Root Pests Issue at Meet.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho.—The Parish hall was crowded January 23 with hundreds of members of the Southern Idaho Bean Growers' association when the meeting was called to order by Dr. L. H. Giffen, president. Mayor E. L. Ashton was elected president and Secretary T. S. Nicholason was retained for the meeting in that capacity.

Speakers included R. L. Shearer of Filer, who told of the problems confronting the grower; Professor J. S. Meldhusen of Twin Falls, who gave a field survey of 1925, Professor G. M. Tucker of Filer, who developed the same subject from a somewhat different angle; Walter Carter, U. S. entomologist, now working in connection with the Amalgamated Sugar company, in a study of the white fly or leaf hopper, and County Agent R. E. Brossard.

The substance of the talks was to the effect that relatively speaking, the pests which are common to beans at all times and in all places are not severe here, but that the greatest precaution should be taken to prevent their spread. For this purpose proper cultivation, crop rotation and other preventive measures should be adopted.

LEWISTON, Idaho. — Bids will be received up to March 1 from five contractors for construction of the dam and forebay to be installed in the Clearwater river here by the Inland Light and Power company and work must be completed by May 1, 1927.

This announcement followed a final conference of H. H. Schoolfield, chief engineer of the company; D. W. Cole, New York city, consulting and designing engineer, and E. J. Lorenz, who is in direct charge of the surveys and work on the ground, the conference being concluded today. Preliminary plans have been in the hands of contractors for some time and permanent plans are now available for them.

Tomorrow, the engineers will confer with State Game Warden Thomas of Idaho and representatives of the Oregon fishing industry and the United States bureau of fisheries relative to the fishway in the dam.

"The Mystic" Is Finest Brown Picture to Date

Tod Browning, the most famous director of film crook plays, has again hit the nail on the head in "The Mystic," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, now being shown at the Sherry theatre.

Years ago Browning gave to the screen a great crook drama in "Outside the Law," which he wrote and directed. The picture was a popular hit and Browning has since written and directed the most thrilling plays of that type that have ever appeared on the screen.

His recent Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Unholy Three," featuring Lon Chaney, has been considered the best underworld picture of recent years, but it is doubtful if it can be compared to "The Mystic."

Browning is said to have been prompted to write the story of "The Mystic" by recent police raids against fake mediums and clairvoyants of Los Angeles. Some of the most startling bits of business in the story originated from the sensational testimony given before the Los Angeles County grand jury probing the connection between fake mediums and organized gangs of swindlers.

No matter where Browning received his inspiration for this picture he has given to millions of picture-goers a melodrama that is both a warning and entertainment.

The story opens in Hungary, where an American crook discovers a gypsy mystic and brings her to America where he begins to prey on wealthy people desirous of communicating with dead friends and relatives. The story is a first-class melodrama replete with thrills and following a romance which develops between the American crook and the gypsy mystic, who, by the way, is a fake medium.

The story is interpreted by a notable all-star cast, with Aileen Pringle and Conway Tearle in the featured roles. The cast also includes Mitchell Lewis, Robert Ober, Stanton Heck, Gladys Hulette, David Torrence and DeWitt Jennings.

Norma Talmadge Coming to Arcade In Love Thriller

Norma Talmadge ... screen of the Arcade ... for a three day run in her ... "The ... Woman."

The feature shows Norma ... united with her erstwhile leading man, Eugene O'Brien, and the pair wend their way through a sequence of highly emotional love scenes which reach a climax in a thrillingly realistic yatch wreck.

The story, written by C. Gardner Sullivan, reverses the usual theme of sacrifices by parents for their children, and submits the problem of a girl who sacrifices herself on the altar of marriage to save her father from financial ruin and disgrace.

Though she hates the man, she marches up the church aisle amid a throng of society friends and becomes his bride, and they launch upon a honeymoon with hardly a cheery prospect in view.

It is on this honeymoon, designed as a yatching cruise on the Mediterranean, that a terrible storm arises overboard to destruction, and is only through Eugene's aid that Norma is saved.

At the height of the storm a three-masted schooner bears down ... into splinters.

How Norma and Eugene finally are rescued and she comes to a realization that she loved her husband are details left for you to see on the screen.

It is good entertainment, with Norma and Eugene at their best. Others in the cast include Matthew Betz, Edwards Davies, Winter Hall, Stella di Lanti, Murdock MacQuarrie, Neal Dodd, E. H. Calvert and Louis Dumar.

On the same program is also showing the Pathe comedy "Somewhere in Somewhere."

"Hands Up" Best Griffith Comedy Release, Is Claim

Admirers of Raymond Griffith gave the popular silk hat comedian a rousing welcome last night at the Star theater, where his latest comedy, "Hands Up!" began a three day's run. This is by all odds Griffith's finest, funniest, and most spectacular picture to date, and reflects great credit on Clarence Badger, the director, Reginald Morris, author and Monty Brice and Lloyd Corrigan scenarists.

"Hand Up!" has a combined Civil War and western background, and this gives the inimitable Raymond an excellent opportunity to burlesque all the heavy war dramas and the wide and well-advertised open spaces. Needless to say, he doesn't miss a single trick, and the result is a picture that provokes roars of laughter with the rapid-fire precision of a machine gun.

As a Confederate spy, sent by General Robert E. Lee to get control of the Union gold supply Griffith runs into one exciting adventure after another. Yet, despite the fact that he is kept busy dodging Indians, battling western "bad men" and, in general, trying to win the war single-handed, he still finds time to fall in love with two—count 'em—two pretty girls.

After many hair-raising experiences, in which the rollicking young soldier escapes hanging by the bat of an eyelash, he succeeds in returning to the Confederate lines, only to discover that the war is over! But he still has the two girls on his hands, and his surprising romance brings the picture to a hilarious conclusion.

Mack Swain, who has appeared in so many of Charlie Chaplin's productions, ably seconds Griffith's mirth-provoking efforts. Montagu Love is another player who acquits himself with distinction, and the feminine members of the cast are charmingly personified by Marian Nixon and Virginia Lee Corbin. Of the many historical characters ... enter into ... of the story ...

... an evening of splendid entertainment.

This same program will be shown at the Star again today and Tuesday.

Growers Balk at Beet Price

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho.—Twenty beet growers representing most of the sugar beet districts near Idaho Falls met January 23 and passed resolutions setting forth that owing to the high cost of labor and other factors entering into the cost of beet production, they felt they would not be able to grow beets for the offered price of $6 a ton, minimum sliding scale, for the coming year.

Carefully compiled estimates showed that the minimum cost of production, using the best methods recommended by the agricultural authorities, would be $77.50 an acre. The average yield for this territory last season was 12 tons.

The growers feel that this is too narrow a margin for a profitable crop. Delegates to the state beet convention at Pocatello have been selected and will present the claims of the local men at the meeting.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—Etta Williams, who was recently convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated, in a hearing before Justice of Peace Olson at Sprague River, filed an appeal to the circuit court. In the justice court she was fined $100 and had her operator's license revoked for one year.
