Farm Pointers

Cows bred now or in March will calve from November to early January, when milk and butterfat prices are highest, reminds the Oregon experiment station.

Many Oregon farmers are now using land plaster as top dressing on legume crops to advantage. Spreading at the rate of 60 pounds per acre is recommended by the experiment station. Best results are being obtained on young red clover.

Application of superphosphates to farm manure at the rate of about 40 pounds per ton is being practiced by many Oregon farmers. This is done because barnyard manure is relatively low in phosphorus. The superphosphate is recommended by the experiment station because it will prevent the escape of nitrogen from the manure in the form of ammonia.

More than usual interest is being shown in sweet potato planting in Oregon this year. In both Eastern Oregon and Washington the acreage has shown a marked increase. Sweet potato planting should not be practiced every year believes the experiment station. Control of disease, increase in the fertility of the soil and crop improvement are the advantages to be derived from a rotation of crops, including sweet potatoes.

There is no other food the equal of milk, says the Oregon experiment station, for it is the only complete food and is especially rich in minerals and vitamins. No food can replace it for young growing animals. One quart of milk is equal to 2-4 of a pound of lean beef or 2 pounds of chicken, or 8 eggs, or 3-4 pound of ham, or 4-5 of a pound of loin of pork, in protein and energy values. The above equalization does not take into account the superiority of milk in vitamines and minerals, both of which are being recognized more and more as prime essentials of any food.

Valleys of salt twelve miles in length and of a proved depth of not less than thirty feet are to be found in Inyo County, California.

Nevada Editors Sponsor Memorial To Mark Twain

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Newspaper editors at Nevada, working through the state editorial association, have undertaken a movement to erect a memorial of Mark Twain that will be national in scope.

Beside the cabin in which the famous American humorist scribbled his first draft of Huckleberry Finn, beloved bad boy of the Mississippi river banks, it is proposed to erect a building or perhaps move to this site the old Territorial Enterprise building at Virginia City in which Twain served his cub reportership.

The cabin was occupied by Samuel Clemens when he was hardly more than a boy before his pen name had much significance in the literary world. It was then situated on the desert near Aurora, but later was transported to Idle wild Park here and became the property of the Huckleberry Finn club.

Empress Consults People Regarding Her Charities

TOKYO, (AP)— The Empress, who aids numerous charities throughout Japan, has evolved a plan whereby she hopes to discover the real ideas of her subjects concerning the means of assisting the sick and unfortunate.

Among the charities in which Her Majesty is interested is the City Medical Service Corps, which has five stations in Tokyo. The Empress has caused a letter box to be placed at each of these stations with an invitation for anyone to write her personally regarding charity.

"Friend Hannah" At Arcade Tonight Only

"Friend Hannah," by Paul Kester, to be presented by the Morosi Olsen players at the Arcade theater tonight is history in action, as exciting as a novel, and as entertaining as a natural vamp, its publicity promises.

Along with an unwritten secret of English history which is revealed, a pretty story of the winsome Quaker girl so charming in quaint country garden is woven. Quaker maids, like Gypsies, are attractive the world over and in Paul Kester's play there is no diversion from this rule.

A picture filled with thrills and suspense, loaded with comedy scenes, and filled with an interesting love story, makes "The Desperate Game," the feature starring Pete Morrison, which is showing at the Star today and Wednesday, one of the most entertaining in months.

Morrison, the popular dashing western hero, aided by his uncannily intelligent horse and dog, speeds through the picture with his usual vigor and personality. He starts his role with some splendid comedy of a young man returning to the cattle ranch owned by his father after several years in the east, and attempting to appear a bold band westerner for the benefit of the cow-punchers.

A feud of several years standing between two neighboring ranches is brought into the story, and Pete's efforts to win out in the quarrel for his father's sake combine to make the story a fast-moving and colorful tale.

Morrison performs some remarkable feats of horsemanship and fights like a squad of Marines. The climax, in fact comes in a battle-royal staged between the cow-punchers of the two feudal ranches, with Morrison leading his cohorts on to a spectacular victory.

