

EX-COWBOY IS STILL RIDING

(By Charles P. Stewart) WASHINGTON (NEA Special) —Horseback riding is a great social fad in Washington. Among others a good many very prominent public men go in for it.

An ex-cowboy, hey! He must be a picturesque sight in Washington, in his four-gallon hat, his fringed chaps, his high-heeled boots with spurs rattling, his bandana knotted loosely in front of his adam's apple, his flapping—no, no cut out the six gun. He wouldn't wear that in Washington.

A picture of the good old times and wide open spaces, when and where men was men and all that stuff, ain't it? Well, it's purely a fancy picture, far as Washington and Secretary Jardine are concerned.

How does Secretary Jardine sit this critter? Believe me, he doesn't sit him like a centaur. Neither does he sit him like a cattleman, rather stouffly, with legs at full stretch.

Windjammer Near Its End as Cargo Vessel

LIVERPOOL (AP) —The windjammer has just about given up the ghost, at least as far as the British flag is concerned.

The thousands of these British ships that sailed the seven seas now number six. The survivors remaining upon Lloyd's register are the Monkbarus, William Mitchell, Garthpool, Garthhill, Howa and Kilmaillie, each of which is known in many American ports, and especially Honolulu and Manila.

The Garthpool is the sole British four masted on the job and among seamen is known as "The Ghost," because of the great fleet of such ships, all gone to Davy Jones' locker, which it represents.

Finland seems destined to become the world's last owners of ships of this type, as most of the British sailing vessels sold within recent years have been bought by Finnish interests.

Grain from Australia, nitrate from South America and salt outward from Liverpool are the only cargoes now offered for sailing ships.

Song Slide Artists Find Jobs in Movies

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. (AP) —Where are the song-slides of yesterday, and where are the earliest American picture actors who posed for these quaint, sentimental stereopticon views?

Most of the song-slides no doubt have been thrown away long ago, save for a few still hoarded as souvenirs by the theater folk of a passing generation; but as for the "picture actors" who posed for them, some are just where one might expect to find them—in the movies.

For instance, a search of the famous Players-Lasky lot here revealed Tom Fortune, who was headlined in the nineties as a singer of popular songs. Fortune claims to have been the first entertainer to sing song-hits to the accompaniment of stereopticon slides.

It was in 1896, in the American theater on Chicago's north side that he was engaged to introduce this startling innovation to the playing public. Between the acts of a comedy being presented at the American, he sang "After the Ball" and other compositions of the day. The lantern slides illustrating his songs were a big hit. Soon the making of song slides became a small industry.

Fortune posed for many slides. Usually a slide had to be made for each line of the song. First one posed with one's partner for

"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," and then snapped into the tableau for "Where the Love in Your Eyes I Could See," and so on through the sentimental itinerary of the ballad.

From this posing for song-slides to acting in motion pictures was a natural transition. When Edison produced "The Great Train Robbery," Tom Fortune was in the east, and by the time the song-slide as an institution had slipped into oblivion, Fortune and most of the other song-sliders had slipped safely into the films.

Rheims One City With Homes Begging; Real Estate Slumps

RHEIMS (AP) — Rheims is among the few cities in France with empty apartments and a slumping industrial real estate market. The return of the population has not kept pace with the rebuilding and restoration, as there are only 75,000 inhabitants as compared with 117,000 before the war.

To the world, Rheims generally is associated first with cathedrals, and then Champagne. Before the war, however, it was an important industrial city, where wool weaving, spinning and bleaching employed 10,000 persons, now reduced to about one-third of that number.

Land which at Armistice time sold for 10 to 30 francs the square meter, when it was thought that the city would be itself again in a short time, is now offered at from 5 to 10 francs.

The League for the Industrial, Commercial and Labor Development of Rheims has been formed to come to the rescue.

French High Cost of Living Takes Elders Back to School

PARIS (AP)—The high cost of living has made itself manifest in another French quarter. The French universities all report the enrollment of an unusual number of elderly and middle-aged pupils. Retired officers, merchants, functionaries and others, finding their incomes from investments too small for present day needs, are seeking to perfect themselves in some subject with a view to re-obtaining employment. The subject most patronized is law, and after that, the modern languages.

Let Your Fellow Merchants Tell You How Lighting Makes Money For Them

Show stores, haberdashers, dry goods stores, managers of department stores and owners of stores and shops of every kind know that there's profit in Better lighting.

One druggist, converted to better lighting says:

"We know from experience that good lighting increases sales. Good window lighting attracts more passersby and and brings more people into the store.

Good store lighting not only makes it easier for a customer to choose exactly what she wants, thereby reducing the cost of the sale, but it gives her confidence in the store—a confidence that means future business."

Our special limited time offer giving you an opportunity to light your place of business properly at a minimum cost of fixtures and electricity, is worth investigating.

Calls are coming in daily from businessmen who realize that their business houses are poorly lighted, and who want to take advantage of our free service offer of expert advice.

Does old Kid Pipe get you below the belt?

(Is your pipe O.K.—or are you K.Oed?)

Any experienced pipe-handler'll tell you that half the battle in mastering the manly art of pipe smoking is fighting shy of the old "hay-maker"... And there's no sense taking a terrible licking when you can side-step all that foul pipe-play by breaking in on Granger... Fact, after a couple of rounds with this smooth-going Rough Cut it's no longer necessary to handle any pipe with gloves on.

There's nothing else like Wellman's 1870 Method

An "old fashioned" method, yes, but slow as it is, and costly, too—we have found no other process that brings tobacco to the same full, rich "rounded-out" mellowness. And remember—in Granger only!
