Print German Editorials in English to Avoid Suspicion
 ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Daily editorials in German are republished in English each Saturday by the Tagliche Volkszeitung of St. Paul.

The practice was instituted with the announced intention of making the editorial policy thoroughly understood by the English reading public and to minimize "an element of suspicion with which an American unable to read German or any other foreign language might naturally look upon any newspaper printed in an alien tongue."

Low Robbery Record Fald to Police Dexterity With Guns
 SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Down here in the shadow of the old Alamo, folks generally have a reputation for being quick on the draw and quicker on the trigger. But San Antonio, with a population of more than 200,000 and a police department of 183, has not had a major robbery in five years.

The remarkable absence of gunmen, safe blowers and others of that sort of the population is accredited to the fact that there are 25 men on the force who are expert pistol shots. The whole force, including the marksmanship medal-holding Chief T. O. Miller, engage in pistol practice at regular intervals. It is said that if officers were beaten on the "draw," they would hand over their weapons in disgust.

The 193 persons of the force, which includes matrons and other attaches, patrol an area of approximately fifty square miles.

Facilities of Indiana Bank Taken to Farmers in Field
 RISING SUN, Ind. (AP)—When the farmers of southeastern Indiana find themselves unable to keep bankers' hours, the Rising Sun State Bank takes its facilities to the farmers.

Representatives of the institution cover the surrounding territory in automobiles, accepting bank deposits, transacting small loans and cashing checks.

The bank representatives also receive deposits from cream stations along the way and sell fire and tornado insurance as a sideline.

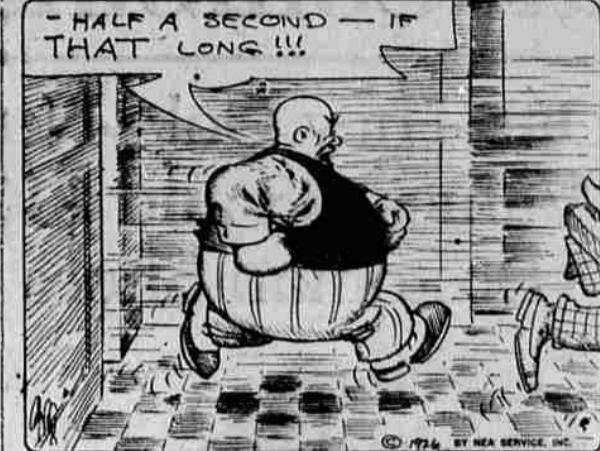

Madame Lenin Offended if Men Show Her Sex Courtesy
 MOSCOW (AP)—Madame Lenin would be offended if a male "comrade" offered her a seat in a train, opened a door for her, or stepped aside to give her precedence.

Hand-kissing and hat-tipping have been relegated to the past in Communist Russia for hygienic reasons and men and women are on a par. There is no sex in Communism.

But strangely enough men still continue to kiss each other. The old method of salutation among men relatives and intimate men friends is so strong that government regulations have not wiped it out. Handshaking is also under government ban.

Practically all misunderstandings are caused by people who don't understand they don't understand.

Hamlin Garland's Cavanagh in Film At Sherrys

"The Ranger of the Big Pines," the Vitaphone picture of Hamlin Garland's novel, "Cavanagh Forest Ranger," will begin a two days' run at the Sherry theatre today. The cast, headed by Kenneth Harlan, includes Helen Costello, Eudine Jensen, Will Walling, Lew Harvey, Robert J. Graves, Eugene Paulette, Harvey Clark and Joan Stauding.

Harlan plays Ross Cavanagh, a strong, handsome forest ranger who falls in love with Virginia Weatherford (Helen Costello), Virginia's mother, Liza Weatherford (Eudine Jensen), a sternly hotelkeeper whose daughter has been educated in the East and who finds this blowy woman a keen disappointment.

The girl is lovely and charming and Ross fights against his growing love for her, fearing the force of her heredity. He has befriended an old cattleman who he discovers is Virginia's father insisting upon remaining dead to his wife and daughter; an interesting character played by Eugene Paulette.

