DOING WELL—"If they don't sell, shall they not be accepted? and if they don't not sell, she both at the door."—Gen. 4:7.

Dancing exercises just about everything except discretion.

The divorced wife of Rudolph Valentino says she will devote the rest of her life to a career. Just keep on doing what she has been doing, apparently.

A Nova Scotian has sent 25 cents to a Massachusetts town to pay the police to search for his wife. We wonder if that indicates how badly he wants her to return?

Capt. Amundsen's statement that the claims of Dr. Frederick Cook to a discovery of the North Pole are as good as Peary's may have merit but it comes too late. Cook is in the federal prison at Leavenworth and actions since his memorable trip north have increased the doubt in many minds as to his sincerity.

MANY COOKS IN THE KITCHEN.

The Portland Oregonian says that three new senatorial candidates in the Republican primaries are about ready to get into the game, Moser, Cary, and Joseph. One or two of them are sure to go and possibly all three. And they are all probably being urged to get in by the supporters of one other candidate—Senator Stanfield. It would be an ideal arrangement from his standpoint, five fairly strong opponents and two or three mediocre aspirants—just about enough to split the junior senator's opposition sufficiently to make his nomination very likely.

To offset this there will be a very definite movement, aided largely by the Oregonian probably, to steer votes in any direction except Stanfield's, for the reason that they consider it extremely doubtful if he could be elected next fall. That argument will have a great deal of weight with many Republicans who draw close party lines and are devoted to seeing a Republican in congress to back the administration. It will probably take many votes from Stanfield that he might otherwise count on.

With a many-sided contest in prospect, the senatorial situation is not one to bring forth confident prophecies of the outcome. There's no telling what will happen in the next few months and it looks as though the aspirant who succeeds in getting the best organization will stand the best chance in May. Stanfield will depend on office holders, federal employees, and the old Republican organization to gather in votes. Other candidates will make various appeals. Fred Steiwer looks more and more formidable as he gets various organizations under way to aid his candidacy. He has unusual advantages in connections at O. A. C. and the University of Oregon where clubs are being formed among students and alumni, in the Legion where he is extremely well known and very active, and in many other ways. He is of an old pioneer family, well known in Western Oregon, and that will count for much. Here in Eastern Oregon his law business and knowledge of farm conditions and needs make this a fertile field. He will get much of the former Stanfield support, according to his friends. Steiwer, Clark, Stanfield, Shumway and Crossley are profiting now by being in the game early. Newcomers will seek to offset this with a whirlwind finish.

The lady belongs to my Dad."

"You big笨head," shouted the construction superintendent to his Swede foreman. "I told you to fire that man and you hit him with an ax!"
"Yet, Boss, done as she have."

THE REASON WHY
The thrifty man is never forced to make a bad bargain because he has converted his TIME, MONEY and EFFORT—invested in independent and self-reliant. He is not a miser but a wise spender and a good citizen.

Educated Nose Required
Of Dallas-Night Watchmen

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The nose of the night watchman knows its business. Guardians of the night in Dallas have become such proficient "sniffers" that an educated nose is a prerequisite for their job.

In a brief period, they "sniffed out" and prevented numerous fires from getting started by burning by careless cooks, crumpled wires, burning night stoves and smoking cigarettes.

A woman has been responsible for much of this training. Mrs. George A. Smith, who aids her husband in the management of an extensive night watchman service, trained the hundred nocturnal guardians employed by the company with the aim of "following their noses."

These men go forth into the night, pushing like shadows through the dark alleys, bearing into hidden nooks, "sniffing" about where theft or fire may be lying in wait to steal a man's life or

Every-day Magic

Chairs that flop into beds . . . bags that suck up dirt . . . tiny ticking things that count all day long for you. Daylight any night just by pushing a button. A stream that never stops till you turn off a faucet. Any voice you want, talking to you from a cage on your desk or wall. Actions of yesterday, of people miles away, going on a curtain before you. Stilled throats singing to you from discs; distant throats singing to you from nothing!

Uncanny, daily magic—this, due to national advertising. Advertisements have given you flashlights, telephones, typewriters, automobiles, cold creams, motion pictures. They have given you new eyes, new ears, new hands, new feet, new faces, new emotions. They have urged such wide use, so lowered prices, that almost wishes are autos, almost beggars can ride. Through advertisements you've laid down the shovel and the hoe. You can buy a whole harvest ready-to-eat in cans. You've hung up the fiddle and the bow, for a radio. There's little old-time work left in this age of amazing short-cuts.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS. THEY KEEP YOU TO THE FORE OF MODERN LIFE.
