PRODUCER HAS A BUSY LIFE

NEW YORK (AP)—The life of a movie producer is checked full of hard work, but by admission is one of the most interesting in the world.

He spends millions of dollars in carrying out an annual production program. He reads and sees all the best plays and many of the bad ones. He thinks nothing of ordering a company "on location" in Europe, Alaska, Porto Rico, or the Sahara. Actors, authors, playwrights, poets, artists, models, dinopoly limits the selling privilege to those holding a government permit.

BERLIN (By Associated Press).—Germany has risen to third place among European nations in the popularity of what are called the "white sports," the winter games in which Norway and Sweden are admittedly the leaders. More than 20 national and international ski tournaments have been arranged for January, February and March.

The national ski association has 70,000 members with an additional 15,000 junior memberships. There are 55 skating clubs with memberships totaling 12,000. In Berlin there are half a dozen indoor skating rinks, including the largest in the world.

Norway and Sweden still are supreme in ski running, ice hockey and fancy skating.

Mrs. Clyde Metcalf acted as reader and interlocutor. Before each of the two parts of the cantata, she gave a charming interpretation of the story to be told.

Appreciative commendations are heard today on the success with which Mr. Stoddard and his singers, the members of the L. D. S. choir and the La Grande M. E. A. of the first ward, presented the New Year's musicale.

price of their beauty. The French film industry would do no better at Nice than it has done in Paris. Let the French directors go to the Basque country.

A sign conveying the bad news, "No More Tobacco," has been displayed in many of the Paris tobacco stores for the past few days. Stocks have been greatly depleted by purchases by the foresighted who desire to anticipate the increase in prices which the government's new taxation program is expected to put in force.

The run began at the tobacco counters in the senate and chamber. France's state tobacco mo-rectors, statesmen, royalty and financiers are to be found among his acquaintances.

That's Jesse L. Lasky. When he comes to his office in the morning, on his desk is a long summary of telegrams and cablegrams from the world over.

A story has been purchased especially for a star. A director has been selected. The producing department has obtained actors of the supporting parts. Locations have been designated. In fact, everything virtually is ready for actual work to begin.

But here is a telegram to the effect that the star does not like the role; neither does she care for the story and is in tears over the prospect of having to do it.

"One of the necessities of good work is happiness in doing it," said Mr. Lasky. "If the star is an important one and advances good reasons for not doing the picture, the whole thing has to be postponed and another actor found or another scenario selected. I have to decide what is to be done."

There also is a cable from England, saying the company's option is about to expire on a very important literary work. Another message from a company on location gives the news that rain has so delayed work as to send expenses of the production far above the budget. Should the scenario be recast, omitting the scenes in question, or should the company remain a few days longer in the hope of improved weather?

The telephone rings and a playwright tells him that the big Broadway success on which he had had $50,000 and had virtually closed the deal, has attracted a better offer from another producing company. Will Mr. Lasky raise the ante? In walks his secretary with word that a piece of a cabinet member has presented a letter of introduction. She is beautiful and wants to get into the movies. Or it may be a French or Russian man or woman of title with the same ambition.

Ordinarily, an aide would handle applicants, but owing to the importance of the introduction, Mr. Lasky sees the person. He then is into an engagement with one of his favorite stars, or is post dice at the projection room, where a new photoplay awaits his criticism.

A man tried to arrest a carless driver and now bears the mark of a diamond tread and a vacuum tread tire on his leg.

him the work of getting the paper into the hands of the subscriber with the least possible delay. This delivery service, coupled with the fact that this newspaper daily reaches its readers hours ahead of any outside daily, its columns replete with world news disseminated by the ever-present and efficient Associated Press, should be good and sufficient reason for finding The Observer in every home in Union and Wallawa counties.

The Observer not only receives Associated Press world happenings the same hour such news is received in Portland and other large cities, but has the added virtue of reaching local city and district homes and stores of more than passing interest. Proximity to its readers enables this newspaper to give its readers all of this readable news more quickly than the latter could obtain it through any other source.

It is planned to establish a like carrier service at Union as soon as the Elgin delivery route is functioning properly.

Advertisements are reliable. The merchant or manufacturer who signs an advertisement knows that he must keep faith. He knows that when you come in to buy you will expect the goods to be just what he has claimed. He realizes that if he deceives you once, your trade is lost.
Never was there a more severe test of the worth of a product than advertising! You can pin your faith to an advertised product every time. It invites the inspection of millions and it must be worthy or it cannot live.
