OREGON TEAM OUT TO WIN

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Ore. (Special)—Six veterans of Oregon grid battles will don moleskins for the last time Thanksgiving day at University of Washington in the closing encounter of the 1925 season. All are playing their third year on the squad.

The men soon to end their careers are: Captain Bob Mautz, right end; Gene Shields, left guard; Bert Gooding, right tackle; Ken Bailey, right guard; Louie Anderson, quarterback; Jackson Hiles, alternate guard. Each has played two years on the Oregon team. They will leave hard holes to fill.

Lauren Reynolds, another senior and a transfer from Whitman, will also end his gridiron career at Seattle. He has been hampered all year with injuries but is in fine fettle now. Coach Smith has been alternating him with Anderson at quarter, and is pleased with his form. He is a clever kicker.

With Oregon hopelessly out of the running this year, Smith has been experimenting with young material to use in the future. Leavitt and Dixon made their appearance in the O. A. C. game, and others will probably be used at Seattle. Rigas, Hughes, Kimiki, and Harrison may see service against the Huskies. Hughes is considered the best pass receiver on the squad.

Oregon is out to win Thursday. There is an attitude of dare-devilry and recklessness on the team that bodes no good for Washington championship hopes.

Win or lose, Oregon hopes to provide a real battle in the Washington stadium Thursday.

HUSKIES TAKE NO CHANCES ON OREGON BATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash. (Special)—The University of Washington football team took a hard workout yesterday for its game with Oregon here Thanksgiving day. Fearing a repetition of a year ago, when the Huskies went to Eugene overwhelming favorites only to return home on the short end of a 3 to 7 score, Bagshaw is taking no chances with his near champions.

Every Washington regular will be ready to take his place, unless, of course, an unlooked for injury at the eleventh hour takes its unexpected toll. The Washington line is working like a bunch of veterans. The team is hopped up and confident, but not even Washington's fondest enthusiast is expecting a run-away.

May Play at Pasadena.

In the meantime Dorsin Meisnest, graduate manager of Washington, has his feet on both sides of the fence insofar as the East-West game is concerned. He doesn't say that Washington will not be the Western representative at Pasadena New Year's day, nor is he passing out hints to the effect that his team would accept if invited. His policy seems to be watchful waiting.

There is a feeling on the campus that it is premature for the team to accept the invitation now, which is certain to be given, provided, of course, the Huskies beat the Webfooters, until after that game is played, although the signs all point to a glorious Washington victory—still, they did the same in 1924.

Zuppke Is at Odds With Galloping Ghost

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—"No other hundred-thousand-dollar player is going to be on the squad next year," Coach Robert C. Zuppke said at the annual dinner of the University of Illinois football team, at which Red Grange was present.

The veteran coach did not elaborate on this statement, but he expressed the opinion that the famous carrot-top, who had promised to return to school to complete his education, "will no more graduate from Illinois than will the kaiser return to power in Germany."

Grange left the hall Monday night in the midst of Zuppke's remarks, but explained that the exit was necessary to permit him to return to Chicago, where he is training with the Chicago Bears for his professional appearance Thanksgiving day.

AGED NEBRASKA VET DIES

OMAHA (AP)—N. J. "Satan" Miller, 105, Civil war veteran and believed to be the oldest man in Nebraska, is dead.

The milk of the goat, the ass, and the camel carried in skins was churned on the back of beasts of burden from the earliest days of recorded history.

STAIS FBR.

Most athletes in any sport regard a knowledge of the rules as of secondary importance.

In other words, the players become proficient in executing the various plays and rather overlook the code of rules that govern their actions.

* * * *

It is not unusual to see some baseball star in the majors do something entirely contrary to the wording of the rule. I have in mind the play in which two base runners are occupying the same base.

In such a situation the base always belongs to the original occupant unless he is forced to vacate to make room for the batsman.

Yet, it is not at all unusual for the player who has a right to the base to step off it and be retired. Often such action makes possible a double play.

* * *

It appears as if the college football player is as liable to err as the major league star who is minus a high brow education.

* * *

COSTLY SLIP.

The break in the Yale-Princeton game, or at least one of the important breaks, was the result of a mistake of rule on the part of a Yale player.

Unfortunately, the layer to err was Captain Joss of Yale. In foot ball, the captain is one player who is supposed to have a working knowledge of the rules.

I am positive that Captain Joss knows better, yet the happening rather reflected the unsettled condition of the Yale team as Princeton was upsetting the dope.

In the third period, Captain Joss recovered a punt made by Wadsworth of Yale. A high wind was blowing and he thought it the wise thing to do. It was, but he failed to carry the play to completion.

Joss, after recovering the ball, placed it carefully on the ground. A ball isn't dead until the referee blows his whistle in such a play. Joss failed to wait for that all important feature.

After downing the ball he walked away. It was still a live ball and along came Slagle of Princeton who ran the ball back to Yale's 28-yard line.

A penalty, an end run by Slagle and a buck by Dignan sent the ball over for the third Princeton touchdown, putting the Tigers out of reach.

* * *

That mistake, more than any other one feature, decided the issue. It put Princeton in front by 13 points and certainly didn't help the morale of the Yale eleven. Moral: know your rules.

Popular With Foreign Clubs.

SEATTLE (AP)—Rowing shells used by the University of Washington have been ordered by two foreign rowing clubs and the Universities of Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Princeton.

George Pocock is the university shell builder with a shop on the school campus. His shells were used when the University of Washington became intercollegiate rowing champion in 1923 and 1924.

The first eight-oared shell for foreign waters went to the Buenos Aires club. The Havana Rowing club ordered a four-oared boat.

U. S. FILES INCOME TAX LIENS AGAINST FILM STAR

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Charles Ray, portrayer of country boy roles in the pictures, and in real life central figure in a series of financial setbacks culminating recently in the bankruptcy of Charles Ray Productions, Inc., was notified Monday that Uncle Sam still hopes to collect from him a matter of approximately $233,000 in back income taxes. Income tax liens filed against the film star in federal court Monday list $199,744 as due on his 1921 income and $33,629 on his 1922 earnings.

The Spirit of Thanksgiving

The Pilgrims were a pious people who never failed to give thanks to the Lord for His benign help and guidance. But—they never failed to help themselves. They set the world an example of thrift and industry.

The Pilgrims put their trust in God; and they lived out the old adage, "The Lord helps them that help themselves."

Savers Help Themselves.
