Morrison Rides Horse Into Saloon in Thrilling Scene

Probably no more unique fight scene was ever filmed than that which picture patrons will see in "Ranger Hussard." Pete Morrison's great Western melodrama, which is coming to the Sherry Theatre today, will be a challenge to a finish fight in the town saloon by the town bully. The villain awaits him in the saloon with his benchmen behind him—revolvers drawn. But Pete on Lightning, his wonder horse, rides the animal through the back door, holds up the room, ropes the bully and drags him to the street. It's a great scene.

Denny Is Dean of Hilarious Fun in Picture at Arcade

No screen fan should miss the opportunity of seeing Reginald Denny as he romps through the title role of "What Happened To Jones," the new Universal-Jewel now showing at the Arcade Theatre.

Here is a picture that contains all the essentials of successful farce, portrayed intelligently with delicious humor, and lacking none of the fundamental rules of comedy.

"What Happened To Jones," tells of the adventures and misadventures of Tom Jones, a wealthy little manufacturer, whose reputation in town is of the very highest. On the night before his marriage, he is enticed into participating in a poker game with a few of his friends.

Judge of his horror, when, shortly after the game has started, it is interrupted by the police. Tom, in his attempts to escape, finds himself in a woman's Turkish Bath. From then on, the fun starts, gaining more and more hilarious boundary as the picture progresses, until at the final fade-out, the audience is in one continual roar.

Denny does the best work of a successful career in this picture. He has fine aptitude for this type of comedy and his admirers will not be disappointed in him. He is ably assisted by an excellent cast. Sweet Marian Nixon plays the role of his fiancée and Olive Hansen that of his blundering friend. Zasu Pitts is excellent as the maid, Emily Mizroy plays the part of Harlan's wife and William Austin, the disappointed lover.

The rest of the cast is well balanced, including Melbourne MacDowell, Frances Raymond, Margaret Quibby, Ben Hendricks, Nina Romano, John Elliott, Edward Cecil and Frederick Coffey.

Throngs Attend Movie Barbecue When Round-Up Film Taken

There have been barbecues and barbecues in the West, but it took a film company, on location in Oregon from Hollywood, to show the hearty sons of the Northwest how it should be done.

During the filming of "Under Western Skies," the Universal production now playing at the Star Theatre, the company on location in Pendleton, Oregon, played host to almost two thousand people of that district.

The barbecue was held for two reasons. One was to repay Pendleton, in a measure, for its courtesy and hospitality during the visit. The other was to get scenes of a similar type made for the picture.

Through the columns of the local newspapers, Director Edward Sedgwick invited everyone in Pendleton to be the guest of the company at a barbecue one Sunday. The only stipulation was that every guest was to wear Western clothing.

Pendleton turned out with a vengeance. Everyone except the inmates of the jail and the hospital arrived hordes in the proper costume. Four huge steers, with several million potatoes, peas and what not, were served.

After the dinner, the necessary scenes were taken with all the Pendletonians getting the tremendous thrill from working in the movies.

Then a dance was held on a big open-air pavilion built on the ranch where the scenes were made. Norman Kerry, who plays the featured role in "Under Western Skies" was master of ceremonies; everybody in the cast did something in the way of entertainment, and Pendleton went home as it was getting dark, declaring that Sedgwick and his troupe were the world's greatest hosts.

The cast of "Under Western Skies" includes Anne Cornwall, George Pawcett, Kathleen Key, Ward Crane, Eddie Grubben and others.
