heart from jail.

The picture, uniquely treated, aside from being highly romantic and dramatic, carries a series of thrilling incidents which occur during the colorful Mardi Gras carnival and at the races that feature the yearly festival in New Orleans.

"The Scarlet Saint," a First National picture, was directed for the screen by George Archainbaud. Supporting Lloyd Hughes and Mary Astor is an exceptionally well-balanced cast including Frank Morgan, Ted Derry, Antrim Short, Larva Duvon, George Neville and Jack Raymond.

A Buster Brown comedy will also be shown.

Parker House Relics Will Be Preserved for Future

BOSTON (AP)—Although the Parker House, Boston's historic history and birthplace of the "Parker House Roll," is giving way to wreckers, several of its traditional features may be preserved by future friends as relics of the past.

Plans call for the restoration of the dining room—the big main floor dining room—in its entirety. This may be set up in an inn, not far from Boston.

Restoration of the crystal room, the noted banquet hall, also is under consideration. It may become the salon of a retail establishment.

Some of the roundels and other interior furnishings have been sold as relics. The finishing of the reading room, the writing room and the second floor ladies room have been promised so that these mahogany rooms may be rebuilt in the new hotel which will open in 1927.

Few of the landmarks of Boston are richer in memories than this rambling ruin. Charles Dickens posed a winter under its roof and his rooms have been maintained as a literary shrine. In 1875, President Grant and several members of his cabinet were guests there. Among other were Path, Bernhard, Ada Rehan, Henry Irving, Edwin Booth, Mansfield and Clara Louise Kellogg.

The Parker House has played a large part in politics, business and social life of Boston.

Elder Son of Princess Mary State's Most Borrowed Baby

MARROGATE (AP)—George Henry Albert, elder son of Princess Mary, has become the most "borrowed" baby in England.

King George and Queen Mary, the grandparents, are particularly fond of the boy, and when he isn't romping about Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle, George is "loaned" to Lord and Lady Harewood, parents of Viscount Lascelles, at Harewood House near where a playground has been fixed up for his special benefit.

Now and then George Henry goes to Curzon House in London, the residence of the Duke and Duchess of York. Ever so often he is taken to St. James Palace to pay his respects to his uncle, the Prince of Wales, and Prince Henry.

Goldborough Hall, between York and Harrogate, is really the home of George Henry, but he has been so busy making kin visiting tours this fall that his parents have seen but very little of him. Two nurses

Jackie Coogan's Latest Scores At Sherrys

Jackie Coogan appeared yesterday at the Sherry theatre in his first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, and a blind man has written this review for me. The most touching tribute to Jackie Coogan was offered yesterday at the Sherry theatre when an aged, sightless gentleman came out of the theatre with a smile on his lips. I questioned him how was it that he went into a picture theatre when he couldn't see the screen.

"I go to the theatre when Jackie Coogan comes to town because I love to hear the laughter of the little children."

So we went into the theatre also to hear the laughter of little children and to enjoy what that unfortunate man was obliged to forego—the sight of the tiny genius on the screen. And it so wonder they laughed, because Jackie has suddenly turned comedian and in his new picture, "Old Clothes," he kept the audience in hysterics. Those persons who are responsible for the selection of Jackie's stories are to be congratulated. They are making films with an adult appeal and at the same time they are producing pictures for the delight of juveniles—a happy combination indeed.

The story of "Old Clothes" is by Willard Mack, who wrote three preceding Coogan stories, Max Davidson, Lilian Elliott, Joan Crawford, James Mason and Alan Forrest handle the supporting roles admirably. Eddie Cline is credited with the direction of "Old Clothes," his third consecutive Jackie Coogan production. Jack Coogan, Sr. supervised the film.

Comedy showing "The Mad Hush."

"Lord Jim" Has Cast of Stellar Players

A cast unusual for even a Paramount picture is seen in Joseph Conrad's "Lord Jim," which Victor Fleming directed for Paramount, and which comes to the Star on Friday.

Terey Marnett, known to all followers of the stage and screen, plays the leading masculine role—that of "Lord Jim." Shirley Mearns, one of the most beautiful and popular feminine players in the industry, plays opposite Marnett in the part of "Jewel," the full-caste.

Noah Berry plays the brutal sea captain Raymond Hafford, portrayer of the cruel trading-post manager.

Joseph Dowling in the role of the harbor master, George Morrell and Frank Kahanamoku, internationally known Olympic swimmer, also have important parts. The story of "Lord Jim" was adapted for the screen by John Bunsell.

Carnival and Racing In "Scarlet Saint" Coming to Arcade

"The Scarlet Saint," a First National adaptation of Gerald Beaumont's story, "The Lady Who Played Fidele," is to be the feature attraction Wednesday and Thursday at the Arcade Theatre.

Based on a highly dramatic plot and theme, the picture is said to be a most ideal vehicle for the co-starring players, Lloyd Hughes and Mary Astor. Set against the picturesque background of New Orleans during Mardi Gras week, the story deals with the romance of a young American girl who is forced to marry a foreign nobleman in order to save her sister.
