Moreno, county district, while Eberhard's name has been used in connection with the Union, Walla Walla county district.

Others interviewed. Mr. Kiddle said this morning to an Observer reporter that he had "made no decision one way or the other as yet." He is looked upon as a man who would have a great deal of strength in Unadilla county as well as his own.

When Mr. Eberhard was approached he declared: "I have been so busy lately with business affairs that I have hardly had time to consider politics. I will have some definite statement forthcoming soon. As yet I have not had a chance to confer with friends in both counties."

FISH FAMILIES COME TO LIFE

NEW YORK. (AP)—Several weeks of winter are still ahead according to the ground hog, most flowers are still sleeping and spring hats are milliners' fiction, but there are those who find the season just ripe for coming to life. They are members of the fish family, who are hatching now in New York's big aquarium.

Twenty-five thousand tiny, gummy looking eggs of black-spotted trout, contained in six trays, are cracking at frequent intervals. The small black eyes which show through the transparent skin of the shells open on a chilly world, bodes a quarter of an inch long wriggle through the openings of the wire mesh tray and thousands of orphan trout take to the open spaces of well cooled water. Fifty degrees is too cold for most spring swimmers, but the young trout find it just about right.

Originally shipped from a United States Fisheries in Michigan, they are publicly hatched in the aquarium as an educational feature. A few weeks after hatching when the baby trout have absorbed their yolk-sack and have become independent bread-winners, they will travel again, in their refrigerated cases, to the lakes and streams in the region of the Pacific above New York.

Several thousand Chinook salmon, although Mr. Eberhard has not given a definite answer, all indications, these in the know, assert that he will become a candidate.

According to word from Portland, Mr. Dennis' removal to the Blue City automatically opens the way for some Union or Walla Walla county resident to seek, and be selected to, the state senate for the unexpired term which will include the 1927 legislative session.

mon, already hatched and living a lively life in a tank adjoining the trout eggs, will reach a similar destination. Their eggs were shipped all the way from Oregon. Their itinerary habits are stranger than those of almost any other fish, said Mr. Louis V. Mowbray, director of the New York Aquarium.

"Salmon are a deep sea fish, and yet they have the habit of coming to fresh water to spawn. Far up the fresh streams and lakes of the Pacific coast, or East in Maine, they spawn. The young salmon find their way out to the ocean again, and for three years their locality and life is unknown to us. At the end of that time they will swim up to the fresh waters, but the intervening years are a mystery that no naturalist has solved."

"Fish seem to have some very acute sense that leads them each year back to their spawning waters. Fish have been tagged one year at their destinations and checked as they found their way of the little inland lake or stream into a big river or the ocean. The next year the same fish will be found in the same obscure source, water, even if there have been dozens of intervening forks and lakes."