"The Desperate Game" was directed by Joseph Franz, and adapted to the screen by Frank Beresford from the magazine story by William C. Jenks. The supporting cast includes Dolores Gardner, Lew Meehan, James Welsh, Al Richmond, Bess Darling, J. T. Cockburn, William Arnell, Marie Mack and others.

A comedy is also being shown.

Humorous Movie Drama Produced From Stage Hit

Said to follow the original play by W. Somerset Maugham more closely than any recent production has followed its original, "The Circle," directed by Frank Borzage for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, comes to the Sherry theater tonight.

The production is an English comedy-drama with a satirical and ironic twist. It is filled with many humorous situations and although it has for a basis a serious subject, it has been treated in a light vein.

In a short prologue which precedes the play, the wife of an English lord elopes with their mutual friend. A lapse of thirty years occurs between the prologue and the play and the son of the deserted Englishman finds himself threatened with the same fate as was visited on his father. The situation is further complicated by the coming wife who invites the runaway couple back to learn what their experiences have been.

Eleanor Boardman plays the part of the young wife in a convincing manner. Malcolm McGregor portrays the part of her lover and Creighton Hale is the irritating young husband. Alec B. Francis, George Fawcett and Eugenie Besserer form the first triangle. Estelle Jensen and Otto Hoffman have character roles.

"Best People" In Town Wednesday Only

"The Best People," a Sidney Olcott-Paramount production, a screen version of David Gray and Avery Hopwood's Broadway stage hit comes to the Arcade theater Wednesday only. Warner Baxter, Esther Ralston and Kathlyn Williams are featured in the leading roles of the cast.

The story takes you into the fashionable Lenox home. The Lenoxes, wealthy, well bred, rated as among "the best people" of New York, learn, to their dismay, that their son is madly in love with a chorus girl. Coincidentally, their daughter has developed a deep affection for the family chauffeur. Her idea of a real good time is to have him take her to a movie.

The chauffeur, played by Baxter, in reality, is from a good family but up against it since the termination of the World War. Esther Ralston is not the accepted type of chorus girl. She is demure, refined in manner, quietly and tastefully dressed at all times and undeniably beautiful. The son (Joseph Stricker) cares little for society and much for strong drink. The World War, in which he did his bit, swept away all his "high hat" ideas.

His sister likewise abhors society. She aspires to be a flapper of the exaggerated type, to do the things the chorus girl flapper is supposed to do. And she succeeds fairly well.

The parents decide the strange love affair of the two children must be broken up for "the honor of the family," and a meeting is arranged for, through the aid of a gold-digger chorus girl chum of Miss Ralston.

The meeting takes place at a notorious New York night club, the objective being for the father to buy off Esther Ralston. But the little gathering only reveals to the father that Miss Ralston is a sensible, hard working girl, a decided contrast in every way to what he had expected. He also finds that she is about the only influence [illegible]

Outdoor Club Uses Poetry To Stir Interest In Nature

HOUSTON, Tex., (AP)— Poetry has been adopted by the Houston Outdoor Nature Club to stimulate interest in nature.

Originated by a woman, two prizes have been offered for the first and second best original nature poems from authors in Texas and the four contiguous states.

An announcement said that the prizes are "for the purpose of nature, the conservation of our valuable native flora and fauna and the preservation of important scenic areas." The poems may relate to any phase of nature or the seasons.

Guthrie's Symphony Is Made Up Of 32nd Degree Masons

GUTHRIE, Okla. (AP)—Sensations connected with the federal investigation of an alleged conspiracy against the lives and property of wealthy Osage Indians, much of it centering here recently, have painted this little city before thee yes of this nation as a frontier town in which aesthetic achievements are not prominent.

Guthrie, however, is the center of one of the unique musical organizations in the world—a symphony orchestra composed entirely of 32nd degree Masons.

The second largest Masonic consistory in the world, in point of membership, is located here. Its roll of about 16,000 members includes some of the leading musicians of the state, and it is from these that the orchestra of twenty-six members is recruited.

It is planned that the orchestra will play only at Masonic gatherings. A big pipe organ soon will be installed in the $3,000,000 consistory temple here, which is expected to add to the orchestra's volume.