Around these characters moves the exciting story of the fight between the lawless West and the guardians of the forests, between Ross' family pride and love for the flower of a corrupt stock, and the majestic beauty of the mountains aloof from all petty warfare of man.

William Van Dyke has directed this picture, adapted to the screen by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton, with what has been hailed by reviewers in other cities as masterly skill.

Comedy showing "He Who Gets Crowded."

Meighan Film Heads Bill at Arcade Theater

"The Man Who Found Himself," the Paramount picture starring Thomas Meighan at the Arcade theatre today and Saturday, is a story of a son of a small town banker, who in order to save his younger "respectable" brother from a term in Sing Sing, gives himself up as the guilty party after a bank robbery.

The situation is this: Ralph Morgan, in the role of Edwin Maccauley, Jr., is sick and tired of hearing his wife ask why it is he can't make a whole lot of money in a hurry so she can have some of the fine things of life. So he decides to take a "river" in Wall Street.

The scheme falls through, as most get-rich schemes usually do, and the boy is forced to borrow some forty-thousand dollars from the bank to "cover up" and besides that goes to a rival banker to borrow money to replace in the vault to keep his own accounts straight.

Now everything might have gone along more or less smoothly if the other man hadn't seen in this situation a chance to get rid of a dangerous business rival. He notifies the bank examiners with the above result.

Not satisfied with having shipped banker, Len Morris, played by Frank Moran (Ralph's brother in real life), who is also angling for the hand of Tom's sweetheart Nora Brooks, (Virginia Vail) tells the girl that Tom took the money to spend on another woman.

In Sing Sing, Tom soon wins the confidence of the warden and is made a trusty. Meanwhile Len Morris works hard to win Nora and finally persuades her to marry him so her invalid sister may be comfortable.

 Tom's father dies of grief, and soon after this the star gets another shock by reading of his girl's approaching wedding. He escapes from prison and with the help of two former convicts, plants a clever trap for Morris.
 To relate the scenes that follow would be only spoiling an evening of perfect entertainment if you miss this one, you miss the greatest picture Tom Meighan ever made. And that's something!

Alfred E. Green, who directed Tom in "Back Home and Broke," "The Tiger Malone," etc., made this one Tom Meighan's wrote the screen play from an original story by Booth Tarkington, written especially for Mr. Meighan.
 In addition a late Pathé News and Pathé are being shown.

"Why Women Love" Starts 3-Day Run At the Star

Taking rank with such nautical masterpieces as "The Sea Hawk," First National's "Why Women Love," which was directed by Edwin Carewe, opens tonight at the Star Theatre for a three day run and will carry away audiences to heights of enthusiasm by its dramatic power. Fascinating in its story development as in its pictorial phases, "Why Women Love" will hold any audience in a spell until the sensational climax—the tragic collapse of the light-house on the Baltimore coast.

Blanche Sweet wins new admirers with her performance in this offering. She has an admirable foil in Robert Frazer, and an artistically finished performance is given by Dorothy Sebastian, a comparative newcomer to the screen. Edward Earle, Alan Roscoe, Russell Simpson and that ever-efficient laugh-maker, Charles Murray, are others in an unusually well balanced cast.

Everything in this photoplay, from the moment that Blanche Sweet in the part of Molla Hansen jumps from the taffrail of her father's vessel, an oil tanker, to rescue Bud O'Malley, played by Robert Frazer, moves and motivates with a surge of dramatic feeling that fairly carries one along in its tenacity and grip.

The love of Molla for Bud in epic, the burning of the oil tanker at sea a scene of terrible beauty, the merciless utilization of the wayward beauty of the lighthouse keeper's daughter by the unscrupulous run runner is amazing in its destructive significance, the elemental fury of the final catastrophe is fairly breath-taking.

William Robertson as father of the story, which was adapted from his stage success, "The Sea Woman."

"Fateful Whirlwind" a Western featurette and "Jimmy Crickets" a comedy also being presented on the same program.

Cotton situation is bad. Farmers received so little for their cotton they are raising Cain now.
