24 Gridmen Will Be Taken to Baker

lost nothing but a game, but if she wins she will have an equal claim to the championship with Baker and Union. Something to fight for, it seems.

Close Game Expected—Baker fans, as well as La Grande grid followers, are expecting a closely fought game, with the winners victorious by only a small margin. One touchdown may tell the tale.

With the prospects of a game out of the ordinary in interest and thrills, approximately 250 La Grande rooters, mostly from the high school student body, are planning on making the trip with the team tomorrow, leaving from the high school at 11 a. m. A call has been issued to all citizens driving to Baker that day to "fill the back seat" with rooters. Several supporters of the Tiger team are also expected to go via train.

BAKER LINEUP GIVEN—BAKER, Ore. (Special)—Claude Hines, Baker's triple threat half-back, will undoubtedly give the Tigers plenty of trouble tomorrow when Baker and La Grande meet here in the 1925 football season windup. They saw enough of his bewildering running, passing and plunging last Thanksgiving day to appreciate his effectiveness.

Along with Claude in the backfield, Coach Glindeman will have Cundiff, G. Duff and Payne or Thomas, all hard-hitting, clever men.

On the line, Manny, McCord, Whittier, Adrian, Ferguson, Eddy, York, Blankenship and Jaeger will be called upon to defend the reputation that they have already earned as being the proverbial stone wall. Although it is the backfield men whose feats are more prominent in the game, it is the splendid work of these linemen in clearing the path for the ball carrier that has made Baker a championship possibility.

with the irrigation committee, of which A. R. Hunter is chairman, and H. G. Avery, of La Grande, and Robert Withycombe, of Union, have been appointed to find a location for a demonstration irrigation tract.

Health Week Dated—Union county's health week will start January 19, of the new year. This was definitely decided last night. The state board of health, of which Dr. Phy is Eastern Oregon's member, will be in this part of the state at the time of the health week and will spend several days helping further the work in this district.

Every church, school, grange, commercial organization and all other groups will be asked to hold at least one program in recognition of the importance to the communities of the county of health.

Following the business meetings last night dinner was served the committees.

Poets' Corner

WHERE THE SAGE MEETS THE KING
(Copyright, 1925)
(By John B. Hunter)

Somewhere out in the west,
Where the sage meets the king;
Where my mind comes to rest—
Tread the last path of mine.

One has hair of grey and gold,
The other silken hair of bronze;
My love for them cannot be told—
With hearts their heads I would crown.

Chorus—
Just one moment with my Nellie,
Just one moment with mother mine—
To Oregon I'll fly away,
Where the sage meets the king.

"Cross the ocean wide and blue,
Once I was anxious to sail—
Now my mind presents to view
Memories of the dear old trail;
Where my heart is I am flying
To the pale that I adore—
To my Nellie who is waiting
At my dear mother's door.

When I left the dear old trail,
Fame and gold were in my mind,
Yet the day that I set sail
With you my heart was left behind.

At last I've conquered the air
And gained what I began to do—
My aeroplane is sailing fast,
Today I'm flying back to you.

the possibility of summoning Colonel William Mitchell, who previously declined to testify before the naval court.

It was announced that should examination of Mitchell's testimony in his court martial reveal matters germane to the Shenandoah inquiry the navy would seek to bring the colonel before the tribunal.

This is a terrible world. But it could be worse. What if they allowed fivers to run on the sidewalk?

Messenger?

Mrs. George W. Steele, wife of the commander of the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, is in the center of public attention in Washington now. Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne, widow of the Shenandoah's commander, said it was Mrs. Steele who brought her the letter in which, she charges, Captain Foley sought to get her to change her testimony.

C. C. ENDEAVOR UNION ELECTS OFFICERS

PORTLAND, Ore.—Miss Myrtle Corley was re-elected president of the Columbia Christian Endeavor Union of Umatilla and Morrow counties November 19 at the close of the annual convention held here with delegates in attendance from both counties.

Other officers are Miss Haroldene Horton of Pendleton, first vice-president; Miss Lulu Caverhill of Milton, secretary; Glenn Moon of Freewater, treasurer; Wallace Baker of Stanfield, Brarian; Miss Alice Greenwald of Pendleton, quiet hour chairman; Claude Peavey of Holts in charge of Tenth legion; Miss Marie Gadow, in charge of missionary life work recruits; Mrs. Nellie Harrison of Pendleton, alumni department; Miss Laura Martin of Stanfield, E. O. Miller of Milton, junior department; John Penland of Pendleton, social department; Leon McQuary of Milton, correspondent for Christian Endeavor World; Miss Horton, head of the lookout and extension work; the Rev. Van Winkle of Pilot Rock, pastor counselor; Miss Essie Hiteboy of Freewater, executive advisor.

The president of the Willow Branch union in Morrow county, yet to be elected, will serve as second vice-president.

The state vice-president of La Grande and the state field secretary, Douglas Rice of Portland, were present. From 50 to 110 people attended the various meetings held during the three days.

or drinks with which he treated La Bine and Jessie Hayes, the waitress, while they visited in an adjoining bed room.

Defense Explains.
But the defense had a different explanation of the overcoat incident. On testimony of the defendant, the waitress and Ed Wyndham, cook pro tem at the time of the raid, it was established that McDaniel borrowed the coat for a trip to a lumber camp, and gave La Bine the marked money on deposit.

The other three bottles of moonshine were taken by Pierce from a hidden door under the linoleum in the bed room. La Bine admitted on the witness stand that he admonished the prohibition officer that would do no good to search any farther, using the words, "You've got it all this time."

had to flee for their lives.

Prior to this their fortune was estimated at $20,000,000. When they fled the country it was confiscated, and they had only one pearl necklace as the remnant of their fortune. To get this out of the country, Countess Karolyi had to swim across the Danube with it and bury it in the sand, sending a friend to get it later.

expelled by the government there on the request of the Horthy regime. Then they found a haven in Jugoslavia for a time, and later in England. After that the countess went to America on a lecture tour, and her husband followed shortly.

Not a "Red," "I am not a 'Red,'" she explains, "but I do think that social conditions in my country are wrong, terribly wrong.

"I was always hoping for the betterment of the peasantry of my country—in fact, I named my first children Adam and Eve as a symbol of my hope that they would live to see a new race under new conditions.

"Adam is seven, Eve is nine. I still hope that they will live to see Hungary as peaceful and as prosperous as America."

Countess Karolyi was not brought up to these democratic ideas. Far from it. All through her youth she was taught that people of her social class were separated by an impassable gulf from every other class in the world.

"My first perception that there was anything in the world different from the ideas under which I had been brought up came before the war and before my marriage, when I met some equal suffrage leaders," she says.

"Then I met Count Karolyi. He had been to America and had seen what wonderful men our Hungarian peasants could become in a free country. And we both thought what a wonderful thing it would be for Hungary if they could have the same opportunities there they had in America."

Oddly enough, Count Karolyi was not widely known either as a democrat or as a forceful leader until after his marriage. Apparently the countess provided the inspiration under which her husband rose to fame.
