feet 11 inches was accepted.

Joe Ray remains in the record books, being listed with Nurnal in possession of the mark of 4:12 for one mile.

Swimming records for both men and women drew little protest. Agnes Goraghty is the possessor of all but four of the breast stroke marks. John Weismuller, Arne Berg and Walter Spence divided honors among themselves.

For winter driving—
change your oil

IN winter your automobile requires a free-flowing oil, if it is to start quickly and be free from dangerous friction. All oils do not meet this requirement, but here again Zerolene proves one of its superiorities — it flows freely at low temperatures.

To determine the correct body of Zerolene for the winter lubrication of your car, consult the Zerolene Correct Lubrication Chart — at Standard Oil Service Stations and at dealers.
