It's Quicker and Costs Less.
Old Habits Die Hard.
Even nowadays we hear of otherwise shrewd business men who, if they have to speak with an out-of-town customer, think it necessary to go via the gasoline or steam route and see him.
What do they gain by seeing him?
It's talk that counts!
And can you think of a better chance of talking with a man than having your lips at his ear?
That's the chance that, in effect, the Telephone gives you. Don't travel, then: Telephone!

Thrills Galore In "Bagdad" Film Coming to Sherrys

Douglas Fairbanks will, in "The Thief of Bagdad," at Sherrys transport his audience to the land of mystery and romance, where all things are possible and all dreams come true. This "Thief of Bagdad" is, according to all accounts, a glorious fantasy of the Arabian Nights. In it the agile Doug leads the way through the winding streets of Bagdad, past the far-famed bazaars, stopping long enough to pick up a string of pearls or a gorgeous robe; down into the den of thieves and then over the palace walls into the boudoir of the beautiful Princess of Bagdad; a journey over the desert to the Old Man of the Sea, and then up to the Citadel of the Moon. A Winged Horse, a Silver Wishing Box, a Golden Apple with the secret of life in its core, and then up to the Caliph's palace again. Great part of all in the adventure which Doug in the Magic Carpet on which the Thief and the Princess soars over the house-tops. The glamour and thrills that came with a childhood reading of the "Arabian Nights" are doubled in "The Thief of Bagdad." It is said to be a remarkable visualization of the glory of Old Bagdad, with nothing to mar the beauty or to weaken the intensity of the fantasy. The fantastic spirit of the thing is carried out to the smallest detail. The vines, urns, stairways, walls and even the rose bush in the Princess' garden have all been touched with a sense of magic. The illusion is complete. It is a land of dreams and romance, where humor, however, is not unknown and where "happiness must be earned." Douglas Fairbanks is said to have selected a splendid role, the greatest of his career. It is, then, Fairbanks at his best—the Fairbanks

Thrilling Duel In Dean Picture Showing Here Today

There have been countless screen fights since the first motion picture thrilled adventurous hearts, but what is said to be the most unusual and thrilling fight of its kind ever staged for the silent drama is found in "The Crimson Runner." Hunt Stromberg's new Priscilla Dean feature, showing at Sherrys for the last time tonight. Alan Hale and Ward Crane are the participants in his encounter and viciously dangerous broad swords furnish the weapons. The duel occurs in the midst of the spectacular Bull Masque of the story and some 1200 "extras" enjoyed the thrill of their lives when these scenes were being recorded on celluloid.

An ordinary duel with rapiers is more child's play compared to an encounter with broad swords. The latter are not only heavy and unwieldy, but their keen points and dangerously sharp blades make them formidable weapons indeed.

Such scenes as those shown in "The Crimson Runner" cannot be successfully faked, and both Ward Crane and Alan Hale took a full course of lessons in the art of broadsword dueling before they attempted to film the scenes. Even such precautions, however, failed to prevent a number of minor casualties before the scenes were completed to the satisfaction of director Tom Forman.

"The Crimson Runner" is an original story of post-war Vienna by Harvey Gates, who wrote "Merry Go Round" and "The Wild Cat of Paris." In addition to Priscilla Dean, Ward Crane and Alan Hale, the cast includes such skilled players as Taylor Holmes, James Selig, Ida de Landt, Charles H. Mallou, Mitchell Lewis and Bernard Siegel. Comedy showing "Fleurette Bound."

Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky to Be Here Monday, Tuesday

The Arcade Theatre is offering its patrons Monday and Tuesday George Fitzmaurice's latest First National picture, "The Dark Angel," presented by Samuel Goldwyn.

"The Dark Angel" is easily one of the most captivating of the many successes to the credit of Fitzmaurice. It is a modern love story replete with thrills and lavishness.

The leading man role, that of Hilary Trent, is in the hands of Ronald Colman, who is seen at his very best in this military role, opposite him in this, his first American screen play, is Vilma Banky, the fascinating artist recently brought from Budapest by Samuel Goldwyn under long term contract. Her beauty, grace and high order of dramatic talent are given her wonderful opportunities to display these qualities to the best advantage. As Kitty Vane she awakes a keen sympathy for the role and easily prays herself a young emotional actress of the first rank.

Natural color photography is judiciously used to emphasize certain episodes, thereby increasing the fascination. Thrilling fox hunts, battles played with astonishing technique and of almost unbelievable magnitude, are intermingled with tender love passages, heart breaking tragedy and fantasy. All in all, "The Dark Angel" is great entertainment.

The supporting cast includes Wyndham Standing, Frank Elliott, Florence Turner, Helen Jerome Eddy, Charles Lane and other notable artists.

The story is founded on H. B. Trevelyan's great stage success, and the scenario is from the pen of Frances Marion.

Broad Cable Cuts Artery.

ROSEBUD (AP)—Frank Wilson of Canons valley was injured while employed at the Powers lumber company camp in Canons valley, when a donkey engine cable broke, striking him on the leg. The flying cable cut deeply into the flesh, severing an artery, and in spite of a tourniquet and first aid, measures the man was unable to stop the flow of blood before he reached the hospital here.

If a fire appears to be wearing too much in one spot, you may find that it is caused by a flat spot on the brake drum or that the drum is running out of true.
