TRIAL CAUSES MUCH COMMENT

(By Charles F. Stewart) WASHINGTON, (SNEA Special)—The Rhineclander case has caused a deal of talk here, as, doubtless, throughout the entire country. Comment on it in Latin American diplomatic circles sounds odd to a North American. It seems equally odd to the Latin American that such a rumpus should have been raised over a white man's marriage to a woman with a little negro blood in her veins. Latin Americans long resident in the United States, to be sure, are aware of the hard and fast racial lines drawn here. If Mrs. Rhineclander were a full-blooded negro perhaps they themselves would agree that she made rather an inappropriate wife for a Caucasian. To object, however, to a union between pure white and just a dash of color strikes them as superfluous.

But marriage between a youth of Leonhard Kip Rhineclander's social position and a servant girl? Ah, quite different. The Latin American contingent recognized that as bad mesalliance from the Rhineclander standpoint. It is not that the former Allee Jones, small fraction of African ancestry, signifies much. "If, as one secretary of legation from south of the equator remarked to me, 'Rhineclander can't live with his wife in America, why doesn't he take her to some part of the world where American color prejudices don't exist?' 'He could locate, say, in Rio de Janeiro and become a Brazilian. He and his wife would be in perfectly good social standing. They might be the parents of a future president.'"

Skilled Trade Advanced To Insure Home Happiness

KANSAS CITY, (AP)—Working on the theory that when a discouraged man returns home after a day's employment for which he is not fitted his depression engulfs the home-hold, Kansas City schools are popularizing the skilled trades.

"We are instilling in the minds of the children a proper appreciation and emulation of skilled workmanship," said Superintendent L. I. Cammack. "We are showing the pupils the desirability of engaging in the trades and, at the same time, giving them an opportunity in vocational classes to discover the trades for which they are best equipped."

Soon to be worked among the half dozen most powerful nations in chemical warfare.

Supply stocks for the service left over from the war had been reduced "practically to nothing."

General Fries asserted, adding that aerial appropriations were not sufficient to replace this loss or to maintain the war reserve for foreign projects.

On the question of defensive measures against gas attack, General Fries said that masks for use in continental United States "are non-existent" and that the supply in overseas garrisons was deficient in number and in proper sizes.

"Effectiveness is the criterion by which weapons or methods of warfare stand or fall. The modern conception of chemical warfare is well known to all the great armies of the world. It has stood the test of a great war and its effectiveness is recognized."

Two Forms of Death Punishment in Kentucky

MEMPHIS, (AP)—Kentucky is unique in having two forms of death punishment, hanging and electrocution. Hanging is for other capital crimes; electrocution for murder.

The 122 legislators passed the hanging law. A legislature hanging recently was the first one under the act which brought back the discredited sentence, which Clark Gaudin, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, said has deterred important commissions pronounced.

SAYS DEFENSE IS NEGLECTED

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Neglect of proper preparation for the employment of the defense against an efficient war machine, "bordering on national suicide," Major General Angus Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service, declared in his annual report to Secretary of War Davis made public here. The report declared that "a speedy and sure victory" in any war can be assured to the United States only by adequate use of the unique superiority the country enjoys as to chemical resources.

"This position as to chemical resources of the United States," General Fries said, "will give it superiority over any other nation or group of nations which will mean success in any future war, but a state of chemical preparedness will never result if we slacken or neglect our military development and training in chemical warfare."

It must be recognized that there is absolutely nothing inherent in chemical warfare to prevent its consideration as a logical and perfectly justifiable means of waging war.

General Fries noted with particular interest "the recent chemical warfare developments in Russia, where that portion of the national defense has been launched on a large scale, backed by great public enthusiasm. He said that despite "many disadvantages," the course of the American chemical warfare service was excellent, but slight.

"Nevertheless, without a drastic increase in appropriations, we will
