"Get the Truth to the Public"

"One of the most costly and erroneous beliefs of American women today is the belief that they can buy more conveniently and advantageously from the agent at their own doors than they can in the retail stores. In the final analysis, the way to beat the peddler is to bring the public to know the truth—that comparable merchandise can be had at as good or better prices from the retailer."

The need of the New Englander to have with him, from this time the pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock, said Joseph H. Soliday, president of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts. The climax of the Plymouth colony was such that the Mayflower passengers were immediately faced with the fact that they had to make provision for the winter if they were to exist. The very nature of the situation demanded that they save.

"From this need came the habit," continued Mr. Soliday, "of keeping a few dollars of cash where persons living the simple lives of their neighbors have left estates of $250,000 or more. In your New Englander the thrift habit is ingrained. William A. Gaston, a Boston millionaire banker, for years maintained the account and pass book his father bequeathed him. It is a custom of long standing to open a trust savings account for each child at birth. The pass book, at the child's coming of age, is an impressive object of thrift."

And, Mr. Soliday pointed out, the savings habit is no less fixed in the foreign born who have come to New England.

In addition to the fundamental and natural causes for saving, the habit has been made attractive in New England. It was in 1816 that the Mutual Savings Bank plan was launched in Boston and Philadelphia simultaneously. In Boston a group of citizens met in a coffee house and formed the Provident Institution for Savings in the Town of Boston. Some $300,000 are now on deposit in that bank. The limit of an individual's deposits was set at $500.

TEA DRINKING RUINING PEOPLE SAYS IRISHMAN

BELFAST, Ireland (AP)—Tea drinking is ruining people and sickening day illness, Dr. Dennis O'Hagan, surgeon of Louth, county infirmary, so told a committee called together to discuss the treatment of tuberculosis.

"What is required," he said, "is a health campaign to get people to feed themselves properly. I advised people to drink less tea to get back to the days of 'strabaut' and 'butter-milk.' There would be less tuberculosis if people took this advice."

Strabaut is a porridge of oatmeal or cornmeal boiled in water and stirred.
